Porter's Warnings Came True

Report Endorsed by Another Civil Servant

New Duel Erupts At Suez

TEL AVIV (AP) — Artillery duels blazed between Israelis and Egyptians across the length of the 103-mile Suez Canal today.

Each side blamed the other for starting the new fighting.

An Israeli army spokesman said the battles erupted after a day of sporadic exchanges and machine-gun fire.

A Cairo radio broadcast said rockets, artillery, mortars and light weapons were brought into play.

The Cairo broadcast claimed the Israelis started shooting first at El Qantara, Firdan and Ismailia and then spread their fire southward to Port Suez.

Cairo's broadcast said the fighting began at 5:30 p.m. with light-arms fire and rapidly escalated. An Israeli spokesman said the firing all along the canal started at 6 p.m.

NEW CHIEF APPOINTED

The fighting erupted only a few hours after Cairo radio reported the appointment of Maj.-Gen. Ahmed Ismail Aly as the new Egyptian armed forces chief of staff. He replaces Lt.-Gen. Abdel Moneim Riad, who was killed in a canal battle Sunday.

In the last three canal battles, United Nations observers said the Egyptians started firing first every time.

This fourth clash of Egyptians and Israelis came after several hundred Arab youths marched into occupied Gaza, waving sticks and stones in demonstrations against the Israeli occupiers. They retreated before reinforced Israeli patrols.

Wilson Plans Peace Bid In Nigeria

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson is considering visiting Nigeria soon to help promote moves to end the 18-month-old civil war, informed political sources said today.

Wilson's decision will depend on the results of the talks between federal leader Yakubu Gowon, and the head of the British diplomatic service, Sir Denis Greenhill, who returned to London from Lagos Wednesday night.

In his talks with Gowon, Greenhill is believed to have expressed mounting British concern over reports of heavy civilian casualties in federal air raids on towns and villages in secessionist Biafra.

Blue Chips Plummet

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones index of blue chip industrial stocks was down a sharp 10.38 points to 907.14 today and the Toronto Stock Exchange recorded a smaller drop in afternoon trading. (Details on page 12.)

Crash Kills Pilots

Soviet Trawler Sinks

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) —The U.S. Coast Guard said today that a Soviet-bloc fishing trawler was sunk early this morning and all hands lost after an apparent collision with a Panamanian-registered tanker, 31 miles offshore from Oregon Inlet, N.C. The trawler was believed to have had a crew of 20.

Iran Area Flooded

TEHRAN (Reuters)—Floods inundated 150 villages today in northwest Iran, making thousands homeless. Troops, police and units of the Red Cross were sent to Azarbaijan province after torrential rains caused three rivers to overflow.

Successful Splashdown Ends Apollo 9 Saga

ABOARD U.S.S. GUADALCANAL (AP)—Climaxing a 10-day space flight that qualified all Apollo hardware for voyages to the moon, the Apollo 9 astronauts blazed back to earth today and parachuted to a pinpoint landing in the Atlantic Ocean within sight of the recovery ship Guadalcanal.

James A. McDivitt, David R. Scott and Russell L. Schweickart rode their 6½-ton spaceship to a splashdown in gentle seas just three miles from this helicopter carrier stationed 300 miles north of Puerto Rico.

They touched down at 12:01 p.m. EST, ending a significant mission that advanced the United States a major step toward an historic landing two men on the moon in July.

The pinpoint landing was a fitting climax for a flight that had been perfect all the way.

Television pictures, relayed through a communications satellite, enabled millions on earth to share the successful return to earth of the American astronauts.

ORANGE, WHITE CHUTES

Viewers had a ringside seat as cameras focused in on the Apollo 9 floating down from space, dangling under three 83-foot orange and white parachutes.

Hundreds of sailors, wearing dress blue, lined the deck of the Guadalcanal to watch the sight. A loud cheer erupted here and in Mission Control Centre in Houston as the ship hit the water.

Helicopters had spotted the astronauts several minutes before they landed and were hovering overhead when Apollo 9 dropped into the sea.

Within minutes, navy frogmen leaped from a recovery helicopter. The swimmers attached flotation collars to the bobbing spaceship and plugged in a telephone to talk with the astronauts.

The helicopter reported the spacecraft was slightly scarred but "rather good."

Moon Trip Decision In 2 Weeks

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Despite Apollo 9's spectacular success, the head of the U.S. moonflight program said today he still felt strongly American astronauts will need to orbit the moon once more in May before they try to land in July.

Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips said it will be two weeks until the question of whether to fly the moon orbit mission, or whether to go directly from Apollo 9 to a landing attempt, is decided by top officials of the space agency.

Consumer Price Index Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index remained unchanged in February at 122.6 on its new base of 1961 prices equalling 100, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Lower food prices were offset by higher prices in all other sections of the all-items index.

On its old 1949 base, the index remained at January's figure, 158.4.

The index for February last year, on the new base, was 118.2. On the old base, it was 152.7. In percentage terms, the increase for the year is 3.7 per cent, on either the new or the old base.

The bureau said the change in food prices between January and February was mixed, but sufficiently on the down side to cut the food index to 123.9 from 125.1.

All other sections of the general index moved higher. The housing index went up to 122.3 from 121.9 in January, because of higher new house prices, higher insurance premiums, and higher maintenance charges. Rents edged upwards across the country.

The bureau started putting out the consumer price index on the new 1961 base last month, saying the conversion was done arithmetically, with no change in the way the index is compiled as an indicator of family living costs. It is gradually converting most of its other indexes to a 1961 base.

The bureau surveys the retail prices of more than 300 goods and services every month in compiling the index. The 300 items are representative of the purchases of a family of two to six persons, living in cities of over 30,000, and having an annual income which in 1957 ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

Information Withheld?

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Accountant E. Alan Porter, who blew the Commonwealth Trust affair wide open in a letter to the Times last Friday, was uncannily prophetic when he made his alarming reports to the government in 1963.

After checking the audited books of the company at that time, he warned of a dangerous situation developing which "even a layman" could understand.

Just retired as an inspector of trust companies, Porter began telling his superiors in 1963 that Commonwealth:

1. Was in great danger from the "Crux-controlled complex" lurking in the background of its even-then tangled affairs;

2. Was inevitably headed for bankruptcy if its strange policies continued;

3. Had seriously misleading balance sheets;

4. Had almost half its $1 million portfolio of trust money investments in securities held by Canada Trust Company and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as collateral for a mystery-shrouded deal.

This was revealed Wednesday when Premier Bennett tabled in the legislature the adverse reports Porter told the Times he had made in 1963.

"I was taken by surprise to hear the premier tabled them," Porter commented in an interview. "But I'm glad he did.

"Now we'll get down to brass tacks."

But Liberal Leader Pat McGeer failed to get Premier Bennett's permission to make his motion calling for an immediate legislative committee investigation of Porter's statements —now supported by a second civil servant.

And Opposition Leader Robert Strachan this morning said the premier may still be withholding more vital documents from the MLAs because he has not revealed the "whitewash" report which frustrated Porter over the years.

Strachan said:

"The premier again is putting up a facade of being open and above board and making everything available.

"But in turning down the amendment I proposed Monday to have every document tabled, he retained for himself the right to be selective in the information made available.

"He is still being very selective and this is demonstrated in his refusal so far to table the so-called 'whitewash' report which was criticized so strongly by Mr. Porter.

"This also leads me to wonder how many other documents besides the 'whitewash' are being held discretely out of circulation."

Ex-Inspector In Winnipeg

Porter's reports, dated July 5, 1963, and Feb. 3, 1964, were sent to C. A. Perry, then chief trust company inspector who left in 1965 for a post with the Manitoba government.

The second report—16 pages of longhand script elaborating on the points raised in the first and subsequent events—stated that Perry and Porter had discussed the ominous implications of allowing the only provincially-controlled trust company to be locked into a closely-meshed financial group.

Quoting a reply to his queries in which Commonwealth Trust said it allowed its securities to be kept with those of Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. in Canada Trust Company's possession "as these companies were dealing very closely with each other," Porter wrote in his report to Perry:

"This is considered to be a damaging admission on the part of the (Commonwealth) Trust Company, particularly in view of your earlier discussions with the writer (Porter) when we were considering the potential hazards which may be lurking in the background if we allowed a newly-incorporated Trust Company to operate in close proximity and with such interlocking and overlapping interests as would appear to characterize the Crux-controlled complex of companies."

Peterson Named Crux

(Attorney-General Leslie Peterson last month identified A. G. Duncan Crux as the king-pin behind the 50-company Commonwealth group which is under investigation by the RCMP and will be examined also by a royal commission as a result of a series of inter-company transactions and court actions.)

After comparing Commonwealth Trust's balance sheets for May 31 and September 30, 1963, when the company's operations resulted in investments increasing only $34,100, while liabilities were increased $1,191,209, Porter warned Perry:

"It seems to be a reasonably obvious inference that while this condition exists, the company will continue to sustain substantial operating losses, as it is certainly not feasible to expect that the limited earning potential of the present investment portfolio can afford to pay guaranteed interest rates to depositors and certificate holders, and bear the brunt of heavy administrative costs, and provide an adequate net return in the bargain."

While trying to trace the investments Commonwealth Trust made with its depositors' money, Porter discovered that the portfolio included about $300,000 in securities held by Canada Trust Company and $180,000 worth held by Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

No Adequate Explanation

He said he could not get any adequate explanation why these trust monies were held by the other firms, except that they were collateral for an unrevealed purpose and the arrangement had been ordered by Commonwealth Savings Plan, which sold them to Commonwealth Trust.

Porter suggested to Perry that he might consider pressing charges against officials of both Canada Trust and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce for giving him "equivocal" answers to his questions about the arrangement.

(Charles O'Hara, manager of the main Vancouver branch Canada Trust-Huron and Erie, in which the securities were held for Commonwealth Savings Plan, said today: "All I can say is that any report Mr. Porter made to the trust inspector was never given to us. I have no knowledge of any written criticism of Canada Trust actions in handling the account for Commonwealth Savings Plan. We were a depository trustee only and there was no criticism of our conduct of affairs. There was no involvement whatsoever with Commonwealth Trust. If anyone can produce any letter—from any time—containing criticism of our actions, I'd like to see it.")

Porter also traced a sum of $80,839 still owed Commonwealth Savings for the locked-up securities as listed in Commonwealth Trust's balance sheet under the heading of Estates, Trusts and Agencies.

His report "takes strong exception to the presentation accorded the above-mentioned item of $80,839 in the audited balance

Trust Charges Backed

Len Kusch, a provincial government accountant in Vancouver, Wednesday stated he agreed with E. Alan Porter's description of the six-man investigation launched after Porter turned in two adverse reports on the company earlier.

He said he was "shocked" when the report turned in by himself and Porter as part of the six-man group apparently was pigeon-holed at some higher level.

Premier Bennett Wednesday tabled the two early Porter reports in the legislature but not the report of the six-man inquiry which followed them.

(He previously told reporters he never saw any of the reports at the time. Robert Bonner, former attorney-general, has declined all comment.)

Deputy finance minister Gerald Bryson, who supplied the Porter reports to Bennett Wednesday, said in a covering letter that the six-man inquiry was ordered by deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy.

Kennedy last Monday concluded in a memo to Bryson that various Commonwealth investigations in 1964 — including the RCMP — resulted in "nothing uncovered in these investigations to warrant futher action at that time."

'NOTHING HAPPENED'

Kusch, who was one of the six men assigned to investigate Porter's initial adverse reports on Commonwealth Trust in 1963 and 1964, said he was in agreement with Porter's position.

He was referring to Porter's claim the "whitewash" investigation was abortive because it was so poorly organized.

"I agree with him," said Kusch. "We put in a very unfavorable report and yet nothing happened.

"We found many of the irregularities already mentioned in (this week's tabled) reports in the legislature — moving of funds through other companies in the group, excessive mortgages, transfer of securities, all sorts of matters."

He said he endorsed the report he made with Porter and it was passed on to Charles A. Perry, then provincial secretary of trust companies.

WHERE DID IT GO?

"How far up the line it got from there I don't know.

"It could have gone all the way to the minister of finance (Premier Bennett) or it could have stopped at any other level below him.

"I don't know what happened to it," said Kusch.

Two other two-man sections were involved in the investigation but there was no coordination.

"It was frustrating from start to finish," Kusch said.

"I didn't know to whom I should report initially. There was no liaison at all with the others.

Porter and I thought someone should be in charge to co-relate the whole thing but it just never happened."

Kusch said there was little he or Porter could do about

PEARSON TELLS FACTS BEHIND RIVARD, GERDA

PEARSON
. . . to clear record

The secret papers of Lester Pearson explaining his handling of the Rivard, Spencer and Munsinger affairs will be published in The Times in a series of articles by Anthony Westell starting Saturday.

The former prime minister is releasing the papers to clarify the record of his administration.

In particular he is answering the charge that he sacrificed two justice ministers—Guy Favreau and Lucien Cardin—to protect his own reputation.

The Pearson papers deal with:

- Montreal hoodlum Lucien Rivard, who brought about the downfall of Justice Minister Favreau when his friends tried to use bribery in high government levels in an attempt to get him out of jail;
- Vancouver postal worker George Victor Spencer, whose handling by the government after he was caught spying for the Soviet Union produced a storm in Parliament which prompted Justice Minister Cardin to expose the case of;
- German call girl Gerda Munsinger who created potential security problems for the former Conservative government.

Russia an' China seem t' think another li'l brink won't do us any harm.

. . . PORTER'S WARNINGS CAME TRUE

sheet as at May 31, 1963, as this item had nothing at all to do with Estates, Trusts and Agencies.

"It actually represented an unpaid balance due by guaranteed funds to the vendor company on account of securities valued at $310,839 (ostensibly held for accounts of guaranteed trust clients) but to which the Trust Company was denied physical access."

Porter then quoted his query to Commonwealth Trust for the reason it showed the $80,839 under the Estates listing and was informed by the company's secretary J. A. Coles, in a letter dated Oct. 11, 1963, that:

"In the case of Commonwealth Trust Company and Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd., a sale had taken place prior to the year-end and the securities had been placed in trust with the Canada Trust Company pending full payment.

"Partial payment had been made to the extent of $230,000 on $310,000 worth of securities.

"Under the terms of the sale there was an option for Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. to repurchase these securities. As these companies were dealing very closely with each other, it was decided that the securities should be kept in trust by Canada Trust for the account of both companies as their interests would appear.

"For balance sheet presentation it was felt that if we had included the securities for a total value of $310,000 in the guaranteed fund section and showed a liability of $80,000 it would be an overstatement of our assets and liabilities.

"The cleanest way in which we could show the transaction was to include the amounts paid for, in the guaranteed section, and show the remaining amount being some $80,000, as securities held in trust, with the corresponding amount shown as due to the trust.

"The form of presentation of the aforementioned in our financial statement was arrived at after due discussion with our auditors and was the only one we felt was correct."

Bookkeeper and Auditor

(Commonwealth Trust's auditor was the firm of Gunderson, Stokes and Walton, headed by Einar Gunderson, the former B.C. finance minister. The federal Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation included as a condition for its coverage in 1967 the requirement that the Gunderson firm stop acting as both bookkeeper and auditor for the trust company.)

Commenting on Commonwealth's reply, Porter first revealed the worries about the "Crux-controlled complex" lurking in the background, and then dealt with the auditors' methods of presenting the $80,839.

"The writer (Porter) can only express his complete astonishment with the views set forth and also record his inability to accept same as constituting a reasonable argument in support of Mr. Coles' contention."

He also underlined his note to Perry "no explanation provided."

Porter also traced two separate arrangements under which $74,000 and "at least, a further $105,000" of Commonwealth Trust's portfolio of "guaranteed trust funds was pledged as collateral to Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as at June 21, 1963."

(Gunderson was a director of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce until the following year when, Premier Bennett announced, he had taken the job of heading the provisional board of directors for the Bank of B.C. the government was promoting.)

Porter said Coles' explanation of the discussion with the auditors on reporting procedures "in my opinion . . . betrays a monumental ignorance of the requirements of Section 52 of the Trust Companies Act relative to 25 per cent holding of cash and Government of Canada securities.

"It also indicates what, in my opinion, would appear to be an inherent weakness in the act itself in not imposing stricter financial requirements on those who apply for provincial incorporation and subsequent registration."

Porter informed Perry that he had not obtained satisfactory answers from Canada Trust or the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce when he asked them why they had physical possession of various Commonwealth Trust securities as collateral.

'Open To Sharp Criticism'

"In my opinion," Porter wrote, "the very weak certificate furnished by Mr. K. L. Sutherland of Canada Trust Company is open to sharp criticism, as the writer requested a firm statement as to the fact that the subject bonds were definitely unemcumbered.

"In view of subsequent developments disclosed by Mr. Hunter's (a Vancouver member of the government's trust company inspection office) visit to Canada Trust Company, it is felt that the aforementioned official laid himself open to what might be considered serious charges if you wish to prefer same," Porter advised Perry.

His report continued with a smiliar opinion of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce's responses to his queries, which he said "furnished a very indefinite and what the writer considers to be non-committal confirmation regarding hypothecation of the aforementioned securities.

"In other words, just as Mr. Sutherland of Canada Trust Company . . . was guilty of an equivocal statement, in this writer's opinion, so could the above-mentioned bank be criticized for their failure to mention specific details underlying the lodgment of this collateral security."

Porter also made special note—in his first report in 1963 to Perry—that the auditor's report of June 8, 1963, substantiates records of cash on deposit and guaranteed liabilities "at the request of the (Commonwealth Trust) management."

Nor had the auditors confirmed by direct correspondence various deposits, savings and investment certificates mentioned in their report, again at the management's request.

In his hand-written report, he also referred to his first warnings that the auditors had relayed the information that Commonwealth Trust had assumed management of six associated companies which have figured prominently in news reports of the current crisis.

Porter listed these companies linked directly to Commonwealth Trust as: Commonwealth Investors Syndicate; Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd.; Evergreen Estates; Fraser Valley Holdings; Diversified Income Securities, and Victory Memorial Gardens Ltd.

Then he noted for Perry's benefit:

"This reference is made only to emphasize the vulnerability of the company's trust position which, in the writer's opinion, can be definitely assailed in view of the submissions already made."

Porter also expressed grave suspicions about Commonwealth Trust's 1963 request—which ultimately was granted over his objections—for authorization to boost its capitalization from $1 million to $5 million.

Only Few Shares Issued

He pointed out that since Commonwealth Trust had only issued $300,200 worth of its original $1 million authorization, the "requested increase of $4 million must necessarily relate to shares of another class . . ."

However, he reminded Perry, "your letter of approval issued to the Registrar under date of July 4, 1963, makes no mention of any distinction in the type of stock authorized to be issued . . ."

Later, Porter pointed out that despite the permitted capitalization increase, it "appears from a routine scrutiny of the Commonwealth Trust Company's (Sept. 30, 1963) balance sheet that only $372,850 had been received to that date on account of paid-up capital."

He also advised Perry that $200,000 of the paid-up shares were deposited with the government under legislation and an operating loss of $108,000 further reduced the company's free working capital to "approximately $60,000 or $65,000 as at Sept. 30, 1963."

(This occurred while the company's liabilities mushroomed and its investments increased by only a trickle, as previously reported.)

Porter completed his reports to Perry with a paragraph that is tragically ironic in retrospect.

"It is felt that this report furnishes sufficient material to give even a layman serious food for thought and, with this in mind, the writer is mailing same special delivery . . ."

CBC Reviewing Code of Ethics

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC is reviewing its policy directives on ethical programming, CBC President George Davidson told the Senate national finance committee today.

He said the first of the revised directives will be considered at the next meeting of the publicly-owned corporation's board of directors. The meeting will be held soon.

All other policy papers governing such questions as good taste and violence content will be successively revised, he said.

Under questioning, he acknowledged that it should have been possible to eliminate entirely beforehand a recent interview involving panellist Gordon Sinclair on the television show Front Page Challenge.

Mr. Sinclair asked Vancouver swimmer Elaine Tanner on the program about the difficulties of swimming during menstrual periods.

Mr. Davidson said the corporation's good-taste policy is applicable to all programs. And it should have caught that one before the taped show went on the air.

The CBC president had previously called the interview a deplorable lapse of good taste.

Mr. Davidson said a review of violence in U.S. programs used or contemplated for use on the CBC had led to the dropping of such shows as Hogan's Heroes and High Chapparall.

A number of new U.S. programs had not been picked up in the first place because they were too violent.

The main problems with television violence come from U.S. imports, not Canadian-produced programs, he said.

Mr. Davidson said the CBC ethics directives apply to U.S. programs as well as Canadian. But the CBC didn't censor U.S. programs. It would not take them in the first place if they violated the policy directives.

. . . APOLLO 9

Apollo 9 was a space mission with two distinct faces.

During five action-packed days at the start the pilots proved the flight worthiness of the lunar module, or LEM, including a tricky rendezvous and a space walk by Schweickart.

The last five days were leisurely as McDivitt, Scott and Schweickart stayed aloft to prove the durability of the command ship.

As a result, Apollo 9 is the last manned earth orbit flight planned by the United States until late 1971, when a small three-man space station will be launched. The entire U.S. effort until then will be devoted to moon orbit and moon landing missions.

From liftoff to splashdown, the Apollo 9 mission lasted 10 days one hour 53 seconds. It was extended an extra orbit—97 minutes—to avoid a landing in storm-tossed seas in the original splashdown area southwest of Bermuda.

the Commonwealth situation.

"It would have meant going over somebody's head.

"There are channels to follow in the civil service and we had had our fingers slapped before," Kuseh said.

He said he was astounded when the government allowed the compnay to split its $100-per-share stock to $10 units, breaking the special tradition for trust companies intended to keep them aloof from any suggestion of specualtion.

WON'T SAY ANYTHING

Meanwhile, Perry has declined to say whether he passed on the unfavorable report he received from two investigators checking Commonwealth Trust Company's financial dealings.

Perry is now an assistant deputy treasurer of the Manitoba government.

In an interview from Winnipeg, he refused to say what happened to the report after he received it. He said he was still bound by Sec. 76 of the B.C. Trust Companies Act which prohibits civil servants from disclosing confidential information.

The Kennedy-Bryson memo of recollections was pinned to the back of Perry's official 1964 annual report of trust company inspections which did not mention Commonwealth at all.

Last weekend, according to a Vancouver newspaper, Perry said he could not recall the six-man investigation at all.

Wednesday night he was reported as endorsing the Kennedy memo which confirmed the investigation was launched but he said he could not say why it appears there was no co-ordinated final report on it.

Asked about his own indications before leaving B.C. that he was "deeply concerndd" about Commonwealth Trust's position, Perry said:

"An analysis of all the documents will answer your questions but I don't have the power to make the facts available."

He added that he has been away from B.C. for three years "and one's memory gets a little hazy."

Committee Efficiency Described At Meet

Mrs. W. A. Ludlow spoke on Getting the Most Out of Committees at a meeting of the parliamentary study group of Victoria in Knox Presbyterian Church, Tuesday.

"A committee chairman should be well prepared ahead of time with an agenda and each committee member should be given a specific job to do," she said.

Meetings are held on the second Tuesday of the month. Interested persons should contact Mrs. J. J. Wiart, president, at 592-4443.

Chinese Marchers Block Russ Embassy

PEKING (AFP) — Wave after wave of Chinese demonstrators swept up to the Soviet Embassy today as the embassy staff began to settle down for a long siege.

Peking Radio monitored in Hong Kong said Chinese troops and frontier guards along the Sino-Mongolian border are on full alert following the Chinese-Soviet border clash of March 2.

The radio has frequently charged that Soviet troops were massed along the Sino-Mongolian border.

Each wave of demonstrators consisting of tens of thousands of persons, rushed up to within a sort of invisible line 10 yards from the embassy gate, remained there for about half an hour, then trotted off to make way for the next group which invariably arrived about 10 minutes later.

The New China news agency said more than 400,000,000 Chinese throughout the country have taken part in anti-Soviet demonstrations during the last two weeks.

For observers, the mobilization of these enormous, perfectly disciplined masses, under the control of the Liberation Army, constituted an impressive demonstration in a China emerging from the Cultural Revolution.

Warnings Deadlock Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — The United States and South Vietnamese delegations bitterly assailed Viet Cong terror tactics in South Vietnam at the Paris peace talks today. The Viet Cong warned the Americans against taking any "appropriate response."

A new round of accusations at the eighth weekly session of the enlarged talks made clear that the deadlock was as hard as ever.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge denounced the other side for attacks in South Vietnam seeking "to terrorize the civilian population into submission."

South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam accused the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese of plans to expand the war, "seriously threatening peace in the Indochinese Peninsula, Southeast Asia and in the whole world."

Tran Buu Kiem of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front warned the Americans against taking the "appropriate response" to the current Viet Cong offensive which President Nixon had threatened.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

It is thought that man's sense of the passing of time is based upon the speed of chemical reactions within his body's systems. If you come down with influenza, for example, and suffer from high fever, your ability to estimate time may be distorted.

The higher the temperature, the more your body's systems are affected and you will measure time faster than you would at a lower and normal temperature. You may count 60 seconds in your mind, but it may likely be no more than 40 or 50 seconds of actual time.

When the weather is terribly cold or terribly hot, your sense of time may be affected to a small degree, no matter how healthy you may be, because even though your body's internal temperature is maintained under normal conditons at a virtually uniform rate, it must work harder to combat the extreme outside temperature. It is best to depend on your watch to count out a true 60-minute hour — in any kind of weather.

Burn-The-Constitution Movie Looks Good to Conservatives

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — An emotionally dramatic film demanding special status for Quebec gave delegates to the Progressive Conservative association annual meeting in Ottawa Wednesday a sample of their controversial constitutional policy, as it sounded in Quebec.

The film, shown between rounds of voting at the final session of the meeting, asserted the right of Quebec to complete mastery of its own territory, insisted the province have a special status, and said the present Canadian constitution should be burned and scattered to the four winds.

Since the June election Conservatives have insisted that their "two-nations" policy was distorted by their political opponents.

Party leader Robert Stanfield revealed the intensity of this feeling at his major speech on the opening day of the meeting Monday when he said his stand had been distorted by "our enemies."

But the film shown Wednesday afternoon was prepared by a Conservative candidate, Paul O. Trepanier, mayor of Granby, Quebec, Conservative candidate in the riding of Shefford in 1968.

The film did not receive any endorsement from the party annual meeting at which it was shown.

TIME TO KILL

Trepanier had simply brought it along, there was time to kill, and Trepanier had just been elected — he was the only candidate — French-speaking vice-president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, he was permitted to show it.

As Trepanier, an imaginative architect who is the mayor of his city of Grancy and the designer of a monkey house for the Granby zoo, smiled inscrutably in the semi-darkness of the Chateau Laurier ballroom, a Maltese cross medallion decorating his navy blue turtleneck, his hair combed forward over what used to be a Wilfrid Laurier hairline, his voice boomed from the tape recording that he had matched to a series of color slides to make his campaign film.

ABSOLUTE MASTERY

"It should be blown up, the damned constitution . . ." said Trepanier's recorded voice. "French-Canadians should have "absolute mastery of their own territory." . . .

"Every French-Canadian in Ottawa should commit himself to burn the old constitution and scatter its ashes to the four winds of the past." . . . "Quebec has a right to its special status."

It all ended with a renewed call to crusade for the special status, as the music pounded upward into a crescendo" for ourselves . . , our children . . . and our granchildren."

When it was over the 160-odd people in the ballroom applauded gratefully. It had been in French, and not many could understand the words, but the color slides had been charming and the music catchy and it had killed the time until the votes for regional vice-president had been counted.

Few of the Conservative delegates present appeared aware that what they had just applauded was the source of one of the quotations Trudeau had used most effectively against their constitutional policy during the campaign.

BURN CONSTITUTION

This was the call to "burn the old constitution and scatter its ashes to the four winds of the past," which got into the newspapers outside Quebec after Trepanier furnished a text of the film soundtrack to a reporter at the inaugural showing of his campaign film in his home town of Granby.

Trepanier was not one of the most nationalistic of Quebec Conservatives in the 1968 campaign. But he was one of the more articulate. And he put his slogans onto recording and mimeographed text.

Prime Minister Trudeau had only to quote them word for word, and Trepanier had his tape recording there on Wednesday to show his fellow Conservatives that not all their tears, or shouts of "distoritions," could wash out a word of it.

Tories Unite on Anti-Trudeau Stance

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — After three days of basic groundwork, 1,000 Progressive Conservative delegates went home Wednesday with a new president—a Newfoundlander—and repeated predictions that they can win the next federal election.

"It was a very, very valuable meeting," said Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough), whose committee on the constitution saw most of its recommendations adopted. "It's not the type of thing that excites the public, but it makes a great difference to the party."

On the final day Frank Moores, 36, a wealthy Newfoundland businessman, won the presidency over two rivals—Dr. Lewis Brand, a Saskatchewan physician, and Heward Grafftey of Knowlton, Que., both former MPs.

While the figures were not announced, it was understood that Mr. Moores received 352 votes, Mr. Grafftey 187, and Dr. Brand 112.

Mr. Moores, MP for the Newfoundland riding of Bonavista-trinity-Conception, succeeds Dalton Camp who resigned last year. Mr. Camp was credited with master-minding the campaign that brought the party leadership to Robert L. Stanfield in September, 1967.

Mr. Moores, who told the delegates that a president is only effective if he can marshal the forces of the party, vowed to help "plow under" Prime Minister Trudeau, whom he described as a "Trojan horse within the walls" of the Liberal party.

OUTLINES PRIORITIES

He said he would retain another assistant to help with his constituency affairs so he could devote "all of my energies" to organizing things at the party's national headquarters. One of his first priorities would be to encourage a "sustained supply of funds—because without funds, the party cannot be built."

Apart from an early charge by Dr. Brand that the "power-brokers of the party" were trying to centralize control of the entire operation, there was little heat in the presidential campaign.

Dr. Brand had suggested Monday that Mr. Moores was the choice of these unidentified power brokers, but he gave the Newfoundlander warm support after the results were announced.

Except for his brief flurry of electioneering, the convention spent most of the time hammering away at the constitution. By a vote of 317 to 235, the meeting adopted a method of leadership review, proposed by Jack Horner, MP for Crowfoot.

Under this method there will be a leadership review after a federal election, but not if the party increased their Commons standing by more than 20 per cent. However, if the party were in power there would be no such review unless the leader lost the confidence of the parliamentary caucus.

Mr. Stanfield has said he will accept any method of leadership assessment adopted by the meeting.

It was also decided to hold a policy convention before the end of October this year, when policy resolutions would be prepared and machinery established for continuous reviews.

Saigon Protests Attack on Hospital

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Vietnam complained to the International Control Commission about a "barbarous and blind" attack by North Vietnamese troops on a Canadian-run tuberculosis hospital in northern Quang Ngai city.

The protest note, dated March 10 but released Wednesday said guerrillas wounded a patient and badly damaged the ground floor with grenades and explosives in the raid nearly three weeks ago.

"The attack was one of the most typical criminal actions showing the North Vietnam troops were so barbarous and blind to attack the civilian organizations serving merely for education, medical and social purposes," the note said.

The hospital is financed by the Canadian government which with Poland and India makes up the ICC, charged with overseeing the 1954 Geneva agreement ending the Indochina war.

Dear Mr. Smith:
It is not clear from your letter whether you represent management or labour. Either way, however, DBS information is widely used to analyze wage and salary levels and, in many cases, for escalation clauses in wage agreements in accordance with the movement of wages and salary levels and of prices as measured by DBS.
DBS records and publishes monthly wage and salary information by industries and by regions and selected cities of Canada which provides trends of wage and salary levels. The Department of Labour in Ottawa can supply wage-rate information for specific occupations and other data.
We'd be pleased to include you as a regular subscriber to our reports on employment and prices, if you wish. Sample copies of these and related publications are enclosed.

DBS information can help you make profitable business decisions.
No matter what you sell or how big, or small, your business is, DBS statistics can help you define the size of your market, your share of the market and its growth prospects . . . make comparisons of your own operating results, costs and profits with those of your business or industry as a whole . . . analyze product trends, prices and wages . . . indicate import competition and export opportunities . . . help determine where best to locate that new plant, new store or new branch—and much more. Food for Thought

THE CONDUCT OF THE GOVernment's investigation of Commonwealth Trust Company affairs, undertaken in 1964, which a provincial trust company inspector, Mr. E. Alan Porter, has described as "window dressing," appears to be even more inexplicable in the light of Mr. Porter's earlier reports on the affairs of the company.

Now tabled by Mr. Bennett, the inspector's urgent comments and acute criticisms of the "condition of the trust company's financial affairs," written in 1963 and 1964, should have rung warning bells at the cabinet level of the government which had chartered the trust company and sponsored insurance of its depositors by the federal insurance agency.

But apparently a superficial and ineffectual study by government appointees was considered a sufficient answer. This creates a most questionable situation in regard to the provincial government's position on the whole Commonwealth case, and calls for public debate and clarification without delay.

It is obvious that the government must not let the matter stand as at present and refuse to call a penetrating legislative study of the Commonwealth mess. Mr. Porter, on the eve of his retirement, tried to make sure that his professional position and that of the other civil servants involved in reports and recommendations regarding Commonwealth would be protected for the record. A similar action still remains to be taken by the government. The onus is still on Mr. Bennett and his ministers, past and present, to explain the government's apparent disregard of the statements of its advisers and its own lack of action in the face of an evolving situation whose dangers, in the words of Mr. Porter's report, produced "sufficient material to give even a layman serious food for thought."

The many laymen who are taxpayers and voters of British Columbia are now viewing the Commonwealth debacle in this light. The next move is certainly up to the Social Credit government.

A Useful Combination

DISCUSSION IN THE COMMONS the other day indicated the practical value of having brought under one minister, Mr. Jack Davis, the federal departments of fisheries and forestry. This is an area of considerable concern in British Columbia where disputes, notably over the provincially approved log drive conducted on the Stellako River, brought sharp criticism from federal fisheries authorities.

At the time of the controversy, federal fisheries experts were limited in their position by the fact that they were dealing with an industry and resource completely separated from forestry. Now the minister in charge will be in a position to draw on experts in both fields to assist him in cases where disagreement occurs.

Mr. Davis has indicated his confidence that such issues can and ll be handled co-operatively betw Ottawa and Victoria, and he looks forward to discussions with Mr. Ray Williston, provincial minister of resources, on problems of joint resource development, "like river drives, as floating logs can interfere with the salmon resource, and the efficient operation of the forest industry in river systems which are also vital to our fishery."

The federal combination of the two departments assumes further significance in view of current concern over water pollution. Mr. Davis has mentioned proposals for a new pulp mill in the vicinity of Ashcroft which could have very serious long-term effects on one of Canada's important fisheries if satisfatory arrangements were not made between the federal and provincial authorities to avoid contamination inimical to the salmon.

The combination of fisheries and forestry affairs under one federal minister will not, of course, eliminate all conflicts in the field between the respective departments here and in Ottawa. It should, however, strengthen the position of the federal minister. He will no longer carry the role of a defender of fisheries against forestry interests, but as a competent minister with an obligation to work for the co-operative welfare of both and the resources on which they depend.

Sunday Sport

IT IS ENCOURAGING TO FIND the provincial government preparing to extend to other municipalities the jurisdiction over paid Sunday sports which Vancouver enjoys by reason of its private charter. The move has been a long time coming, despite the urging of municipal bodies. Mayor Hugh Stephen placed the issue in perspective in his outline of probable Victoria plans once the required Municipal Act amendment is carried.

He anticipates a plebiscite on the issue, perhaps at the December civic elections, after city council has considered the jurisdiction the amendment grants it. The plebiscite would require a three-fifths majority to carry. The local option element in decision-forming is important. In this community are people who, for religious or moral reasons, object to paid sport or entertainment on Sunday afternoons. There are, on the other hand, many who would welcome such a relaxation of laws to increase the recreational potential of the day. Both should be consulted and the wishes of the majority of voters should determine council action.

A case may be made against Sunday sport and entertainment. No case can be made for withholding from municipalities the right to make their own decisions under provisions comparable to those extended to Vancouver. The government will take a commendable step in referring the issue to voters at the municipal level.

Recognizing Negro Culture

SEVERAL DEVELOPMENTS IN the adoption by United States universities of programs in black studies bring a note of optimism into the too-frequent discord of demands that more recognition be given to Negro culture and history in higher education. Three major universities, Yale, Harvard and Minnesota, have established degree programs in Afro-American studies and five more have announced plans to follow suit.

In some instances, the studies are conducted separately from existing courses. In others, they are combined to furnish a co-relationship between the Negro and non-Negro in areas of history, literature and other fields. Significantly, a high percentage enrolment of white students has been reported—a trend which may be expected to continue as the courses are extended and more become available.

Here, as recognized by Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, is an effective integrating process offsetting the segregating influence that would arise if such studies were restricted to black universities alone.

FROM TORONTO — By HAROLD GREER

Ontario Universities See Austerity Ahead

FOR the first time in seven years, the Ontario government has slashed the spending programs of the 14 provincially-assisted universities. The cut-backs appear to be of the order of $80 millions, the great bulk of it in capital construction to meet the expected demand for university places in five years time. Exclusive of the medical schools expansion program, the universities wanted some $175 millions in loans in the coming fiscal year for new buildings and equipment, they are getting $100 millions, or about 43 per cent less.

Greer

Provincial grants for operating expenses have also been reduced by about $5 millions below the universities' submissions, and the unit value on which the grants are based has been increased by only 5.5 per cent, compared to increases of 10 and 15 per cent in the past two years. This will leave very little, after cost-of-living increases are accounted for, for improvements in academic quality — an ingredient which the operating grants formula is supposed to contain.

This is the first time the government has said no to the universities in any significant way since the policy of provincial support began seven years ago, and the government is not exactly broadcasting the fact. The recent budget, for example, contains the statement that increased capital aid to the universities is one of the areas hit by the current austerity program, but no indication of the size of the cuts is given and the spending estimates for 1969-70 would suggest that the provincial treasury continues to be the source from which all university blessings flow.

Misleading Figures

Thus, the estimates provide for $320 millions in university operating grants, which is 28 per cent higher than last year's estimated requirements and about 20 per cent higher than the $267 millions actually spent in the fiscal year now closing. On the capital side, loans from the Ontario Universities Capital Aid Corporation are given at $170 millions only some $5 millions below the amount advanced in the current year.

But the Ontario budget is a Chinese maze which does not easily disclose its secrets, and these figures by themselves are highly misleading. The capital loan figure, for example, includes advances to the community colleges, which come under the Department of Education rather than University Affairs, and there is no breakdown on what is going where.

So far there have been no outcries from the universities or dire predictions that the cutbacks will mean some of the 137,371 students expected in 1974-75 will have to be turned away.

And it is quite possible there will not be any, because the Department of University Affairs, aware that an economy wave was coming, has been working day and night for the past two months on an interim capital aid formula for allocating whatever money was available as fairly and as objectively as possible. This, the Government hopes, will effectively defuse any complaint that it is playing favorites or generally ignoring the needs of higher education.

Academic Freedom Safe

The capital aid formula is roughly similar, although considerably more complicated, than the formula which has been worked out for operating grants and which, it would seem, has removed the fears the universities had that their dependency on government money would lead to government interference with academic freedom.

Will there be a serious shortage of university places? Officials think not: it all depends on what the Government does next year. Certainly there is going to be much over-utilization of available space in some institutions — using laboratories for lecture rooms, and so on — but in the long run, the Department of University Affairs is confident the five-year space goals will be met.

On a five-year basis, the Department estimates the capital spending of the universities, including current commitments, at about $500 millions or $100 millions a year. The fact that the government has accepted this figure for the coming fiscal year is an indication, it is said, that all will be well.

The universities, it seems clear, are not so sure. The Committee of Presidents has already complained privately that the space and cost standards in the capital financing formula are too low, and departmental officials admit that their five-year estimate of $500 millions is only a crude first attempt to assess the need. The prospect, therefore, is for higher rather than lower projections and for a shortfall in university programs if the government's current austerity program continues.

FROM RAWALPINDI — By C. L. SULZBERGER

The Strong Man Crumbles in Pakistan

"HISTORY would never have forgiven us if the present chaotic conditions were allowed to go any further." With these words Pakistan's leading soldier, Ayub Khan, seized political power in October 1958. Today almost the same words are being used by the contestants struggling to succeed him.

Sulzberger

Ayub, now President and for over a decade virtual dictator of the world's sixth largest country, is still Chief of State—but only in a lame duck capacity. Last month, after a wave of riots and strikes that reached near-revolutionary proportions, he announced his intention of stepping down when his term expires in a year. There is a probability that he will be shunted aside before then.

Students discontented with injustice, intellectuals angry with restricted freedom, businessmen irked by corruption, East Pakistanis jealous of the favored West, have all been spurred by a rising chorus of political leaders to manifest dissatisfaction with Ayub's regime. Perhaps two years ago the patriotic, self-confident and high-handed field marshal might have fought back successfully but that time seems irreparably gone.

In 1968 Ayub was seriuosly ill with an embolism which may have sapped vigor from his massive frame. He still negotiates frantically with those who would accelerate his departure, but the chances that he will triumph seem slim.

Pakistan and the world had become used to the success of Ayub's authoritarian rule which, with its cult of personality, censorship and intolerance of opposition, had nevertheless accomplished much. The gross national product grew 55 per cent in the decade since his take-over. Food production gained enormously as millions of acres were irrigated, but statistical benefits were not evenly shared.

Wealth Held By Few

The populous but constricted East continued to fester with resentment at the West a thousand miles away across enemy India. Some twenty families managed to retain a major share of the national wealth. While the President's name remained unblemished, friends, associates and even members of his family were accused of malfeasance and incompetence.

It remained only for a catalyst to stimulate latent opposition and summon its momentum against the regime. That catalyst was the voice of university students in Pakistan's principal cities. Deliberately incited by former Foreign Minister Bhutto, a brilliant orator if neither impressively, consistent nor famed for scruples, the students began to turn small demonstrations into big riots. They attracted support from workers' unions and professional guilds and in the end almost paralyzed the country.

There are obvious comparisons between Ayub and de Gaulle. Ayub claims the parliamentary system that preceded his "Presidential" rule had proved itself inadequate and that Pakistan, when he took over, was on the verge of "political chaos and economic ruin." De Gaulle had contempt for the Fourth Republic, mired in Algeria.

Ayub wrote of Pakistan in his memoirs as "my passion, my life." De Gaulle described France as "the princess in a fairy tale." Ayub talked of the "political vaudeville" he superseded and scrapped its Constitution as de Gaulle had instituted that of his own Fifth Republic.

But there the comparison ceases. De Gaulle had been a national symbol and a military intellectual, a great literary stylist from a cultivated, ancient family. Ayub was a bugler's son who received a Sandhurst education and commanded a battalion for the British raj in Burma, but never achieved renown before he grabbed it.

His only mystique was common sense and a firm soldier's hand. Despite a slavish propaganda ministry studded with incompetents, he never created a real popular base. He limited voting to a kind of echo-franchise in an electoral college of 80,000 minor officials who proved subject to coercion and corruption.

Demand Change

When the veneer of prosperity and stability broke in France last spring, de Gaulle was able to prevent the crack from exposing the nation's inner fiber. Ayub has not shown either the energy or the skill to duplicate this feat. Freedom shrieked through the fissures in Pakistan's artificial varnished surface. A press now unbridled and political leaders no longer cowed demanded fundamental change and a return to parliamentary methods.

Legally Ayub remains boss, but his government and his image are swiftly disintegrating. The political lame duck seems fated to become a dead duck. One-man rule, after all, looks rediculous when stripped of the clothing of authority. Lord Acton wrote: "Great men are almost always bad men." Ayub is certainly not bad, but today he is also being exposed as also certainly not great.

Looking Back

From the Times, March 13, 1909

Tenders are being called for the erection of a five-storey and basement block at the corner of Broad and Fort Street for Hon. William Templeman. The property was formerly occupied by the Bee Hive Saloon.

The ground floor of the new building will be occupied by the Times Printing and Publishing Co., and basement used as a press room. The editorial and mechanical departments will be on the third and fourth floor.

Car Testing

I heartily commend, as a public service, Pete Loudon's article on car testing. He has brought to notice another bureaucratic flop. Two points seem important:

1. It is the careful drivers who are having their cars inspected.

2: The basis on which renewal is required is all wrong. Gas, oil, repairs, etc. are renewed on the basis of miles driven, not time elasped. So should safety checks. There are many drivers here whose mileage does not exceed 2,000 per year. For them to have to bring their cars for inspection even once a year is unfair. It amounts to a discriminatory tax and serves no useful purpose. — W. H. Crookes, 110 Douglas St.

Sex, Rape, Murder

I feel I must come to the defence of our wonderful Victoria Daily Times by answering the Rev. Dr. J. B. Rowell, who condemned the Times for its immoral article of February 27.

I have been a student of Christian divinity for 65 years, therefore I consider myself fairly well versed therein.

Each Sunday, upon the lectern of every Christian edifice for divine worship, there is the open-wide Bible of Christianity, which contains more instances of obvious sex, rape, murder and stealth, than any other book ever compiled. — Ex-Sunday School Teacher.

For the Record

A report on a meeting of the Victoria branch of the Federalists of Canada held on February 20 attributes to me, perhaps for brevity's sake, a number of statements which were made by other members of the discussion group. I object in particular to a context which has me serving on the British Control Commission for Germany, which was the high policy-making body, whereas I mentioned in passing that I had served with the Control Commission, which indicates a lower order of official.

It was also never stated by me that the planes and weapons Canada has in Germany are second rate. This is not my belief. It was some other member who said that planes and weapons soon became obsolete, had forever to be replaced and he objected to the cost of it all.

My opinion was and is that Canadian Forces would give as good an account of themselves as any others, perhaps better, but that this would make little difference once nuclear weapons are resorted to, which, it is now held, would have to be done within 48 hours.

After your reporter left, a show of hands indicated that the approximately 50 people present unanimously favored Canada's departure from NATO.—R. A. Williams, 3140 Campion.

Supporting Oak Bay Action

I, and many other residents of Oak Bay, would like Mayor Hawes and his council to know that we approve entirely of their decision in granting permission for development of the new apartment next to the White House.

Oak Bay has many older people who are more suited to apartment living and who, as in my own case, have owned property and paid taxes for many years in Oak Bay. When we move into an apartment it makes a house available for another family to move into Oak Bay, and I cannot agree that we should be required to move to some remote area simply because Oak Bay has not allowed sufficient development of good apartments.

I say good apartments because we do not want some of the badly designed, cheaply constructed buildings that have appeared in other parts of the city. The policy of the council has been one of good development in Oak Bay and this is as it should be, since it provides the kind of living accommodation that many people want, and at the same time provides much needed tax revenue to meet the ever-increasing cost burden that all municipalities must face today.—W. F. Munro, 1178 Beach Drive.

Sweden Tries New Ideas In Schools

By E. MICHAEL SALZER
UNESCO Features

"Operation Well-being and Enjoyment," sparked-off last autumn by Sweden's National Board of Education, aims to solve some of the more troublesome classroom problems in Swedish schools.

Contradicting the traditional belief that bad discipline in schools is merely the pupils' fault, Hans Lowbeer, the director-general of the board, admitted there are causes on both sides of the master's desk: "Bad teaching methods and unsuitable teachers are just as often to blame."

Some new ideas, designed to promote a better atmosphere in the class-room, are to be introduced shortly in all-out effort to overcome disciplinary problems.

Teachers, parents, janitors, administrative personnel and pupils are all to be represented on a "School co-operative Council," which will be able to call on a service group of professional consultants (educationists, psychologists and sociologists operating independently from school authorities), to investigate disciplinary difficulties and recommend counter-measures.

"School hostesses" have been introduced to receive visitors and help pupils on personal matters. When necessary, they can replace absent teachers by conducting "pre-fabricated courses" with audio-visual aids.

In this way, it is hoped to overcome some of the disciplinary troubles in the wake of short-time deputies called in from outside and often unable to cope with "strange" classes.

Help Set Routine

An instructive folder on "How to improve the school milieu", based on research in some experimental schools, recommends closer co-operation with the pupils, inviting them to take part in setting up instruction routine and to comment on their school books.

The change from the selective to the elective school system (offering each pupil a choice to enable him to shape his studies according to his abilities and interests), has resulted (not unexpectedly) in a series of difficulties.

Spurred by the undue ambitions of their parents, too many youngsters have picked the theoretical sector of the continuation schools after their obligatory nine-year comprehensive training.

In some cases as many as 83 per cent of the ninth (and last) grade opted for the 'Gymnasium'. Only a few decided for vocational training and fewer still were prepared to start working as apprentices.

This resulted in bottle-necks at nearly all continuation schools, and many disappointments. More attention will be devoted in future to all sorts of practical training to stimulate interest in the wide range of careers available.

The watchword is: "Schools for Life". All pupils, boys and girls, should be equally prepared to face the demands of everyday life. No helpless bachelors or grass-widows in future!

Cooking, baking, dish-washing, ironing and handling vacuum-cleaners and laundering machines are on the regular curriculum for all boys and girls for 3 hours weekly throughout the 7th grade (13-14 years).

Girls learn to change electric fuses and repair household gadgets. Every school has a "model home" where the youngsters learn to choose and handle furniture, mats and bed-clothes, to match colors and pick the right materials and decorations.

Girls Learn Trade

The schools' metal and carpentry work-shops attract more and more girls, who are increasingly interested by careers in the engineering and building trades.

Many boys attend "textile courses" to learn sewing and mending. In motor work-shops they repair their own bicycles, dismantle and assemble car engines, mend radio sets and electrical equipment.

Twice yearly in the two last grades of the comprehensive school, pupils are offered a choice of some 40 different possibilities for preparatory vocational training and spend two-week periods as apprentices in workshops, factories, offices, shops, theatres, film studios, etc.

Some novel forms of pre-vocational training have been pioneered by Mariekall School in Sodertalje, near Stockholm. Arithmetic is taught in fully equipped grocery and hardware stores in the school's own "shopping street".

On "shopping rounds" they learn to buy and sell, to handle cash registers and scales, to keep accounts and incidentally—by checking the regular prices — also appreciate their mother's housekeeping budget.

Retailers Help

Dummies and samples in the shops are picked and priced by the Swedish Retail Association, whose aim is to make the "customers and salesmen of tomorrow quality-, price- and design-conscious".

The main object of these practical aids is to promote self-assurance, efficiency and a better appreciation for the human problems on both sides of the counter. And the experiment adds an extra dimension to schooling which most pupils who have experienced it would be sorry to lose.

An Unhappy Russian Warns the West: Don't Pin Your Hopes on Evolution

By ANATOLE SHUB

MOSCOW — "You Americans," a Soviet dissident remarked recently, "are still as naive about the future of this country as you were in the days when Roosevelt thought he could charm Stalin.

"Of course, Stalin and Khrushchev taught you a few lessons — but you still have the faith that somehow everything is bound to get better, everything's going to come out all right.

"Now the fashionable theory is that our country is going through an evolution which will end up peacefully in some kind of Yugoslav or Dubcek type of Communism.

"You think that even if Brezhnev is pretty hopeless, Shelepin will be better, and the one after him — let's say Petrov or Ivanov — will be still better. That would be nice to believe, but it shows that you simply do not understand our system.

"If you want to think about evolution, you should reflect on the process of natural selection by which our leaders emerge. I am talking now about the political leaders, not about the scientists or economists or diplomats whom you find civilized and hopeful rightly so, too, in many cases.

"But people like Brezhnev, Kirilenko and Shelest are not like Academician Sakharov or Professor Liberman or Ambassador Dobrynin. They come out of a different school, they've climbed a different ladder.

"How does someone get involved in Communist Party work here in the first place? It happens, usually somewhere toward the end of secondary school or early in university or technical school.

"Our brightest youngsters — and this has been true for 30 years or more — go into science. A few others, maybe, go into foreign languages or something else that might give them a chance of travelling abroad.

"So you get a young man who is not particularly talented in any academic discipline, or who is not especially interested in any specialty — but who does not want to live the hard life of a worker, doctor, teacher or factory technician.

"This is the fellow who will gravitate, in his late teens or early twenties, either to the KGB (committee on state security, political police) or into the Komsomol, the Communist youth organization.

"Actually, the ones who go into the KGB may turn out better, because police work inevitably involves much contact with the real problems of society.

"The KGB man, whether he is benign or nasty, gets a much better idea of how things really are, how people in this country really feel. Maybe that's why Beria, in those few months after Stalin's death, tried to appease the non-Russian nationalities, etc. . . .

"The fellow who goes into the Komsomol, and then into Communist Party apparatus itself, gets gradually isolated from the ordinary people and the real life of this country.

"He gets used to sitting around in offices with green baize tables at committee meetings in which he always sees the same sort of people, in which everyone is playing it safe, and everything is done in the same old cliche terms as it has been for 30 or 40 years.

"To be sure, the Apparatchiks who have to work in big factories and become industrial directors get more of a sense of reality. But those are not — or not yet, anyway — the communist functionaries who really matter in this system.

"The ones who count are the Kadroviks, the party secretaries in charge of cadres, or personnel inside the apparatus. These are the ones who, locally and nationally, decide everything in the last analysis — that's how Stalin became the boss, and the same for Malenkov, Khrushchev, too, although that wasn't all in his case.

"What do the Kadroviks do with their time? They spend it going through personal dossiers and figuring out elaborate byzantine intrigues to benefit their friends and ward off possible enemies.

"Experts may tell them that cybernetics or linear programming is important, but the Kadrovik doesn't have time to bother — those abstract sciences will not affect his own career or comforts.

"Those will depend on his skill with the cadre files and on how he behaves, especially toward superiors, at the committee meetings.

(That's why these people all look so pale — an engineer or a factory director will have some color in his face simply from moving around every day from one plant or workshed to another, standing around the hot machinery . . .)

"So your young Komsomol activist of 20 is now 40 or 45, and by this time he has developed a certain definite Kadrovik approach to life.

●

"The essence of this approach is that everything can be decided on paper — with resolutions, decrees, etc. — and that the main thing is the organization, the cadres.

"If a collective farm is going bankrupt, the trouble isn't with the agricultural policy, it must be with the collective farm chairman, Petrov.

"So you replace Petrov with Ivanov. If Ivanov does no better, you bring in Alexandrov. And if he can't fix it, you appoint a special committee or reorganize.

"When Khrushchev had his agricultural catastrophe, what did he do? He decided to split the entire party apparatus in two into industrial and agricultural parties.

"Does it all sound like Tammany Hall or Mayor Daley in Chicago? There is some resemblance — except that here the press and television could not get within miles of the smoke-filled room, and someone like Lindsay or the young Adali Stevenson would end up in Siberia before anyone ever heard of him.

"That's why some of us feel that, if the system ever changes, it won't be through evolution from the top — but only through defeat abroad, or internal explosions of the kind we have had all too many of in Russian history."

It should be added that this particular dissident's views is extreme — others are more optimistic. But the description of how leaders "emerge" in the Soviet Union seems all too true.

Big NATO Tour Just a Pretence?

By GEORGE BAIN
The Globe and Mail

OTTAWA — Does anyone really believe that the government hasn't already decided that Canada will remain a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, contributing very nearly as much (or as little, if you belong to the other school of thought) as it does now to the military strength of the alliance?

Obviously External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp doesn't. He has become more alert to the encircling menace as the review has gone along, until now, if there were to be any change in the Canadian commitment, except perhaps to increase it, he would have no alternative but to resign.

Consider his comments the other day in Calgary. The danger is very clear; the intentions of an ever-more-powerful Soviet Union remain uncertain; there are unresolved situations in Europe which could ignite a nuclear war; NATO provides effective defense at an economical price.

If all of those things are true, or even if Mr. Sharp simply believes them to be true, he could not remain in a cabinet which decided that Canada might withdraw from the alliance or reduce its contribution to it.

Mr. Sharp doesn't simply represent one side of an argument to which Communications Minister Eric Kierans is the other. Mr. Kierans is a minister; Mr. Sharp is the minister.

Sharp on Spot

When the argument is over (as there is every reason to believe it is already), Mr. Kierans can bow to the will of the majority in Cabinet; that course is hardly open to Mr. Sharp, who would be left thereby having to adminster a policy which he had publicly argued against.

It is also somewhat relevant that if the decision goes (has gone) against Mr. Kierans, who has said that Canada should get out and redirect the savings, the worst that can be said is that he condones a policy which he has said to be wasteful. But what's money?

Mr. Sharp, on the other hand, would be in the position of having to swallow a policy which he had identified as dangerous to national security.

However, every sign is that Mr. Sharp will be spared the awful decision; Canada's NATO policy will go on about as before, and the minister with it.

And having said that, what's to be said about the government's professing to wait for the Commons Committee on External Affairs and National Defense to do the Grand Tour before completing its review of our external policy?

This really is a case of putting up a pretence for the benefit of such boobs as may be taken in by it.

Other Reasons

There may be any number of good reasons why the 30 members of the committee should make a tour of Europe, including even some related to external affairs and defense, but the long review on which the government is just about ready to report ain't one of them.

To deal with only one subject on the committee's list, it's going to consider some of the ramifications of a policy of neutrality, as practiced by Sweden and Switzerland.

It's a large subject—one to which any committee might devote three or four months of diligent swotting.

The committee will report its conclusions on March 26. from then clear through until April 10 ("the ultimate deadline"—Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau) to decide what, if anything, it is going to make of them.

Considering that the review of foreign and defense policy has been underway for a year, and that the committee will have other matters on which to report as well, this obviously will necessitate a considerable spurt at the end.

If there is to be a useful Committee on External Affairs and Defense, it must have the opportunity to see things at first hand.

But is anyone really supposed to believe that the coming expedition has anything to do with the review?

Tiny Gonyaulax Is Capable Of Causing Havoc in the Sea

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Carl

Another single-celled organism that proves troublesome to persons interested in classification is a small, cigar-shaped creature called Euglena. The difficulty is caused by the fact that Euglena looks like a plant but acts like an animal and therefore may be claimed by both botanists and zoologists.

Euglena lives in stagnant fresh water such as may be found in backwaters or drainage ditches or edges of swamps. Green-colored water from such locations is almost certain to contain large numbers of these minute forms and examination under a microscope will reveal that each individual contains chlorophyll, the green pigment that is characteristic of plants.

Not only is Euglena capable of manufacturing its own food, a process restricted to plants, but it can also go into a seed-like resting stage much like that in plants. For these and other reasons this organism may be considered as belonging to the plant kingdom.

On the other hand Euglena is also very animal-like. It actively swims by means of a whip-like extension of its body, it feeds by ingesting smaller organisms or by absorbing nutrients directly from the water and it has an "eyestpot" that is sensitive to light.

★ ★ ★

This fusion of plant and animal features in one organism provides further evidence supporting the belief that living things have had a common origin.

Most members of the group to which Euglena belongs are relatively insignificant, except to a biologist, and thus escape general notice. However, some occasionally become very obvious and attract wide attention.

One of these is the organism which is largely responsible for phosphorescence in the sea, a globular creature, pin head in size which swims by means of a single whip or flagellum. It is aptly called Noctiluca which means "night light" and sometimes exists in large enough numbers as to cause streaks in the water colored like tomato soup when seen by daylight.

At night, when disturbed by a passing fish, a ship's propeller or a breaking wave each individual glows briefly with a greenish light through some internal magic not yet matched by man.

Another is the organism which causes "red tide", a phenomemon that occurs along our coast often enough to produce some concern.

The creature responsible is a very small protozoan called Gonyaulax which drifts in the sea in countless billions feebly swimming by means of two whip-like extensions of its tiny body.

★ ★ ★

Presumably Gonyaulax is present all year round but periodically toward late summer it multiplies excessively reaching such tremendous numbers that it colors the sea in strips many miles in extent.

At these times these organisms become an important food item for mussels, clams, oysters and in fact any animal which filters its food from the water.

Unfortunately Gonyaulax contains an alkaloid which becomes concentrated in the body of the animals which feed upon it but apparently does them no harm.

However when other animals, including man, eat the infected molluscs these toxic substances are released causing sickness, accompanied by paralysis and often ending in death.

★ ★ ★

Sometimes these drifters wreak havoc in another way. Under certain conditions they multiply so excessively that the populations outstrip the ability of the sea to support them.

The organisms begin to die in immense numbers and in so doing their decaying bodies apparently deplete the oxygen supply in their immediate area.

The oxygen lack plus the build up of toxic alkaloids released from the disintegrating bodies combine to cause the death of fish over wide areas of the sea. Such a calamity happens periodically off the coast of Florida but so far it has not occurred in Canada.

Limping United Appeal Meets Its Commitments

Although the United Appeal campaign failed to reach its 1968 goal of $655,000 by five per cent ($35,000), the Red Cross and the 23 agencies involved will still receive their full share of campaign funds.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the United Appeal in the Imperial Inn Wednesday, last year's chairman Robert B. Hutchinson said the deficit was made up from the contingency reserve fund.

"The agencies themselves will be treated as if $655,000 were raised from the community during 1968," he said.

But he warned United Appeal leaders that more money would have to be raised in future to meet rising costs to the individual agencies.

"Unless the agencies of the United Appeal receive the wholehearted support of this community in next year's campaign, they cannot long endure."

Taking into account last year's deficit, inflation and rising costs to agencies, Mr. Hutchison estimated the Appeal would have to raise an additional $62,000 over last year's figure.

The chairman also pointed out that while grants in lieu of land taxes are an avenue of relief to agencies, taxes are on the increase.

"I make these remarks because I think that it is time our municipal governments became concerned over the land tax problem facing the agencies of the United Appeal."

He said the land tax on the YM-YWCA is $33,000; after grants the tax load is $10,000.

"At the same time our municipalities are planning to serve the more fortunate of our community by building such things as swimming pools, arenas and other recreational facilities which sit on tax-free land and are subsidized by taxes to cover their operating expenses,"

Re-elected president of the board of directors, L. J. Glassford told the meeting "there is so much more involved in the work of the United Appeal than the cold-blooded extraction of dollars from our citizens."

Guests of honor at the luncheon meeting were Lieutenant-Governor J. R. Nicholson and Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Elected first vice-president at the meeting was R. D. Ferguson. W. H. Armstrong is second vice-president, and J. R. Noble will continue as treasurer.

EXPECTED to be the first American to walk on the moon is astronaut Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. A National Aeronautic Space Agency official said plans call for Aldrin spending 2 hours and 20 minutes on the moon's surface, gathering samples and setting up experiments, when the Apollo mission takes place in July.

Radicals Were Gaining Power Student Said

MONTREAL (CP) — Donald McPhie, director of food services at Sir George Williams University, said Wednesday he was told that "moderate forces" were losing control to "more radical elements" a few days before the Feb. 11 destruction of the university's computer centre.

Mr. McPhie said in court that his informant was a student who identified himself as "chief of sanitation" and had "expressed concern over the trend of events."

Mr. McPhie was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Kennedy J. Frederick, 29, of Grenda, West Indies, first of 87 persons to appear on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and damage property in the student violence that erupted after a two-week sit-in.

Mr. McPhie said:

"The sudent came to my office and said he wanted to continue in the occupation on a point of principle but did not want to get involved in the trend of events that were developing.

"He said that moderate forces were losing control and that more radical elements were gaining power."

WRECKED EQUIPMENT

In a 10-hour spree Feb. 11, occupying students wrecked equipment, threw valuable papers nine stories to a street and started a fire in the computer centre in the Henry F. Hall Building in downtown Montreal.

Occupation of the ninth-floor computer centre began Jan. 29 to protest the makeup of a university committee investigating charges of racism brought against an assistant professor by six West Indian students.

In related legal developments, the parents of six juveniles charged in the rampage were fined a total of $1,500 in social welfare court.

Judge John W. Long also reprimanded the parents for not exercising enough "authority" over the three girls and three boys.

While he urged Sir George Williams to reinstate the six "as soon as possible," he forbade the juveniles from attending what he called unauthorized assemblies until they reached the age of 21.

The six were charged with mischief. A seventh, arrested with them, was ordered to take a mental examination.

Biologist To Speak

Dr. Donald Kennedy, head of biological sciences at Stanford University in California, will speak on identified nerve cells at the University of Victoria Monday at 8 p.m., room 167, Elliott Building.

Dual Capability For NATO Planes

LAHR, Germany (CP) — Increased emphasis is being placed on a conventional role for Canada's NATO air division. However, it will not be at the expense of the division's nuclear capability.

That was the picture presented to a group of Canadian MPs Wednesday by Maj.-Gen. Reginald Lane of Victoria, commander of Canada's NATO air division with headquarters in this southwestern German city on fringes of the Black Forest.

Both Gen. Lane and U.S. Gen. J. R. Holzapple, commander of the 4th Allied Tactical Air Force of which the Canadian division is part, told of dual capability being developed for the CF-104 Starfighter aircraft flown by Canadian airmen.

MPs, members of the Commons committee on defence and external affairs, were briefed by Gen. Holzapple at Ramstein, 100 miles north of here and headquarters of the 4th Air Force which is the largest tactical air force in NATO.

Gen. Lane briefed the touring parliamentary committee at the Canadian base in Lahr.

CITES STARFIGHTERS

Gen. Lane seemed to put slightly greater emphasis on the emerging conventional role for Canadian Starfighters which, except for two reconnaissance squadrons, were at one time assigned an exclusively nuclear strike role in the Western alliance.

Conversion to optional capacity followed from a NATO switch to a policy of flexible response from the doctrine of massive nuclear retaliation to Soviet attack.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN THALIDOMIDE CASE

By MORTON MINTZ
The Washington Post

The world's first jury trial involving the baby-deforming sedative, thalidomide, ended abruptly in Philadelphia Wednesday when a settlement was reached between the parents of an armless boy and the manufacturer.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed but it is intended to provide economic security for the remainder of the life of Thomas David Diamond, who will be eight on April 5.

Union Power Politics Linked to Latest Postal Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Is union power politics a major factor in the latest postal dispute?

The pattern of walkouts, described as illegal strikes by the government, suggests that it is.

Observers also suggest that Roger Decarie's position as president of the 10,000-member union has been undermined by the dispute.

Most of the 1,500 letter carriers to leave their jobs in the last week—all had returned by Wednesday—worked in the Niagara Peninsula and Western Ontario regions.

The district representative is Charles McGuire, likely to be a candidate for the union presidency when it goes before a convention later this year.

Mr. McGuire has appeared militant in the current dispute. Mr. Decarie has had the unpopular task of ordering the strikers back to work.

The terms of the collective agreement with the government required this. The alternative might have been legal action against Mr. Decarie—and striking locals and their members.

However, a union leader who must order wildcatters back to work usually loses some of his sheen in their eyes.

Mr. Decarie is first to admit that he is not enhancing his position with some members but he feels it is in their interests to fight against new postal working conditions within the framework of legislation.

He said in an interview that he places no credence in the theory that the strikes are in any way linked to a possible presidential bid by Mr. McGuire.

"I know of one local president, who led his men out in southern Ontario, who is vehemently in opposition to any bids by Mr. McGuire for any executive position."

As for the reasons behind the strikes, Mr. Decarie says he met leaders of the striking locals last weekend and all told him they were angry with the new straight-through delivery regulations.

"I know of no internal dispute within union ranks," he adds.

Curiously quiet as the letter carriers fight it out has been the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, led by William Houle.

In the last couple of years, the two unions have tended to back each other to the hilt.

Uvic May Restrict Enrolment To Avoid Overcrowding Crisis

By ALAN WHITE

An overcrowding crisis which could affect teaching standards faces the University of Victoria this summer, the Uvic senate heard Wednesday night.

Steps to restrict or limit enrolment may be necessary to protect the quality of education at the university, acting president Robert Wallace warned.

Planners have arranged space and teaching staff for only 5,200 students, but moves to limit enrolment at mainland universities may cause a rush on Uvic.

Lower entrance standards here will probably attract many students with lower high school marks who can't get into the University of B.C. and Simon Fraser University.

Dr. John Dewey, chairman of the campus planning committee, also told the senate his group feared overcrowding and recommended that the senate consider steps to avoid the problem.

UBC raised its standards to allow in only high school graduates with a 65 per cent average and Simon Fraser requires 60 per cent, compared with the 50 per cent requirement at Uvic.

A draft resolution prepared before the meeting by Wallace read in part:

"Uvic has engaged professorial staff and provided space, equipment and other resources for 5,200 full-time students in the session 1969-70.

"Any substantial increase in enrolment beyond this estimate would produce serious problems for the university and might affect adversely the standards of education established by the faculties for the senate.

"For that reason it may be necessary to impose limits on enrolment for 1969-70. The university would regret having to take such a step, but it cannot carry out its work effectively and efficiently if undue strains are placed on its resources."

The draft suggested if Uvic cannot accommodate all those who apply, those with averages of less than 60 per cent from areas close to other universities be denied admittance.

Wallace said "This university has worked on the philosophy that a good many people who get in with averages of 50 per cent often do very well in university.

"This university has kept an open door."

But he cautioned that there was no room for Uvic to pick up students turned away from other schools.

Dr. Ray Watson said "We may have to say we will not accept more than 5,200 students. The onus then lies where it really belongs—on the provincial government."

He recommended the question of entrance standards be put on the senate agenda for complete discussion in April. The draft by Wallace was referred to the entrance standards committee for study in the meantime.

NEW BUILDING

In other business, senate was told by Dewey that a new building for office and classroom space will be constructed near the campus heating plant by September, 1970.

It will run from the boiler house, which will be renovated, and will have three floors plus a basement. The smokestack from the boiler house will be raised to 70 feet to help rid the area of smoke and fumes.

The building, designed by Wagg and Hambleton architects, will cost $1,062,000. It will have 72 faculty offices, classrooms, seminar rooms and study space.

Dewey said the School of Fine Arts had been given the go-ahead on planning for a $1.1 million building of about 40,000 square feet of floor space.

Senate also set up a special committee under Wallace to coordinate all the special sum-committee reports on changing the university which stemmed from student briefs last year.

The committee will study the best way of implementing recommendations made by the subcommittees.

Parents Keep Children Home

NELSON (CP) — Parents in the community of Thrums, about 18 miles west of here, removed their children from school Wednesday and spokesmen said the children would stay out of school until the speed limit on Highway 3A is reduced.

About 60 children were removed by their parents after one child was struck by a car while crossing the highway to board the school bus. The boy was in satisfactory condition.

Symposium Planned At Uvic

Six local secondary students will attend the third annual Humanities and Science Symposium at the University of Victoria April 11 and 12.

One Frances Bob of St. Ann's Academy, will present an original paper on anthropology and sociology entitled Tee-wun, Kwunit.

The others, who will be obsevrers for the two-day session of discussion, are Russell Redman of Claremont Senior Secondary; Helen Ohrt and Margaret Bigelow of Norfolk House; Suzanne Velay of St. Ann's Academy, and Willy Wilson of Esquimalt Senior Secondary.

They will meet 73 other students from across B.C. under university and IBM Corporation of Canada sponsorship to read and study creative projects done by 24 selected students.

Another 55 students will participate as observers, chosen from the 170 who submitted papers. In the audience will be 24 teachers who sponsored top projects among their pupils.

Papers will cover many subjects taught at the university level. In the creative arts, several students submitted their own poetry, plays and short stories.

Extremism at Peak

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Roy Wilkins, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, believes extremism in the United States has touched its high water mark. "It isn't on the way down, but it has hit a plateau," Wilkins told a convocation on the Church and Violence in the Nation.

Uvic Plans Graduate Course

A new department head is being sought to oversee planning for graduate studies in French at the University of Victoria.

No target date has been set for the additional degree level of studies, but Uvic is advertising in academic journals for a person to initiate it.

Dr. David Griffiths, acting department head, said the graduate studies are only a possibility now. Most departments in the humanities are discussing addition of graduate studies, without firm commitments.

Rats Exterminated

PARIS (Reuters)—Paris officials said Wednesday 20,000 rats have been exterminated since Les Halles food market moved out of central Paris to Rungis, near Orly Airport, two weeks ago. The extermination campaign was launched to prevent the 300,000 rats of Les Halles, deprived of their nightly feed from the market's left-overs, from moving into cellars and abandoned business premises.

Gardom Derides Bennett's Scheme for Indian Affairs Branch

By JOHN SLINGER

Liberal MLA Garde Gardom Wednesday called Premier Bennett's announced plan to set up a provincial Indian affaris department a "platitudinous, parsimonious effort."

The government is "missing the point" of the Indians' problems and needs a change of philosophy.

Gardom said the announcement is the "same old constitutional sidestep . . . the same old Ottawa waffle peddled in so many things but should never be tried with relation to Indian affairs."

The burst came as the house debated the $38,000 spending estimates for the Indian Advisory Act.

It followed a taut Opposition Robert Strachan's defence of trade unions' attitudes towards discrimination. He said when discrimination is overcome in B.C. it will only be "through the good offices of the trade unions."

His stand brought an immediate counter-statement by Socred Whip Hunter Vogel (Langley) saying Strachan was merely paying "his debt to his union bosses."

Gardom argued the premier's Indian affairs department will serve only to continue the "legal apartheid" Indian now are in under fedral jurisdiction.

He particularly derided the money B.C. is spending on the Indian Advisory Act which pay for operation of an advisory committee representing the native population.

"If you take out the expenses of the committee, you have 50 cents a head for every Indian man, woman and child in B.C. — big deal, Social Credit."

Gardom said the premier claimed "the biggest reform is to help the Indian brotherhood — at 50 cents a head. Brother can you spare a dime?

"What you need, you need a change in philosophy. Purely and simply you just have to do the fair thing and you have not been doing it."

Gardom said there is no constitutional restriction keeping the province from providing reserve Indians with all the social, welfare and public works services now available to all other citizens.

The Indian pays all provincial taxes — such as sales tax, gasoline tax and others — and is entitled to these services.

There are a lot of well-meaning people on the government benches, "including you, Mr. Attorney-General," he said to Leslie Peterson. "But for God's sake why don't you try to educate your premier?"

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, minister responsible for the Advisory Act, commended L. Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver - Howe Sound) for providing the afternoon's most constructive suggestions.

TWO MAJOR CURRENTS

The debate had followed two major currents — who is responsibe for discrimination against the Indians and what must be done to improve the lot of the Indians.

Williams said the only person who can say whether there is discrimination against the Indians is the Indian himself.

The advisory committee should begin a special series of discussions with Indians throughout the province and "let us have an end to this uncertainty whether its labor or management or government or whether in fact its all three" at the bottom of discriminatory practices.

Strachan's speech concerned a speech by New Democratic colleague Frank Calder (Atlin) a week ago.

Calder charged then that many trade unions in the province discriminate against Indians.

Strachan took exception to the general statement, saying "in the vast majority of cases in this province the employer does the hiring and the conditions of hiring are laid down by employers."

—A 32-year trade unionist and a former provincial peresident of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Strachan challenged MLAs "to show me one instance where discrimination had been done away with in a plant that was not organized into a trade union and where the trade union opposed discrimination."

He blasted Social Credit members for not really listening to Calder's speech as a discussion of discrimination in a particular sector of society. The Socreds had been "pounding their desks not because they oppose discrimination but because they oppose trade unions."

Strachan said the government is not only destroying the old way of life for Indians by continually expanding development into their territory, it is "failing to provide them with adequate education to handle the kind of life the premier visualized" when he proposed his new department and establishment of municipal government on reseves.

"The elimination of discrimination in this province," said Strachan, "will not be achieved by attacking trade unions or employers or anyone. It will be eliminated by attacking this thing head on."

During his speech, the opposition leader referred to an Indian leader in the province demanding a public apology from Dr. Howard McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) for the member's earlier statements about Indians in a speech he said "told it the way it is."

McDiarmid defended his stand, saying "before the problems of the Indian are going to be solved, he is going to have to take a hard look at himself." The Indian should not be above criticism.

CBC Pollution Airing Wins Backing of Public

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC, as accustomed to being bombed and strafed as Londoners during the blitz, can take some heart from a current public rally in its defence.

The rally centres on the television program Air of Death, broadcast Oct. 22, 1967, and depicting effects of pollution from two manufacturing plants in the Dunnville, Ont., area.

A special committee formed by the Ontario government to report on pollution dangers in the area, while admitting the pollution to be serious, castigated the CBC for the program.

The committee report described Air of Death as "designed to create alarm and fear" and said it contained "unwarranted, untruthful and irresponsible statements."

ORDERED INQUIRY

In the wake of the committee report, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission ordered a special public hearing, starting next Tuesday in Toronto, into the "circumstances surrounding the production and the broadcast" of Air of Death.

The briefs by interested parties, which will be considered by the CRTC at the hearing, are all in.

Their verdict, excluding the brief filed by the CBC itself, is unanimously in favor of the program.

Some briefs gave the committee a roasting for being critical of a program which focused public attention on pollution and played a part in the Ontario government decision to set up a special committee to report on the problem.

Besides the CBC brief, which outlines merely the way the publicly-owned corporation plans to present its case at the hearing, 24 others have been filed with the CRTC.

CTV ADDS WORD

Many are from private individuals. Others are from such groups as the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists, the CTV television network and the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

There also is a joint brief by the broadcasting departments of the Anglican, Roman Catholic and United churches of Canada, and one from the Toronto-based Group Action to Stop Pollution —GASP for short.

Among the private individuals who filed briefs are many students. But there also are some scientists, doctors and others with special knowledge of pollution.

SHOULD BE FREE

In general, they hold that any errors in the CBC program were far outweighed by the need to arouse public concern about the air pollution emanating from two plants, Electric Reduction Co. and Sherbrooke Metallurgical Co., situated near Port Maitland in Haldimand County.

Most also hold that the CDC should be free to continue the type of reporting that resulted in Air of Death, without curtailment by any governmental agencies.

The joint brief by the three church broadcasting departments questioned the inability of the special committee, under Dr. G. Edward Hall, "to see the good in the program."

"The program alerted the viewing public to a Canada-wide air pollution problem of major proportions."

It said the committee was created Nov. 6, 1967, in part because of the interest aroused by the program.

Lawyer Thomas A. Beckett of Hamilton, chairman of the Hamilton Region Conservation Authority, claims the Hall committee report demonstrates "almost vicious bias against the CBC."

KNEW EFFECTS

There was no need for the committee to go into Air of Death at all, he contends, and it made the "extreme and sensational" attack on the CBC in full knowledge that this would have an effect on press coverage when the committee report was brought down.

By "putting the CBC on trial" the Hall committee "was much more concerned with the man who turned in the fire alarm" than it was with "dealing with the man who set the fire to begin with."

MARCH on Washington by poor people will be staged next month says Dr. Ralph Abernathy, head of the Southern Leadership Conference. It will begin in Memphis, Tenn., April 4, the first anniversary of Martin Luther King's assassination. It is not planned to organize another Resurrection city.

DRUG FISH

A plant called the barbasco yields a drug that the Colorado Indians put in streams to stupefy fish, making them easier to catch.

Phoney Seizure Claimed In Que. Dynamite Case

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A former Quebec justice minister, Claude Wagner, said Wednesday a "notorious gunman" received bail "in return for false information which led to a phoney seizure of dynamite" by police.

Mr. Wagner suggested in the national assembly that Jacques (Sonny) Coe, 35, "bargained with provincial police and the justice department" for his release.

He said the dynamite had been recovered "after a theft executed expressly for this end by accomplices of Coe aiming to permit the government to make a spectacular seizure to pacify a panic-stricken population."

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand has linked the dynamite recovery to separatist terrorists.

Mr. Bertrand who also is justice minister, said Mr. Wagner should realize that bail is granted by a judge.

The man involved was to stand trial Monday under "preferred indictment," an attorney-general's writ requiring that the accused be tried by judge and jury, Mr. Bertrand said.

Under the indictment, Coe is to appear on charges of attempted armed robbery.

In other legislatures:

Halifax — Peter Nicholson (L—Annapolis West) accused the Nova Scotia government of mismanagement in its financial affairs by spending money on risky enterprises. He urged stronger controls over Nova Scotia's Crown companies and a gradual elimination of cost-sharing programs.

Winnipeg—Legislation providing for increased provincial grants for basic education was introduced in Manitoba. If passed, the province will pay 70 per cent of the cost with municipalities paying the remainder.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Army Cost Approved

LONDON (Reuters) — Parliament approved Wednesday night a government proposal to maintain a British army of up to 210,000 men at a cost of £598,000,000 (about $1,554,000,000) during the next 12 months.

Ex-Convict Admits Bombing Tale Hoax

By CLAUDE ADAMS

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Catellier, 23, told a special fire commissioner's inquiry Wednesday a taped interview he granted last week to a CBC public affairs program researcher on activities of the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois was a hoax.

Catellier said that he was interviewed last Thursday by John Smith of Toronto, a researcher with the CBC program The Way It Is. At the time, he claimed responsibility for several Montreal-area bombings in the last two years.

Visibly amused, he told the inquiry he was released from nearby St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary only last September after a four-year term and therefore could not have been involved in any bombing incidents.

He granted the CBC interview, however, because he was in sympathy with the bombings since they represented "direct action against the exploiters of my country."

He said someone had to explain to the public the "political basis" of the FLQ, a clandestine organization advocating Quebec independence through violence.

Catellier was arrested Tuesday night and held in custody until his appearance at the inquiry Wednesday.

Mr. Smith, meanwhile, declined to make any statements and was given 48 hours to show cause why he should not be required to testify. His lawyer claimed "professional ethics" were involved.

The inquiry started hearings nine days ago under Cyrille Delage, Quebec City fire commissioner, into Montreal-area bombings in 1968-69.

Last Thursay Pierre-Paul Geoffroy gave evidence of having prior knowledge of and participating in at least 15 bombings during the last year. The following day he pleaded guilty at arraignment to 129 charges of making and placing bombs, conspiracy and theft in 31 bombing incidents.

Wednesday's hearings were before Montreal's fire commissioner, John McDougall.

Get your Irish up!

Ah, St. Patrick's! 'Tis a great day to have a Guinness, that famous old Dublin brew. Savour its rich creamy texture, its deep ruby colour, its subtle hint of bitterness. Sure if the great day passes without a Guinness, well maybe you've not that little bit of Irish in you!

Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY
Victoria Taxation Office

If your question is not answered here or in the department's tax guide, telephone 382-2173 or write National Revenue, Taxation, Victoria.

Q. I started a new business in 1968. Can you tell me what depreciation I can claim?

A. Capital cost allowance, sometimes referred to as depreciation, is allowed as a deduction. The rates vary with the type (class) of asset.

For example: Class 10—cars, trucks, etc., 30%; Class 6—frame and stucco buildings, 10%; Class 3—steel, brick and concrete buildings, 5% .

Rates for other assets may be obtained by reference to the Income Tax Regulations or at your local District Taxation Office. Special rates may apply to assets of a farmer or fisherman. For these, see the Farmer's and Fisherman's Guide.

Q. I gave $50 to the United Appeal. Can I claim this in addition to the standard deduction of $100?

A. No. You are entitled to claim either the standard deduction of $100, or your charitable donations and medical expenses, but not both in the same year.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Tax Deductions May Hold Pitfalls for the Unwary

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.

(This is a service provided by The Times and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia)

The allowable deductions from income for charitable donations and medical expenses seldom cause much difficulty for taxpayers, but there are some pitfalls.

Everybody has the option to claim the standard $100 for donations and medical expense without filing any receipts in lieu of claiming for the actual amounts spent. If the standard $100 is claimed then no further amount is allowable for either donations or medical.

To qualify as an allowable deduction a donation must be made to a charitable organization registered for income tax purposes in Canada or to a government—federal, provincial, or municipal, in Canada. Certain specified universities in foreign countries also qualify but, generally, donations to foreign organizations are not deductible.

Normally every allowable donation must be supported by filing an official receipt showing the organization's registration number. Interim receipts or acknowledgement letters are not sufficient.

Gifts to individuals do not qualify as charitable donations under any circumstances.

TEN PER CENT LIMIT

The deduction for donations is limited to 10 per cent of net income. If the actual donations exceed the 10 per cent maximum the excess may be carried forward and deducted from income of the next year. This carry forward arrangement is limited to one year so that excess donations of 1967 may be claimed in 1968, or the excess of 1968 may be claimed in 1969 but a large excess in 1967 may not be spread over more than one year to claim it in 1968 and 1969.

The list of allowable medical expenses is set out in detail in the explanatory notes of the tax return.

The deductible amount is obtained by deducting 3 per cent of net income from the total of the allowable expenses. The excess over that 3 per cent is the amount of the total claim.

The time period for which medical expenses may be claimed is any span of 12 months which ends in the year. The 12 month period does not have to coincide with a month end. For example, if a taxpayer paid heavy expenses on August 10, 1967, he may group them with other paid medical bills up to August 9, 1968.

SELF OR DEPENDENT

The expenses must have been incurred by the taxpayer for himself or for any persons for whom he is entitled to claim as a dependent. The bill must have been paid either by the taxpayer or paid on his behalf by a contributory medical plan.

The premium contributions to a medical plan are not allowed as a deduction but when that premium money is used to pay medical bills for the contributor the amount so used is treated as medical expense as if the individual had paid the bill directly.

Some confusion has arisen because expenses paid for by a provincial hospital plan are not allowed as a deduction but expenses paid on behalf of the taxpayer by a provincial medical plan for which contribution premiums have been paid are allowable.

If the sum of the medical expenses minus 3 per cent of income, plus the total donations, does not amount to $100 or over, then it is more advantageous to claim the standard $100 option and save the medical receipts for possible use in the next year. However, in this situation, donation receipts cannot be used in the next year because the carry forward provision does not apply unless the donations in a year exceed 10 per cent of income.

Victoria Mortgage

Open house tours of the new Victoria Mortgage Corp Ltd., financial centre at Blanshard and Broughton, have been arranged for Saturday, by invitation.

A reinforced concrete and masonry structure containing business and financial offices and a restaurant, the building is an expansion of the former Jameson Motors property and falls within the periphery of the downtown cathedral precinct.

Benson & Hedges

Benson and Hedges Canada Ltd. will raise the wholesale price of cigarettes by 43 cents a 1,000 effective Monday.

Antonio Toledo, president of Benson and Hedges, said the retail increase should amount to not more than one cent a package.

Volkswagen

Victoria contractor William Campbell has been awarded a contract for construction of a $147,129 car dealership on Douglas, between Cloverdale and Audley for Volkswagen Canada Ltd. Excavation has commenced.

Citroen-Maserati

The French Citroen auto company today announced it has taken control of the Italian sports car company Maserati.

The announcement said the two companies aimed at a full link-up when they signed a co-operation agreement last year.

Canada Steam

Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. reported Tuesday 1968 net earnings of $7.35 million or $2.61 a share, compared with $6.6 million or $2.33 a share in 1967.

Net gain on capital asset transactions was $1.15 million or 45 cents a share, compared with $835,338 or 32 cents a share in 1967. Gross revenue was $129.3 million, 6 per cent less than in 1967.

Inco

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. plans a considerable increase in its total output this year and again in 1970.

The annual report says production has begun at the Birchtree mine near Thompson, Man., with three other new mines due to start operations this year: The Little Stobie and Kirkwood mines at Sudbury, and the Soab mine at Thompson.

Inco has said it plans to increase production by more than 30 per cent by late 1971 to more than 600,000 pounds of nickel a year.

The report says that exploration spending last year totalled a record $17 million compared with $13.3 million in 1967, and that work will step up this year.

Falconbridge

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. had a net profit of $23.95 million or $4.88 a share for 1968, down 7 per cent from $25.79 million or $5.26 a share in 1967.

In the company's annual report, president Marsh Cooper said the chief reason for the decline was a sharp decrease in dividend income from subsidiary and associated companies.

This totalled $10.3 million, 37 per cent lower than the $16.4 million received in 1967.

The company had a record profit of $36.7 million from nickel operatoins before write-offs, compared with $30.26 million in 1967.

Mines Remain Key To North

TORONTO (CP) — Mineral development will probably always be the main factor influencing the development of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, B. J. Trevor, mining administrator for the department of northern development, said today.

In a paper presented to the Prospectors and Developers Association, Mr. Trevor said the value of mining production in the Territories has increased by more than $100 million in the last four years. A further $80 million increase is expected in 1969 through 1972.

He said the federal government has provided about $100 million of the $300 million spent in mining development in the northern territories since 1964.

The number of claims staked in the Northwest Territories has "continued to rise at a phenomenal rate," from 6,800 in 1964 to 43,000 last year, Mr. Trevor said.

"Since P.C.E. Explorations commenced a program in the Coppermine River area in 1967 and came up with indications of promising mineralization, 39,500 claims have been staked in that area.

"This makes the staking rush the largest in the history of Canada." He said more than 50 companies hold claims in the area and the majority are continuing with "major exploration programs."

It costs about $4 million annually just to keep these claims in good standing, Mr. Trevor said. Yet so far "there has been no appreciable lapsing of claims."

He said production at the Anvil Mining Corp. property on the Ross River will have as great an effect on the Yukon as Pine Point did on the Northwest Territories, when production begins in October.

Chretien to Europe Promoting the North

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien leaves for Europe this weekend to try to soft sell big business on the potential for northern resource development.

For two weeks he and his deputy minister, John MacDonald, will woo bankers, investors and government officials in Rome, Paris, Zurich, Dusseldorf and London, where nothing less than the Rothschild group has requested a private meeting.

The purpose of this odyssey is to try to explode the myth that Canada's northern territories are a barren wasteland best left to the polar bear and walrus.

Chretien would prefer to think of the area as a frigid paradise which could offer adventure for risk capital in the field of oil, gas and mineral development.

The young minister also noted that any business with a grasp of the basics in resource development would also be aware of the side possibilities in transportation and perhaps even tourism.

And, he added, built-in markets often come hand-in-hand with investment capital.

Chretien, who is the first northern affairs minister to take such an initiative in Europe, said he had been told that probably a majority of Europeans view Canada's north as absolutely inaccessible with no possibility for productive development.

"We are now in a position to show them that, while problems exist, we are on the move," he said.

At each of their European stops Chretien and MacDonald will attend meetings of 50 or more leaders in the business community.

They will whet their appetite by presenting an excellent National Film Board movie entitled The North Has Challenge which has been shown extensively in Canada and the U.S.

Chretien will speak on investment possibilities in the north and invite questions. He will then remain for a couple of days in case any of his audience would like to pursue the discussions privately.

Invitations will be extended to tour the north.

The minister has no high hopes of returning to Canada with his pockets bulging with contracts.

He described the trip as a "seeding operation" which may require a few years to produce significant results, such as investment in exploration and development of resources or even such things as tankers for transportation.

If discoveries lead to a breakthrough in the means of northern transportation routes, Chretien said there will have to be massive development to justify public expense at home.

While there is "all sorts of risk capital" in Europe, he said the situation in Canada simply could not generate enough savings for the kind of development required.

Bailey's Blast Assists Expos

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two home runs, one of them a mammoth blast by Bob Bailey, helped Montreal Expos regain their winning form Wednesday in exhibition baseball play.

The homers carried the Expos to their second victory of the exhibition season, a 9-4 triumph against New York Yankees B team at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Bailey, a member of Los Angeles Dodgers last season and expected to play first base for Montreal's new National League team, hit a 430-foot blast over the centre field fence.

Jones, an outfielder obtained from Cincinnati Reds in last fall's expansion draft, hit his home run during a five-run sixth inning.

Elsewhere in Florida, Ted Williams still is winless as a manager, but he could be trying a new approach with his Washington Senators.

EXPLAINS THEORY

After the Senators had lost Wednesday for the sixth straight time this spring, 5-4, in 10 innings to the Dodgers, Williams explained his theory:

"What did we do last year in the spring? Won all of them, didn't they. And then finished last in the regular season."

Actually, the Senators didn't win them all, but their 17-8 mark in exhibition season was the best in the majors. But when the regular season began, the Senators returned to form and finished last in the American League, 37½ games behind Detroit Tigers.

Rico Carty, sidelined last year with a case of tuberculosis, sparked Atlanta Braves' 5-4 victory over the Yankees.

Carty rapped a single and two sacrifice flies, knocking in three runs as the Yanks lost for the first time in five games.

In other Florida exhibitions, Cincinnati nipped Kansas City Royals 4-3, Minnesota Twins rapped Chicago White Sox 5-3, Philadelphia Phillies stopped Boston Red Sox 7-5, Baltimore Orioles shut out Houston Astros 4-0, New York Mets pounded Detroit 12-0 and St. Louis Cardinals whipped Pittsburgh 6-3.

In Arizona, Cleveland Indians stopped Seattle Pilots 10-7, Chicago Cubs downed San Francisco Giants 8-6, Oakland Athletics beat California Angels 5-2 and San Diego Padres dropped Seattle's B team 8-2.

Par Event Winners

Rene Robbins edged Jean Olson to win silver division honors in a women's par competition at Victoria Golf Club. Other prize-winners included Mrs. B. Wilson, Mrs. B. Stoneham, Mrs. L. Williams, Mrs. D. Dillabough and Min Strachan.

Braves Edge Nixons

Saanich midget Braves edged Victoria juvenile Nixons 5-4 Wednesday during an exhibition game at G. R. Pearkes Arena. Both hold the Vancouver Island championship in their respective divisions.

Gamble Shuts Out Kings; Seals Trip Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All those Canadian hockey fans now living in the Los Angeles area finally had something to smile about Wednesday night.

Toronto Maple Leafs recorded their first victory in Los Angeles in five attempts since the National Hockey League expanded last season.

The Leafs blanked the Kings 4-0 behind Bruce Gamble's third shutout of the season to end a four-game losing streak in Los Angeles.

In other games, Oakland Seals upset Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 despite Bobby Hull's 51st goal of the season and New York Rangers shaded Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3.

The Leafs, now just two points behind fourth-place Detroit Red Wings in the Eastern Division and with two games in hand, erupted for three goals within 2½ minutes in the second period.

Scoring for Toronto during that flurry were Mike Walton, Paul Henderson and rookie defenceman Rickey Ley. Bob Pulford added a goal in the final period.

Walton opened the scoring at 3:20 of the middle period on a power play. Ley picked up his first NHL goal at 5:35 on a 35-foot slap shot and Henderson scored 10 seconds later.

Gamble stopped 24 shots in gaining his 13th career shutout in the NHL.

A crowd of 8,137 watched the Kings extend their winless streak to eight games. Los Angeles is only two points ahead of the fourth-place Philadelphia Flyers in the Western Division.

Chicago's loss just about killed any chance that the Black Hawks may squeeze into a playoff berth. The Hawks trail Detroit by nine points and have only nine games remaining.

Hull Equals Modern Scoring Mark

Hull's goal enabled him to tie the modern record of scoring in 10 consecutive games set by Andy Bathgate with New York in 1962-63. The longest consecutive goal scoring streak is 16 games by Punch Broadbent with the old Ottawa Senators in 1921-22.

The Chicago left winger is just three goals away from tying the record for most goals in a season which he set in 1965-66. He also has 96 points, just one shy of the record for a left winger which he set that same year.

Sharing the Oakland goals were Ted Hampson, Norm Ferguson, Bill Hicke and Gerry Ehman before 16,666 at Chicago.

The victory was the fifth for the Seals this season in six meetings with Chicago and moved second-place Oakland nine points ahead of third-place Los Angeles.

Oakland scored three goals in the final five minutes of play to break a 1-1 tie. Hampson picked up the winner at 14:56 when he beat Chicago goalie Denis DeJordy with a rebound of Doug Roberts' shot.

Third-period goals by Bob Nevin and Vic Hadfield gave the Rangers their victory before 17,250 at New York.

Rod Gilbert and Brad Park had the other New York goals while Pittsburgh goals went to Ken Schinkel, Dunc McCallum and Paul Andrea.

The win extended the Rangers' unbeaten streak at home to 15 games and moved them four points ahead of Detroit in their battle for third place.

Gray Leading Jones By Four

Uplands' Mike Gray will carry a commanding four-stroke lead over Gorge Vale's Gordie Jones as the two amateurs lead the field into the third round of the city spring medal golf series.

The final round of the 54-hole medal series will be played Sunday at Gorge Vale.

Czech Goalie Proves Too Sharp for Nats

PRAGUE (CP) — "The defence played well but we just couldn't put the puck in the net," coach Jackie McLeod said Wednesday night after Canda's national hockey team dropped a 2-1 exhibition decision to the Czechoslovakian B team.

"Terry Caffery set up at least four goals, but we were too slow. We waited too long to shoot and their goalie, who played a great game, came out and cut down the angle on us."

Miroslav Lacky played the entire game in goal for the Czechoslovaks. Canada used Wayne Stephenson in the first two periods and Steve Rexe in the third.

Miroslav Svoboda and Gus Augusta gave the Czechs a 2-0 lead in the first period while Canada's goal came on a power play at 4:25 of the second period.

Caffery, at the point, fed the puck to Wayne Murdoch who fired a screened shot from just inside the blueline which caught the net.

Steve Carlyle suffered a concussion in the second period and underwent treatment from team doctors.

The team is on its way to Sweden to participate in the world hockey championships starting Saturday.

Edmonton Council Favors Games' Bid

EDMONTON (CP) — City council voted Monday to bid for the 1971 Canadian Winter Games, expected to involve about 2,000 athletes.

Council endorsed a recommendation from Mayor Ivor Dent and the chief city commissioner, Peter Bargen, in favor of the bid.

PHANTOMS TOO ELUSIVE IN CITY HOOP PLAYOFF

First United Phantoms scored a massive 39-19 win over Metropolitan Rebels Wednesday to sweep the best-of-three Victoria juvenile girls' basketball championship.

Phantoms triumphed 24-14 in the series opener Monday.

Next stop for winners is the four-team Vancouver Island championship, slated for Victoria on Saturday, March 22.

Karen Turner paced Phantoms with 10 points while Valerie Cruickshank added seven. Leading the Rebels was Wendy Salmon, with eight points.

Hep Cats . . . And Checking Ones

Canucks Salvage Draw With Bucks

PORTLAND (AP) — Vancouver Canucks fought Portland Buckaroos to a 2-2 tie Wednesday night in a Western Hockey League game before 5,479 fans.

Jim McKenny salvaged it for the Canucks with a goal in the last seven seconds of play.

McKenny's goal came a scant 22 seconds after Connie Madigan had been penalized for high sticking.

The Canucks took full advantage of the penalty and lifted goalie Charlie Hodge in favor of an extra attacker to put more pressure on the Buckaroos.

Ted McCaskill opened the scoring for the Canucks at 5:48 of the first period but Bill Saunders tied it for the Bucks less than a minute later.

Cliff Schmautz gave Portland a 2-1 lead with 2:17 remaining to set the stage for McKenny's equalizer.

Vancouver checked closely for the first two periods but both teams opened up in the third.

The Buckaroos outshot the Canucks 42-23 as Hodge spoiled several Portland scoring chances.

Expansion Eyed By Cowichan Side

COWICHAN — Cowichan Cricket Club, which has been in almost continuous operation for over 100 years, is looking for new players for a second side.

The club, member of the Victoria and District Cricket Association, played for many years at McAdam Park in Duncan but a new pitch is being prepared near the South Cowichan Tennis Club.

Meanwhile the club will use facilities at Shawningan Lake Boys' School.

Interested individuals are asked to call Stuart Joule at 748-9467, in Duncan.

Track Clinic Starts Friday at University

Royal Canadian Legion and the University of Victoria are co-sponsors of a clinic for athletes and coaches organized by the Victoria Track and Field Association, starting Friday at 7 p.m. at Uvic.

This is part of a campaign started by the association last year to put track and field on a major league basis in the Greater Victoria area.

It is also the first of a series of major track and field events slated for Victoria over the next nine months—including the Canadian championships during the last week of August.

Sessions will also be held Saturday and Sunday, starting at 9 a.m. both days.

Some of the top coaches and athletes in the province are participating with Lionel Pugh, of the University of B.C., as director.

Anyone interested in this program is urged to call the YM-YWCA at 386-7511.

Newfie Threat For Albertans

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Len Kalichak, a westerner who is in a position to give Newfoundland its first national curling title, says it will "take a lot of luck" to win the Canadian mixed championship.

Kalichak, a native of Saskatchewan working in Goose Bay, skipped his Newfoundland rink to second place in the 11-rink round-robin tournament Wednesday.

Don Anderson and his Alberta crew from Edmonton were leading with six consecutive victories going into today's three rounds, but Newfoundland had a 6-1 record and was scheduled to meet the westerners at 7:30 p.m. EST tonight.

"But if we do beat Alberta and if we do win the tournament eventually, there will be a lot of luck involved," Kalichak said.

"There is just no way we can be as sharp as those western rinks because we don't get the competition back in Newfoundland."

Kalichak and his wife, Kay, who plays third, have been living in Goose Bay for seven years.

ONLY ONE INTERESTED

". . . We're allowed one rink per every 15 club members in provincial competitions," Kalichak said. "Our club is allowed two representatives and we were the only rink that was interested in trying for this one.

"There was no inter-club playoff for the provincial men's playoff either. I took my rink and someone else got three fellows together for a rink.

"That doesn't give a Newfoundland rink much of a chance in this competition. The rinks from most other provinces have to be stronger."

Alberta started Wednesday's action with an impressive 14-3 triumph over Manitoba that saw the Oak River foursome concede after seven of the regulation 10 ends.

"And those first five easy games almost cost us the next game," said Alberta second Bill Tainsh after the Edmonton crew pulled off an 8-6 victory against Prince Edward Island.

Newfoundland downed Ontario 10-6 in the morning round and defeated Nova Scotia 9-6 in the afternoon.

NFLD. A THREAT

"Newfoundland is the only ones we're worried about right now said Tainsh. "They're curling great and we'll have to watch them."

Meanwhile, Saskatchewan kept pace with Newfoundland by posting an 8-5 victory over P.E.I. and downing British Columbia 8-6 on the strength of a three-ender coming home.

Quebec defeated Nova Scotia 8-4 and downed Ontario 9-7, while British Columbia was walloping New Brunswick 11-5 and Manitoba was edging Northern Ontario 8-5 in other games Wednesday.

Capozzi Joins Soriano . . . . . . . At Celebrity Dinner

They All Agree Herb Can Talk

When Herb Capozzi was general manager of B.C. Lions, there were some who didn't always agree with his methods of handling the Western Football League club. Just about everybody, however, agreed that he had a touch of big-league talent as a speaker.

Now, of course, Herb expends most of his oratorical energies in the legislature as MLA for Vancouver Centre but he's still rated a fine after-dinner speaker and he'll be joining Dewey Soriano in the speaking league at the Empress Hotel on April 1.

The occasion is the second annual Sports Celebrity Dinner, co-sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich and the Greater Victoria Sports Council.

Soriano, former president of the Pacific Coast League and now president of Seattle Pilots, new expansion club in major league baseball, was the first sports celebrity to confirm appearance as a main speaker at the dinner, Capozzi completed arrangements to join Soriano Wednesday and other guests will be announced within the next few days.

Capozzi, a Kelowna product who directed the Lions when they won their only Grey Cup crown, spent one season as a player with Calgary Stampeders and three with Montreal Alouettes before starting a 10-year term as boss of the Lions.

Among highlights of the dinner will be presentations of awards to leading Victoria sports figures. Awards will be made to the sportsman-of-the-year, top male and female athlete of the past 12 months and the leading team in the same period.

Tickets for the dinner, costing $10 each, are available from Kiwanians, members of the sports council and at Memorial, Esquimalt and Pearkes arenas.

Puck Ties Broken

Deadlocks were broken in the second game of both best-of-three semi-final series for the Vancouver Island Hockey League title Wednesday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

League-champion Stockers North Americans downed Butler Brothers 3-2 while runner-up University of Victoria Vikings thumped Queen's Own Rifles 5-2. Both series were tied after opening games last Friday.

Errol Goulden gave Stockers their victory as he pushed the puck home while flat out on the ice during a third-period goalmouth scramble. Wayne Anderson had tied the game for Butlers early in the final frame.

Jim Shkwarok and Tom Mullan notched the other Stocker goals while Don Robinson scored Butlers' first goal in the second period.

PLAYMAKING ACE

Paul Bion, although not actually scoring a goal, rates as the leading playmaker for Vikings after setting up their first four tallies.

Gill Gidden, Terry Forman, Greg Gow, Mike McAvoy and Gary Hales recorded goals for Vikings whereas Dave Stones and Len Desjardins took care of scoring for Rifles.

Vikings led 3-0 in the first period.

Third games are scheduled for the Sports Centre on Friday, with Butlers taking on Stockers at 7:45 p.m. and Rifles facing Vikings at 9:15.

VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

Vancouver Island Open and Handicap Match Play Golf Championships

Entry form and fee ($5.00) to be mailed to Leo Derman, Secretary, Gorge Vale Golf Club, Victoria, B.C. (Entry deadline is March 15.)

(Fee MUST Accompany Entry)

Entry limited to 160, based on low handicaps. Qualifying round (18 holes) at Gorge Vale Golf Club March 30.

Leo Has a Hunch About Open Limit

Some of the higher handicapped players may have been frightened off because of past history, but Leo Derman "has a hunch" about the entry limit for this year's Times Island Open golf tournament.

The annual match-play tournament gets under way March 30 with the 18-hole qualifying round at Gorge Vale.

Derman, the tournament secretary, said Wednesday "about 100" entries have been received. The limit is 160, with preference going to the lowest handicapped golfers.

During the past three years, only golfers with handicaps of less than 12 were able to squeeze into the starting field.

"I have an idea there may be room for some 13s and 14s," Derman said. For their benefit, and hopefully, the official entry form is reprinted on the right.

Derman hasn't checked the entries thoroughly, but he notes that "a lot of the old guard is missing." Some feel the six-week tournament march around Victoria courses is becoming too tough.

Others, like perennial challenger Laurie Kerr of Colwood, are faced with other commitments.

Kerr has missed only one tournament since The Daily Times began sponsoring the event 20 years ago. He is forced to miss his second this year because of a long-arranged trip to Las Vegas.

Among entries already received are those from defending champion Vaughan Trapp of Oak Bay and Cowichan professional Norm Boden, another past winner of The Times trophy.

Entries must be mailed to Derman at the Gorge Club.

Hubettes Ramble In Opening Games

VANCOUVER — Nanaimo Hubettes, Mennonite Educational Institute, New Westminster and Salmon Arm displayed impressive form Wednesday to post unbeaten records in the first two rounds of the provincial high school girls' basketball tournament.

Hubettes, the Vancouver Island champions, crushed Trail 56-28 in the first round and went on to blast Queen Elizabeth of Surrey 33-5 in the second round.

OAK BAY LOSES

MEI of Abbotsford outscored Prince George 23-18 in the first round and downed Oak Bay 25-14 in the second.

New Westminster downed Prince Rupert 60-19 and in the second round defeated Penticton 29-11.

Salmon Arm downed the Fernie team 43-24 and came back to improve their margin of Victory in the second round, downing Vancouver's John Oliver 47-17.

In other first-round games scores were: Oak Bay 27, Richmond 24; Kamloops 26, Queen Elizabeth 20; Claremont of Saanich 42, Penticton 32; Hope 27, John Oliver 25.

McGinnis Playoff Resumes Tonight

Victoria Automatic Transmission faces Empress Paint in hopes of terminting their best-of-three semi-final series in the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League playoffs in straight games tonight in Memorial Arena.

Game time is 8:15.

VAT won the opening game last Saturday.

Victoria Grabs Playoff Lead

Victoria took a commanding lead in the two-game, total-goal final for the Lower Island peewee hockey title Wednesday by downing Saanich Braves 7-4 at G. R. Pearkes Arena.

Second game of the series is slated for 5:30 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Arena.

First Uniteds Win Opener

First United DCs trounced Saanich 47-10 in the opening game of a two-game, total-point series for the Lower Island midget girls' basketball championship Wednesday at Cordova Bay Community Hall.

Margaret Mainwaring and Shirley Marshall each pumped in 10 points to pace the DC attack.

Final game is slated for Monday starting at 7:30 p.m. at S. J. Willis High School.

Maritime Girls Own Sparkling Win Skein

A New Brunswick team with a sensational record may be rated only as "a darkhorse hope" when the Canadian senior "A" women's basketball tournament gets under way in Victoria.

The four-team, double-loss-elimination tournament will open Friday at the University of Victoria gymnasium with Windsor meeting Winnipeg and Victoria Maplettes facing the University of New Brunswick.

The opening-round games are scheduled to start at 7:30 and 9 p.m. The three-day tournament continues Saturday and winds up on Sunday.

University of New Brunswick manager Marg McGaw, in a letter to Victoria officials, said the far-east team has been unbeaten "in about 90 games" against Maritime competition during the past four years.

SWITCH IN RULES

But the UNB girls may only rate as darkhorse threats to win the championship claimed by Victoria Rawlings last year. The reason: New Brunswick made the transition from playing vanishing "girls' rules" to "men's rules" only a few years ago.

Western teams have long since adopted the "men's rules."

Of the four teams competing for national honors, New Brunswick also offers the only distaff coach — Sandra Robinson. Maplettes are coached by Jack Lusk, Windsor by Bill Thomson and Winnipeg by Al Crockett.

The eastern teams are scheduled to arrive in Victoria tonight.

TEAM ROSTERS

NEW BRUNSWICK — Leckie Langley, Diane Schroder, Bunni Nurmi, Carolyn Savoy, Linda Lowe, Karen Lee, Joyce Douthwright, Sandra Humes, Mary Ann Aitkenhead, Leslie Olmstead. Coach—Sandra Robinson; manager—Marg McGaw.

WINNIPEG—Jo-Ann Schultz, J. Wood, Doreen Glenz, Laurie Levielle, Gina Nufeld, Janice Riel, Diane Theberge, Laurie Watson, Marion Doyle, Lesley Hamerton. Coach—Al Crocket; manager—Len Harvey.

WINDSOR — Mary Kern, Margaret Hickson, Madeline Chase, Beverley Clenighan, Carmen Eaton, Patricia Harrison, Elizabeth Thomson, Cherie Martin, Sharon Chaney, Nancy Conkie. Coach—William Thomson; manager—David Cooke.

VICTORIA — Angie Radanovich, Mary Coutts, Diana Brozuk, Arlene Wallwin, Doreen Lusk, Gail Bonner, Sylvia Campbell, Marilyn Johnston, Judy Bourne, Irene Smith, Renata Kruegar, Marg Foreman. Coach—Jack Lusk.

Woman Jockey Eyes Greenwood

TORONTO (CP) — Barbara Jo Rubin, first woman jockey to win a race on a recognized United States track, wants to ride March 24 on the opening day of the Ontario thoroughbred racing season.

Her agent, Jimmy Fagan, said he was negotiating some mounts for her on the Ontario circuit, which opens at Toronto's Greenwood track.

"Nothing is definite, but I have a few off-hand promises."

Junior Meet Opens Friday

Visiting squads will outnumber Victoria-area teams taking part in the Vancouver Island junior high school girls' basketball tournament, slated to start Friday at 4 p.m. in Central Junior High.

Lansdowne, S. J. Willis and St. Ann's Academy represent the southern portion of the Island while Campbell River, Port Alberni, Powell River, Salt Spring and Nanaimo's Wellington are entered from the northern zone.

Four games will be staged Friday night, and seven on Saturday beginning at 9 a.m., with the final slated for 8:30 p.m.

Play will follow a double-loss-elimination format.

Claremont Pair On Doubtful List

Claremont coach Ed Kubek remains confident of success in the Vancouver Island high school rugby final against Brentwood College Friday at Centennial Stadium despite the possible absence of two key players.

Forward Gerry Sedger, one of the leaders in the tough tackling that helped stop Mount Douglas in the city final, injured a knee in a junior game last weekend and backfield ace Ray Thornber is troubled by a leg injury.

Although Claremont downed Brentwood in an exhibition match earlier this season, Kubek says the Brentwood squad has improved "tremendously" since then and is particularly strong in the scrum.

Game time Friday is 2:30 p.m.

Bill Would 'Preserve' Newspapers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to allow two newspapers which operate under a joint arrangement to be treated as a single entity under anti-trust laws was introduced in the House of Representatives Wednesday by more than 80 members.

Representative Ed Edmondson (Dem.—Okla.), one of the sponsors, told the House the measure, known as the newspaper preservation bill, would amend the anti-trust laws in order to preserve news and editorial competition.

"We are all aware of the death of many of the great news voices by papers simply going out of business, or being purchased by a competitor in the same city," he said.

"Each time a newspaper dies, there is one less voice in the market place of ideas, and our democratic system of government loses something of its strength."

Edmondson said Monday's Supreme Court ruling, in which the high court said competing daily newspapers violate the anti-trust laws when they pool their profits and use common advertising departments, would stifle competition.

The bill may run into trouble when it comes up before the judiciary anti-trust subcommittee for action. There was little support for a similar measure last year.

Woman Plans to Lend Ear To Victoria's Deaf People

By PAT DUFOUR

A seamstress who emigrated from Yogoslavia 12 years ago has set her sights on creating a centre for deaf people in the Victoria area.

Mrs. F. C. Pusnik, 650 Linden, feels that Victoria is lagging in its facilities for deaf adults. There are none.

She reports that there are 20 such adults in the area. She met four of them by accident on the street.

"I noticed them using sign language on the street and began talking with them." The four are now her first directors of what she hopes will become a community-wide organization. The group has already held two meetings, being joined by about 24 deaf and their relatives.

MAIN OBJECTIVE

Their main objective is to create a centre which will provide room, board and services for the elderly deaf, with extra rooms for younger deaf persons because "it is important that the old have regular contact with the young."

Mrs. Pusnik began working as a volunteer with deaf people in her native town of Vuhred-Maribor. She reports that Yogoslavia has had an effective program for the deaf, including residential homes, for the past 100 years.

She hopes to form a branch of the Western Institute for the Deaf, which is based in Vancouver. The mainland city, too, is without such a centre as she envisions.

Mrs. Pusnik explains that the deaf's main tragedy is their inability to communicate with those who can hear. "My heart aches with the hurt they feel because of their isolation."

She says that the deaf appear to be the only ones who are not receiving a measure of attention in Victoria. "The blind have beautiful facilities, the handicapped, too, but there is nothing for the deaf."

She cites an incident in Yugoslavia as an example. "I was once able to help when an old farmer died, leaving five sons, four of whom were deaf. The one who had hearing tried to cheat his brothers out of their share the farm. I persuaded the others to go to court and helped them win their case."

Mrs. Pusnik is kept busy helping her deaf friends in Victoria. One of the first she met was through the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

"They phoned me and asked me to persuade one of their patients to co-operate and take her pills. When I explained to her what the nurses were trying to do she was quite contented. It helped her."

EGYPT NAMES ARMY CHIEF

CAIRO (Reuters) — Maj.-Gen. Ahmed Ismail Ali was appointed chief of staff of the United Arab Republic armed forces today to succeed Gen. Abdul Moneium Riad, killed in action Sunday. Riad was killed by an Israeli shell during an artillery duel across the Suez Canal zone.

Heart Transplant Jogger

TORONTO (CP) — A 54-year-old Toronto man who received a new heart Nov. 18 now is jogging two miles a day outside his Toronto home.

"He wanted to jog and he asked us if he could and we said yes," said Dr. James Yao, one of the medical team which gave Perrin Johnston the heart of an 18-year-old student in the operation last year at St. Michael's Hospital.

Dr. Yao said Mr. Johnston can "climb two flights of stairs better than we can—we're very pleased with his progress."

The doctor said the main reason for the success of the transplant appears to be the close match of the donor heart tissue with Mr. Johnston's tissue.

He was the fourth person in Toronto to be given a heart transplant and is one of two survivors.

Pietro Ongaro, 42, who received a new heart Oct. 19 at Toronto Western Hospital, is progressing well.

Inlet Group Asks Another Chance

Residents of the View Royal Panhandle were misrepresented at an Esquimalt council meeting Monday night, the president of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Society said Wednesday.

Society president Dr. J. W. Rogers said council was told the petition for sanitary sewers failed to achieve two-thirds majority because of high costs and that residents are happy with spetic tanks, which drain into ditches and the Gorge.

"This to me puts the panhandle people in a most unsavory light and it's not true,"

"The majority there want sewers. The reason why the majority didn't vote for sewers is that they are not happy with the way replotting of the whole area is being handled by the muncipality."

Dr. Rogers also said that not all the ratepayers were approached to sign the sewer petition—he knows of four persons and there were probably more.

Two people were approached in "such a poor public relations way" that it put their backs up, he said.

These were the reasons the sewer bylaw failed to achieve two-thirds majority and not high costs, liking to live with septic tanks or resistance to sanitary sewers, he said.

The Gorge society is "very much in favor of supporting another petition and I'd like to see it start right away and we will almost personally guarantee it will go through, if they all vote."

Esquimalt council was told Monday night that the total number of signatures required for 100 per cent participation of the 65 properties would be 116. So far 74 signatures had been obtained and only seven more were needed to make up the two-thirds majority.

Mayor Ray Bryant said the only thing council can do is defer the petition until later.

Trespass Charges Denied

Allegations and denials of trespass on private property by Patricia Bay Highway surveyors were made in the legislature Tuesday.

John Tisdalle, Social Credit member for Saanich and The Islands constituency, said a "continual complaint" by roadside residents is the sudden appearance of surveyors' stakes in driveways and workers trampling over lawns without asking permission.

Highways Minster Wesley Black denied hearing of any such complaints.

"I think (Tisdalle's) gall bladder may have been disturbing him when he got up this morning . . . he's swinging left and right" with criticism, he said.

The minister said he would like to know of any people tramping through private property but "not one person speaking to me has said this took place."

Tisdalle said the survey crews are courteous but "there should be some forewarning" of the need to work on someone's property.

Second Grant For Special Classes

The provincial government has made a second supplementary grant to the Greater Victoria school board to help pay for special education classes.

Such classes include those for retarded children, the emotionally disturbed and physically handicapped.

The second supplementary grant for $164,052 follows one for $522,152 announced in January.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said in the legislature recently that his department's study of school board budgets showed additional funds were justified to support the special classes operated in urban areas.

Some other school districts, including Sooke, will receive supplementary sums to help special classes. Occupational classes are being included in the new special grant.

RETIRING this week is Lt.-Col. J. Kenneth Dalgliesh, 1581 Bonita Place, who for the past three years has served as assistant judge advocate on the staff of the commander, Maritime Forces Pacific, Esquimalt. He will join the department of veteran's affairs, Vancouver, as pensions advocate.

Nigeria Rejects Ceasefire

LAGOS (AP) — A Nigerian spokesman today rejected Biafra's new call for a ceasefire and peace negotiations, saying it was based on conditions "we have already rejected."

External Affairs Commissioner Okoi Arikpo said Nigeria's terms for an end to the civil war, now in its 21st month, are unchanged. They include Biafra's renunciation of secession and its return to the federation.

Radio Biafra reported the proposal by the Biafran leader, Lt.-Col. Odumegu Ojukwu, for a ceasefire and peace negotiations. Ojukwu also appealed to the six Common Market countries to join in an arms embargo.

Arikpo said no official word of the Ojukwu appeal has "come to us."

Campbell Wins Prize Grammy

NEW YORK (UPI) — By the Time I Get to Phoenix, by Glen Campbell, won a Grammy, the recording industry's most coveted award, as the best album of 1968, Wednesday night.

Bobby Russell's Little Green Apples was the song of the year and Jose Feliciano was named the best new artist of 1968.

Paul Simon's score for the movie The Graduate was named the best written for a motion picture or a television special.

Dionne Warwick won the award for the best female pop vocal performance for her Do You Know the Way to San Jose and Feliciano took the honors in the male pop category with Light My Fire.

The award winners are chosen by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, a nonprofit organization composed of individual members of the industry. This year there were 5,000 nominations and two rounds of balloting, with the list being narrowed to five in each category.

The award for the best performance by a pop group went to Simon and Garfunkel for their performance of Mrs. Robinson, from The Graduate.

Negro comedian Bill Cosby received the award for the best comedy recording for his To Russell, My Brother, Whom I Slept With."

The best score from an original cast show album was the Broadway show Hair.

Duke Ellington's And His Mother Called Him Bill won the award for the best instrumental jazz performance by a large group and the Bill Evans Trio won the award for a small group with Bill Evans at the Montreux Jazz Festival.

In the classics, the conducting award went to Pierre Boulez of the new Philharmonia Orchestra for Boulex Conducts Debussy.

The opera recording award went to Erich Leinsdorf and the New Philharmonic Orchestra for Mozart's Cosi Fan Tutte with Leontyne Price in the leading role.

Aretha Franklin won the award for the best rhythm and blues vocal performance with her Chain of Fools and the late Otis Redding won the male award for Dock of the Bay, which also earned the best songwriting award for Redding and Steve Cropper.

Cloud Nine by the Temptations won the group performance award in the rhythm and blues category.

Other awards included:

● Jeannie C. Riley, best country vocal, for Harper Valley PTA.

● Johnny Cash, country male vocal, Folsom Prison Blues.

Much Found to Praise In Three School Plays

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Good choice of plays and an excellent over-all standard added up to a fine evening's entertainment when the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival visited Mount View Senior Secondary School Wednesday.

There were three plays on the program and Mrs. Jane Benson, in adjudicating, found much to praise in all of them.

Colquitz Junior Secondary School
THE MIGHTY MR. SAMPSON
by Virginia Knight

Maroosia Ivanova ..... Karen Jackson
Mr. Sampson ..... Bart Hoen
Nikolai ..... Douglas Browning
Peter ..... Ed Van der Wit
Fedar ..... Terry Shaw
The Pig ..... Liz Harris
Director: L. E. Johnston

This was a delightful production, Mrs. Benson considered. The director had used color well; everything was bright and clean and quite Russian in effect.

"But you have an excellent stage with a good eye wall (the back stage wall against which lighting effects can be created) — why not make use of it?" she asked.

As she has been in many of the festival's productions, Mrs. Benson was critical of the shallow use made of the stage which resulted in one-dimensional or straight-line movement.

All the actors, she thought, had played well and appeared to understand what they were saying.

North Saanich Junior Secondary School
TWO SIDES OF DARKNESS
by Edwin R. Procunier

Lysander ..... Richard Lucas
Melena ..... Rosemary Whitehouse
Bert ..... George Foley
Jenny ..... Allison Penny
Son ..... Lanny Barkley
Father ..... John Russell
Chorus: Jo-Anne Criddle, Tanis Erickson, Colleen Jacobsen, Joan Lord, Johanna Lace
Director: Q. M. Russell

This was a play cast in the Grecian mold and involved a speaking chorus.

Mrs. Benson said that it was quite a good choice and gave the young cast plenty of scope.

The grouping of the chorus had been well handled but while articulation was good, the voices were pitched too high which limited their range. Pace also needed more variety.

She felt the whole cast was deserving of praise for the spirit with which they had worked together.

The setting was imaginative, but again — "if only the eye had been used to give us an effect of blue sky it would have helped to create the sense of timelessness the play demanded," Mrs. Benson commented.

Mount View Senior Secondary School
A MARRIAGE PROPOSAL

Natalia Stepanovna ..... Madeleine Duncan
Ivan Vassilyitch Lomov ..... Robert Hudson
Stepan Stepanovitch Tschubykov ..... Stew Motteram
Director: D. Recchi

This was an extremely good performance of a worthwhile but really difficult comedy.

Mrs. Benson usually prefers to keep her remarks on the actors in general, but in this instance she felt compelled to mention specifically Robert Hudson who, she said, showed a remarkable sense of comedy timing, good action and reaction and changes of pace.

There had been a fine brisk tempo throughout, she commented, and at the same time, variety.

"The director had the right approach. There was artistry here," she said, although she criticized some awkward blocking and a set she felt was somewhat unfinished.

"But the acting altogether was among the best I've seen," she concluded.

Tonight's program will be seen at Victoria Senior High with two entries from the host school and one from Glenlyon.

Friday afternoon there will be an elementary session at Millstream School with Sooke, Prospect Lake and Millstream presenting plays.

Indian Dancers To Perform Here

Eight Indian dancers from Juneau, Alaska, will present a program at the Provincial Museum Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The Chilkat male dancers, currently tourng the United States, will be sponsored by the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Association.

Msgr. M. T. O'Connell of St. Andrew's Cathedral will be the guest speaker when the association holds a meeting Thursday, March 27, at 7:45 p.m. He will speak on Social Aspects of the Urban Indian.

Baptists To Hear Talk

Rev. H. Douglas Graham, pastor of Kings Park Baptist Church, Glasgow, Scotland, for eight years, will speak in Central Baptist Church, Friday, at 2 p.m.

He is now representing the Leprosy Mission in Toronto.

CHARGED with possession of marijuana today are Beatle George Harrison and his wife, Patti, after detectives raided their $48,000 home in Esher, south of London. The couple were released on bail of $480 each. Harrison is the second Beatle to be arrested on marijuana charges within five months, the other being John Lennon.

BIG GAMBLE BY ACTRESS IS COSTLY

TORONTO (CP) — Sharon Acker gambled a promising Hollywood future against a stage career in her native Canada—and lost both.

After a role in Point Blank, starring Lee Marvin, roles in Canadian and United States television shows and parts in two Canadian films, she decided on a Canadian stage career.

Now she is in Toronto, out of work.

Gov.-General Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener returned to Canada Tuesday night from a week's Caribbean holiday which followed a 21-day visit to Jamaica, Guyana, Barbados and Trinidad and Tobago.

B.C. Magistrates to Be Called Judges in New System

British Columbia's magistrates will become judges Aug. 1 in the first stage of the province's reorganization of the courts.

The change in status was the main feature of a bill given first reading Wednesday in the legislature.

Called the Provincial Court Act, it will be followed by bills making county and supreme courts into a single superior court while the appeal court will become supreme court.

Consolidation of the courts was promised in the Jan. 23 throne speech and the budget includes $800,000 to pay the salaries of the new judges.

Magistrates are now paid by municipalities or territories where they work. Although the province is taking over this expense, local areas will continue to pay court staffs and supply court buildings.

Of the 250 magistrates, only 60 are full-time and legally-trained, working in urban centres. The rest work on a part-time basis in sparsely populated areas.

The bill would also elevate family and children's court judges and small debts court magistrates to the status of provincial court judge.

Under the present system, full-time magistrates receive an average $14,500 a year in smaller centres and $17,000 in metropolitan centres.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson declined to say what the new salaries will be.

Peterson told a reporter a judicial council proposed by the bill will be the first in Canada.

Composed of representatives from the bench, law society and government, the judicial council will consider proposals for improving provincial court services and also hear complaints about judges.

Although the cabinet will continue appointing the judges, as it did magistrates, the judicial council will help screen suitable candidates for the appointment list.

Its members will include the court's senior judge, no more than two district judges appointed by the attorney-general, the treasurer of the B.C. Law Society and no more than three other persons appointed by the cabinet.

Before the Magistrate

A girl who stole because her friends said "why pay when you can get it for nothing," pleaded guilty Wednesday to shoplifting.

Patricia Wyman, 19, of 1749 Rockland, was remanded to March 20 for sentence.

She was seen by a Bay security officer putting a sweater in a flight bag Tuesday and leave without paying. When caught, she admitted taking another two sweaters and a purse.

Total value of the goods was just over $28.

She told store officials she was an education student at University of Victoria and took the goods because several friends of hers at the university were of the opinion you needn't pay if you could steal.

Glen Gordon Wright, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to theft over $50 and was remanded to March 21 for sentence.

Det. John Rickerby said on March 1 Wright, with a woman, entered a city hotel room where a 61-year-old woman was lying on a bed.

He said Wright removed $93 from the foot of her stocking and left. The woman searched the downtown area for him before reporting the incident to police.

Wright was not apprehended until March 4 when he again entered the hotel and approached the woman. He denied taking the money but Wednesday told the magistrate he had.

He said the woman was inebriated when he came in and he asked her for money to buy a bottle. He said she mentioned something about a sock which he noticed she was lying on. He reached in and "came out with $70."

A 21-year-old American girl was given a one-year suspended sentence after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana.

Mary Christine Purcell, Bellevue, Wash., appeared in Sidney magistrate's court following her arrest Tuesday. She was also ordered to post a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

Police said she had about half an ounce of the drug in her possession.

After sentence was given the magistrate told the girl she should leave the country right away. RCMP said she caught the next ferry.

David Ferguson, 18, of 3708 Tillicum, was sentenced from six to 12 months in the Young Offenders Unit for possessing marijuana. He was convicted of the offence a week ago.

During his trial police testified he was arrested after a bag, later found to contain the drug, was thrown from the window of a car in which Ferguson was a passenger.

Seven witnesses testified during the preliminary hearing for a man charged with committing perjury during his trial for impaired driving last year.

Edward Courtepatte, 11A Eaton, was convicted Nov. 8 of driving while impaired Sept. 29.

The current charges says he committed perjury while testifying on certain matters during his defence. The case will continue March 21.

Mine Group Criticizes Controls

The government's proposed controls for strip-mining operations are too strong, the legislature's mining committee was told by the B.C. Mining Association Wednesday.

S. R. Rothman, president of the 70-company association, presented a brief which objected to imposing the controls on existing operations.

He also said restoration of the land to its state before surface mining begins is unrealistic and the legislation should only require reclamation.

The bills would force strip mine operators to reclaim the land they strip by a section stipulating "continuous and progressive restoration, reclamation and conservation of the surface."

However, the association said that in most cases "continuous and progressive reclamation and conservation is impossible."

"It is difficult to visualize any case in which restoration, continuous and progressive or otherwise, can be achieved.

"We suggest that the quoted words should be struck out and replaced by the words "reclamation and conservation of the surface, which shall be progressive to the extent possible . . ."

The association said that in many instances restoration is "physically impossible or economically unfeasible and unwarranted."

Limps Into Port

HALIFAX (CP) — The damaged British freighter Montcalm made port Wednesday with part of a dump truck sticking through a hole in her side. The 5,000-ton ship limped here with water in her hold but travelling on her own power.

'Too Late If Planning A Problem'

DUNCAN — When planning becomes a problem it is already too late to do anything about it, Duncan city representative Jim Saunders told the Cowichan Valley Regional Board Wednesday night.

Saunders said some planning should begin now and that the "business of a regional board revolves around planning." It's too late to start planning a nice neighborhood when someone has started to raise pigs next door, he said.

His comments led to a lively discussion among other directors and representatives. Board secretary Peter Hayward said he could arrange to have consultants discuss planning with members of the board at their request.

TALK TO CONSULTANT

A motion was passed that a planning consultant from Victoria be invited to address the next regular meeting.

Shawnigan Lake director David Laverock said small areas like his did not need planning nor would require any for some time. However, representative Bruce Devitt said the largely recreational, retirement area could change rapidly and unsatisfactorily without proper planning now.

North Cowichan representative John Cannon said an example of lack of planning was downtown Chemainus where a recent survey indicated urban renewal would cost $3 million.

Director H. A. Warner said, "We're against anything that would change Mill Bay. You start planning and it opens the door to all sorts of building restrictions."

BY THE LEFT . . . NUMBER!

DUNCAN — An orderly numbering system should go hand in hand with development of water supply, garbage collection and fire protection, municipal consultant Glen Rowe told the Cowichan Valley Regional Board Wednesday night.

Rowe demonstrated a grid number system to the board showing how it could "tie in" with other grids already in operation in the Cowichan Valley.

He is currently designing one for Lake Cowichan village and designed a similar system for North Cowichan municipality 12 years ago.

Rowe, from Oakville, Ont., said the grid system is flexible enough to take in cul-de-sacs and other modern street developments and "in the event one house goes on a double lot or two stores come out and four go in, there is no break in sequence."

DO IT YOURSELF

He said one problem in every area was getting people to put up new numbers to replace old ones. Sending them the numbers in the mail wasn't enough.

"You have to go out and put them up yourself — nothing else works."

He said some residents like to retain their old numbers because they've been carved into wood or made "permanent" in concrete posts. He offered to coordinate and lay out a plan in seven days for $940 provided large scale maps were supplied.

PIANO DUETS, SIGHT READING

DUNCAN — Donna and Diane Louie of Duncan won the Glenora PTA trophy Wednesday for their piano duet rendition of Little Festival March at the continuing Cowichan Music Festival.

Marlene Archer and Leanne Mayer of Ganges placed a close second in the junior classes under 10 years old.

Dagmar and Douglas Kilian of Duncan won the Bayview PTA trophy for under 12 years. The duets intermediate class under 13 years was won by Jayne Postuk and Gordin Kilian of Duncan. They were awarded the Duncan Elementary PTA trophy.

Barbara May and Margaret Bangs of Queen Margaret's School won the Fairbridge PTA trophy for under 15 years.

In other events Wednesday:

Donna Louie won the CMF pin for sight reading under 10 years.

Douglas Kilian won the Bach CMF trophy over Lorraine Dods of Ganges in the intermediate classes under 14 years. Gordon Kilian won the CMF trophy in the same event for pianists under 15 years. He also took the CMF trophy for intermediate classes under 15 for competition for composers of the 20th century.

Pamela Jameson of Ladysmith won the Island Cleaners trophy for a selection by a Canadian composer in the senior classes under 16 years.

Pauline Lundemann of Lake Cowichan won the Isabel Tarlton trophy for under 16 classes in the Sonatinas and sonatas for senior classes. Deborah Scarrow of Queen Margaret's won the Dreany Pharmacy trophy for under 16 years for her rendition of a Bach selection in the senior classes.

Emily Chow of Duncan won the CMF trophy for the same division for seniors under 18 years.

Trophy Winners

DUNCAN — Jane Borger of Duncan won the Duncan Rotary Club trophy Tuesday for her recitation of "The Bird that Sings" at the 20th annual Cowichan Valley Music Festival.

Colleen McAdam of Ladysmith was second and Judy Gagnon of Ladysmith was third in girls under eight years class. Joseph Battie of Ladysmith was a close winner of the St. Mary's trophy over John Boonstra of Duncan in the boys under eight years competition.

Diane Louie of Duncan won the CMF trophy in the recitations competiton for girls under nine. The CMF pin was won by Tina Milino of Duncan who was second.

In the dialogue division of the speech arts competitions, Joanne Evans and Janet Hayes of Duncan won the Ladysmith Junior Theatre trophy.

The Hayes trophy went to Linda Syme and Ken Pite of Chemainus in the girls and boys under 19 years class.

'Somebody Using Regulations To Close Discotheque:' Owner

DUNCAN — A Duncan businessman says he will go to court before he will allow his building housing the Alter Ego Discotheque to be closed down because of alleged inadequate fire precautions.

Bill Jaynes said in an interview, "I'd like to see anyone in this town match my facilities. If the fire marshall closes me down they'll have to close down everyone in town."

His anger arose when Alderman Dick Benzies said in his report as chairman of the fire protection committee to city council that the Alter Ego was already closed because it didn't conform to fire regulations.

Mr. Jaynes said his building, which also houses a hardware store downstairs, has the very latest in fire protection equipment.

"All the building inspector asked me to do was to install a little guard rail on the fire escape steps and this only took a few minutes to do."

He said he had "panic lights" installed, the only ones in the city. "The new fire regulations require that automatic egress lights be installed in case of power failure so occupants can still see the exit signs. I'm the only one who's got them."

The Alter Ego, which opened this winter, is run by Ron Bennetts and is open Friday and Saturday nights. It has become a favorite of teenagers.

"Somebody wants an excuse to shut the discotheque down," Jaynes said. "And they are using the fire regulations as an excuse."

Fined In Fatal Mishap

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Kenneth Charles Blake, 21, of Cobble Hill was convicted Wednesday of driving without due care and attention in connection with the Jan. 11 accident in which a Cobble Hill pedestrian was fatally injured.

Blake was fined $100 and his licence suspended for six months in magistrate's court. Katherine French, 15, was struck by a car driven by Blake as she was walking along the Old Island Highway near Cobble Hill. She died in hospital three days later.

Plea Change Refused By Court

BURNABY (CP) — A magistrate Tuesday refused Edward Gerald Johnson, 25, permission to change his plea of guilty to one of not guilty to creating a disturbance in a student demonstration last November.

Magistrate Lawrence Goulet said that when Johnson had pleaded guilty, he had said he understood the charge and had consulted counsel. Johnson said Tuesday he had been confused at the time.

Johnson is one of 106 young persons to be sentenced March 19 on charges arising out of student occupation of the Simon Fraser University administration offices for 70 hours.

Another eight have pleaded not guilty and are to appear for trial April 28. Those who have pleaded guilty have, like Johnson, been appearing at intervals to make submissions before sentencing.

Nation's Labor Force Shows 20,000 Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment reversed a normal trend for the time of year and increased slightly between January and February while unemployment rose slightly to 473,000, a government survey showed today.

A Dominion Bureau of Statistics and labor department survey showed that the labor force increased by 20,000 to 7,911,000 at mid-February.

Employment, which usually shows little change at this time of year, rose to 7,438,000 from 7,424,000 a month earlier.

The jobless totalled 473,000, up from 467,000 a month earlier. A year earlier there were 483,000 unemployed.

Compared with a year earlier, the labor force increased by a substantial 322,000 or 4.2 per cent. Employment also gained substantially by 331,000 or 4.7 per cent.

Farm employment was virtually unchanged from January to February. There were small employment gains in manufacturing, community, business and personal service, and transportation, communications and other utilities. These were offset by declines in trade and construction.

Employment in Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia rose slightly but a small decrease was recorded for Quebec. Atlantic region employment showed little change.

Florida Police Discover Guerrilla Camp in Swamp

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Following a dead man's trail, police slogged deep into the Everglades Wednesday and arrested 12 heavily-armed men they say were training for an invasion of Haiti.

One of those arrested is said to be a Canadian citizen and the group was said to be financed by a Haitian exile in Montreal.

The men dressed in camouflage uniforms included 10 Haitian exiles and two North Americans who were in charge of the camp.

Unofficial sources said the North Americans were former members of the United States Army's special forces trained to aid guerrillas.

Monroe County Sheriff Robert Brown said the raiding party of deputies was told of the existence of the camp 50 miles into the swamp by the Florida highway patrol.

A patrol spokesman said troopers answering a telephoned report of shooting in the area stopped a car carrying a wounded man. Whoever was with the wounded man apparently told the police about the camp, said the spokesman.

Gerald D. Baker, shot in the chest, was dead on arrival at a Miami hospital.

"He apparently was shot during a training manoeuvre in which live ammunition was used," Brown said.

However, Eugene L. Maximilian, Haitian consul-general in Miami, said he had learned that Baker was shot after falling out among the trainees.

Brown said the former special forces members were Edward Koldy, 33, and William J. Dempsey, 26. Although both were listed as Americans, Maximilian said Dempsey was a Canadian.

"The federal people are looking into that with deportation in mind," said one of Brown's lieutenants. No hometown was listed for either man.

The occupants of the jungle camp surrendered without firing a shot.

Deputies confiscated 16 rifles, a similar number of .45-calibre pistols and knives as well as walkie-talkies and camping gear.

All 12 of those arrested were being held as material witnesses in Baker's death.

Last May, Haitian President Francois Duvalier's government said it crushed an invasion, killing 10 and capturing 16 invaders and seizing two B-25 bombers.

Maximilian said rebel groups were being financed by a Haitian exile in Montreal. He said the financier represented Haitian Communists at a tricontinent Communist conference in Cuba in 1966.

Summit Parley Plans Progress

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (WP) — Definite progress has been made in narrowing differences over a four-power meeting on the Middle East, an informed Western ambassador said Wednesday.

Although no date has been set, bilateral consultations among the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France have proceeded far enough in reconciling interpretations of the security council resolution of Nov. 22, 1967, for big four talks to be expected here shortly.

Discussion of the role of a new international peace force operating through the United Nations would be a principal topic of such a meeting, the ambassador said, along with the four-power guarantees of a Middle East settlement mentioned by President Nixon.

The aim is still to buttress the efforts of UN representative Gunnar Jarring to obtain agreements between the Arabs and Israelis, but the four powers now appear to have a potentially greater role in outlining a settlement in consultation with the parties.

This relative optimism about a four-power approach contrasted with the tension in the area resulting from artillery exchanges across the Suez Canal between Egypt and Israel.

One possible explanation of why the Egyptians started the renewed shelling, according to the Western ambassador, is that they have sought to demonstrate the danger of the situation in an attempt to bring pressure on the four powers for what would in effect be an imposed solution.

The Israelis have belittled the danger.

But an Arab source said Wednesday the Egyptians explained that the real reason they had initiated the exchanges was that the Israelis have been building launching sites along the east bank of the Suez Canal from which missiles could strike Cairo and other cities.

Thieves Steal $125

Saanich police are investigating the theft of $125 from a woman's purse Tuesday afternoon.

Police said thieves entered the house of Mrs. H. Jessie Dickson, 70 West Maddock, in mid-afternoon and took the money from a purse hanging on a bedroom door.

Mrs. Dickson was in the garden at the time. Entry to the house was through the unlocked back door, police said.

Earl Ray Still Man Of Mystery

By JOHN MORGANTHALER

NEW YORK (AP) — People who knew James Earl Ray say he wasn't a racist, he wasn't political and he wasn't a killer.

Why would a man like that kill Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.?

"I don't agree with theory that there was no conspiracy," Ray volunteered in the Memphis courtrom, where he pleaded guilty to Dr. King's murder and accepted a 99-year prison sentence.

His plea came on his 41st birthday.

His life, except for the one sensational crime, was undistinguished, secretive, almost faceless. Nearly one-third of it was spent in prison.

When he was fleeing the intensive manhunt following the murder of Dr. King he assumed identities of several strangers who looked like him.

"He was innocuous. He was the sort of prisoner you would rarely notice," said Fred Wilkinson, director of the Missouri department of corrections.

SENT TO STOCKADE

Ray was born in Alton, Ill., son of a laborer who had nine children.

He never married, although he lived briefly with women several times. He liked country and western music and went to dancing schools.

Ray was in the United States Army for three years after the Second World War, in the U.S. and in Europe. He was sent to the stockade for three months once for drunkenness and breaking arrest.

In 1948, disgruntled at being shifted from the military police to the infantry, he accepted a general discharge for "ineptness."

Brother John Larry Ray said Ray didn't drink or smoke and worked hard before his army stint.

"After he came back, he drank and didn't believe in working," the brother said. "The army changed his whole outlook on life."

After Ray returned to civilian life, he spent 13 of the next 19 years behind bars. He served eight months for burglary in Los Angeles, 22 months for robbery in Illinois, three years for forgery in Kansas and seven years for robbery in St. Louis.

DID IT FOR MONEY

"There was nothing in his mental makeup or background to indicate anything but a recidivistic criminal whose crimes were all associated with money," said Dr. Donald B. Peterson, superintendent of the Fulton, Mo., state hospital.

John Larry Ray agreed. "If my brother did kill King, he did it for a lot of money."

Ray made three attempts to escape from Missouri prison and succeeded on March 23, 1967, by hiding in a big breadbox.

In the interim before King's murder a little over a year later, Ray moved mysteriously to Canada, through the United States and Mexico, in the pay of a mysterious blonde Latin named Raoul, whom he met in Montreal.

He told of his travels in a journal made available exclusively to author William Bradford Huie. Ray told how Raoul set him up under false identity in Brimingham, Ala., bought him a white car, and financed a smuggling-and-vacation trip to Mexico and the west coast, where a plastic surgeon removed his one distinguishing mark — a prominent nasal tip.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1969 —PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

At our place, and possibly at yours, items aren't always sent out for mending the instant they go haywire. As a matter of fact, we didn't get around to consulting a repairman about our elderly record-player-plus-radio until eight years after it finally packed up on us.

The expert poked around in it, shook his head over it, then took its innards to his shop. On Monday, I came home to spot the tell-tale light in its base glowing brightly.

"Hey," I said to my dear one, "the little light's on."

"It's playing, too," she pointed out.

And so it was, for the first time since the Sunday when it quit on us in the middle of a stack of records—remember those good old 78s?—with a clatter and a long, declining growl.

"What's it playing?" I asked as we settled down to listen.

Then, clearly, though somewhat scratchily, the tune registered.

... Yumty, yumty, YUMTY, yum.

And the lyric: "Hopping down the bunny trail ..."

That record was one of a bunch we bought along with the machine in Toronto. It triggered memories of Easter baskets long emptied. We indulged these while the little light at the foot of the cabinet glowed, and the hard-used melody ground along its grooves.

★

Called 'em radio-phonographs back then, didn't they? Our son was three and our daughter wasn't, and we'd landed in the chips after a lengthy run of tough luck.

Then, bang-bang like that, I sold two short stories. So we went downtown on a bright day when the eastern spring was still only a hint and a promise, and bought that rig in the corner.

From time to time we added records to our collection. These ranged from the rowdy clear through to a sparing choice of the classical. Collection, did I say? It was the kind of scramble a family acquires from music stores, school fairs, and friends who, perhaps deliberately, forget to reclaim their discs after a party ...

The busy arm, functional once more, set another record in position.

This one was about an Easter bunny who did his trail-hopping where Texas bluebells chime. It occurred to me that we were running kind of heavy to rabbits.

Win agreed. "I think we'll get away from them next time," she told me.

At this point, our daughter spurred her sitzbuggy into the drive. She came in, glanced at the mended music box, and spoke in pleased tones.

"The little light's on again."

"It's got a mono-stereo cartridge, too," Win said, "and new needles, and they mended the record changer."

★

The Texas rabbit record clicked down, and another took over. This one was about a little white duck. Plainly, we weren't yet through with the fur and feather section.

"I know," Win said, "but these are all I can find." Then, to Sue, "Do you think some of our records could be at your place?"

"Maybe one or two," Sue replied. "I'll have a look."

We listened while the duck swallowed a frog.

Before the record had twirled its course, Ron stepped in.

He said, "I see the little light's working."

Patiently, Win explained. Then I asked Ron whether he'd borrowed any of our records.

"Don't remember," he said, "but I might have a couple."

Between them, they have managed to round up quite a nice little pile. It is topped off, maybe by mistake, with several of their own records.

Last night we played "South Pacific" from cover to cover, and made a good start on "My Fair Lady."

But what I'm really looking forward to is "Grand Canyon Suite." Tonight I mean to turn up the volume, and while the little light burns bright, listen to all those horses' hooves going clippity-clop-cloppity!

No Problem Seen In Moving Plant From Waterfront

Mayor Hugh Stephen insisted this morning that he anticipates no major problems when the time comes for Ocean Cement to move from the Inner Harbor.

The mayor was commenting on an earlier news story which stated that no formal negotiations for the cement plant property were under way between the city and the owning company.

The plant site is the key to the development of a $25 million project which will bring two highrise apartments and a waterfront hotel to Victoria.

RE-LOCATE PLANT

"It is some years now since the question of re-locating the plant first came up," the mayor said. "It has always been agreed, and amicably, between the company and the city that the plant would eventually be re-located away from the Inner Harbor.

"Our relationship with the company has always been excellent and I don't foresee any major difficulties when we finally get down to cases."

Mayor Stephen said he did not anticipate an overnight decision when negotiations commence.

"There will undoubtedly be some hard bargaining," he said. "But no more than there would be in any other line of endeavor. Ocean Cement does have re-location problems, but nothing we can't solve."

The mayor said no date had been set to open negotiations with the cement company.

"The next step in the urban renewal program should come in about two weeks time when our planners bring to council the physical plans and suggestions they have for the entire area, including the Ocean Cement plant site," he said.

"We hope that will form the basis of our application to Ottawa for funds for the program. It will be at about that time that we can start what I fully expect to be lengthy negotiations with Ocean Cement."

Wheel-Stealing Thief Leaves Car On Blocks

City police are looking for a daring thief with a particular yearning for automobile tires and wheels.

Daniel J. Normandeau, 200 Niagara, reported Wednesday someone had entered his garage overnight, jacked up his car and stole all four wheels, tires and hubcaps.

The car was left on blocks.

The tires, which he had purchased a few days earlier, were valued at $150, the wheels at $60 and the caps at $36.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there any place in Victoria where one can donate old eye-glasses to be given to the needy here or in developing countries? What are the addresses of Senator Eugene McCarthy and Dr. Benjamin Spock?—K.G.

A. For many years the local Lions Clubs collected eyeglasses for shipment to Pakistan and India. They were forced to give up the project because of shipment difficulties. It is suggested that the glasses be carefully wrapped and deposited in Goodwill boxes so that they may be distributed locally.

Senator McCarthy can be reached through the Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., while Dr. Spock's address is: 541 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10022.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Army At Sea As The Navy Dons Boots

Before everyone's in the same green uniform and it becomes difficult to tell the good guys from the bad buys, they are going to pit the army against the navy Saturday at Rocky Point.

The simulated battle will be fought between sea and land forces of the "Ready Reserves."

Fifty reserve sailors will defend Rocky Point against 115 reserve soldiers. (Old sailors claim that makes it an even fight.)

The sailors, acting as guerrillas, will hide in the area overnight arriving overland. The soldiers, in a similar turnabout, will attack from the sea, stealing ashore from three harbor craft in whalers and inflatable assault boats.

In the tradition of the services and with the bravado of soldiers facing sailors, the attackers have announced in advance they will invade at dawn.

The exercise, tagged Operation Seaboot, will extend over the two-day weekend with other attack methods and night patrol activities due for testing.

Units involved are HMCS Malahat and A Company, Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

NO WARNING SIGNS POSTED

City Forcing Hotels To Police Parking Ban

By JIM HUME, Times City Hall Reporter

Downtown hotel owners are bearing the brunt of public abuse for a duty arbitrarily placed on them by Victoria city council.

On Jan. 15 council passed a law making it an offence to park on downtown streets overnight. For several weeks police issued warning tickets advising motorists of the offence and then, two weeks ago, started issuing the real thing at a cost of $2.50 a ticket.

Apart from the warning ticket period and a request to hotel operators to inform their customers about the ban, the city has made no move to post signs warning the casual visitor to the city that overnight parking is illegal.

It's the latter city-imposed education program the hotels complain about.

John Sucloy, manager of the Dominion Hotel, Yates Street, says the city's method of imposing the overnight parking ban is "absolutely ridiculous."

"I have worked in many cities across Canada and I've never come across a traffic regulation imposed this way," he said. "When we have a guest check in he doesn't always tell us where he has parked his car, and we don't always have time to tell him that he can't park on the street.

'Unhappy Customers The Next Morning'

"If the desk clerk forgets to ask we have a very unhappy customer the next morning."

One unhappy customer checked into the Times office Wednesday with a receipt for $2.50 fine incurred when he checked into the Yates Hotel late Tuesday night and failed to receive the "no parking" advice from the desk clerk.

Bela Domjan, 234 East 15th Avenue, Vancouver, visits Victoria five or six times a year on business. In the past he has always left his car on Yates overnight.

Since his last visit the city imposed its overnight ban to make it easier for street sweepers to carry out their overnight duties.

"The $2.50 doesn't bother me too much," Domjan said. "But the fact that there are no warning signs, nothing to tell me that parking is illegal, does. How can the city fine a man just because a desk clerk had a lapse of memory?"

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady admits there is a moral problem but suggests that posting signs throughout the city would be the worst of two evils.

"I can see posting signs if the regulations affected the entire populace," he said.

"But they don't. They affect only a small number of people who check into hotels late at night or those who participate in the night life of the city.

"Is it worth putting another sign on our lamp standards for that?"

Traffic engineer Dave Campbell doesn't think so.

He bluntly stated that it was up to the hotel operators to inform the public, but when asked who should be liable for the fine if the desk clerk failed to pass the information on to guests answered "I don't know."

Inn Picks Up Tab For Ticket Or Tow Charge

At the Century Inn manager Bruce Auchinvole says they have partially solved the problem by picking up the cost of parking tickets or tow-away fees when a guest inadvertently breaks the law.

"It's costly, but in the interests of public relations we feel it necessary. But that doesn't solve the problem entirely. I'm sure many of our guests check out, find the ticket on their car and just drive away not telling us about it, but very unhappy."

Ken King, manager of the Douglas Hotel, says he has a sign in the lobby warning guests of the new regulations.

But he feels more is needed.

"I think sign posting has to be done to place the onus where it should be placed, on the car operator," he says.

"I think it is a little hard to expect a desk clerk to check where every guest has parked his car."

O'Grady noted that the old maxim "ignorance of a law is no defence" still held good.

But another lawyer suggested that in extreme circumstances a hotel guest could sue the hotel for failing to inform about the new law.

"It's an interesting point," he said. "The city has told the hotel owners that it is their duty to inform their guests about the overnight ban. If the desk clerk fails to do so and the guest's car is impounded, causing him to miss a business deal, could he hold the hotel liable?

"On the surface it would appear that he could."

In the meantime the tickets continue to be issued until the city finds a better way of informing the casual visitor of the law or an easier way to keep city streets clean.

PRIORY GROUP TO PRESSURE FOR HOSPITAL

Colwood, Langford and Metchosin residents banded together Wednesday to form a hospital society.

It will be dedicated to winning approval of the regional hospital district to construction of a new extended-care hospital in that area.

A capacity crowd at Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School heard Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital and chairman of the board of St. Mary's Priory recommend organization.

He said a hospital society should be formed to pressure the regional hospital district and the government.

"If you don't put pressure on the government, you won't get it (a hospital)."

Another Priory board member, Pat Blewett, assistant director at St. Joseph's, said "without a society there is not going to be a hospital in this area."

EXTENDED CARE

Greater Victoria and Gulf Island Regional Hospital District last year was authorized by referendum to raise $11,480,000 for hospitals, most of it for extended-care facilities.

(These are hospitals for care of chronically ill patients who are confined to bed and are unable to feed or care for themselves.)

The hospital district has approved a $2 million, 150-bed addition to Gorge Road Hospital. Mount St. Mary's has applied to build a 200-bed extended care unit. And Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has proposed a site north of Elk Lake, not pinpointed, for a third new unit

The regional hospital district is studying creation of a new hospital to replace Rest Haven at Sidney, which may combine a number of acute-care beds with a number of extended-care beds.

SISTERS WILL REMAIN

Held in abeyance so far by the board, is the recommendation of the Agnew-Peckham hospital study, that additional extended-care beds also should be provided at the Priory, near Langford.

This is the aim of the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin residents who attended the meeting.

Rev. Mother Mary Ferdinand of the Priory gave the assurance that "the sisters are not running away tomorrow. We will continue to work at the Priory as long as there is need."

The new-formed society will have as its nucleus the existing Priory board. Added to their numbers were 14 nominees from the floor.

They include Ron Ridley, Cyrus Price, James Buchanan, Lt.-Cmdr. E. Jones, Gilbert Nelson, Jack Edwards, A. Olsen, Joyce Wallace, Stewart Campbell, Rev. W. J. O'Brien, John Strika and Mrs. Gerald Smith.

FATHER VICTIM

Court Hears Unusual Cry For Help

A 19-year-old pleaded gulity today to two charges of breaking into and stealing from his father's service station.

William J. Tennant, 1098 Iris Avenue, was remanded to March 21 for sentence.

"Its a very curious case ... a most unusual cry for help," said Magistrate William Ostler after hearing the evidence.

Const. Hugh Barry McCombe said the youth first broke into his father's station, at 1802 Island Highway, March 6 and stole $17.50.

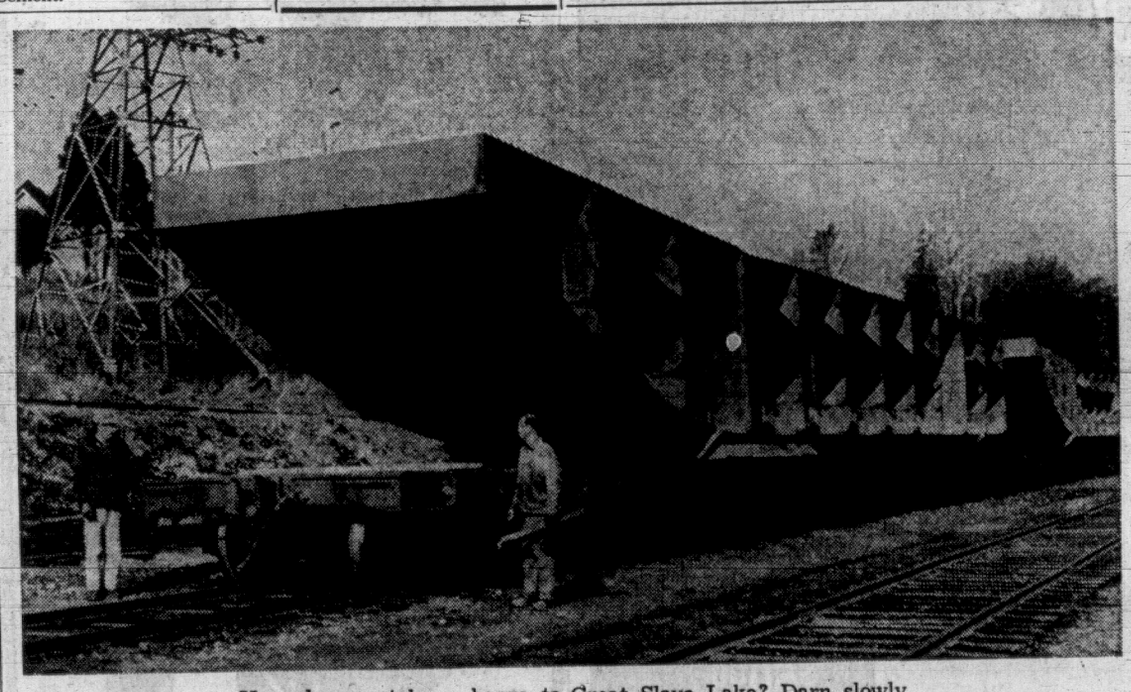
Early today the youth came to the RCMP office at Colwood and said he had again broken into the station overnight and turned over $57.30 he had taken.

He told the officers he needed some kind of help, psychiatric or otherwise.

Both times he got into the station by breaking a rear window. The money was removed from the till.

"He's chosen a very unusual way to bring it to the attention of those who can help him," said Magistrate Ostler.

He asked that a psychiatric report be prepared.



How do you take a barge to Great Slave Lake? Darn slowly.

Barge Sections Borrow Piston-Like Action For Tedious Week-Long Trip on Train

It's one thing to build cargo barges here for Great Slave Lake — it's another to deliver them.

The barges being built by Yarrows Ltd. are so large they must be shipped in five sections. Each section covers two railway flat cars.

The Victoria contract calls for five barges (a $1.2 million contract). That's 40 sections and 80 flat cars -- and a headache for the Canadian National Railway.

The CNR shipped out the first two sections Wednesday and the balance will follow between now and May, says company freight sales manager John Chalmers. His major problem was how to bend the barges when the two flat cars refuse to travel around curves in a straight line.

And what happens when the barge sections go through narrow curving tunnels of which there are a dozen between here and Jasper?

Solution worked out by engineers was to peg one end of a barge section on a pin which travels back and forth in a slot. The other end rests on a swivel bunk. The barge section may then move like a car's piston, remaining straight while the flat cars twist beneath them.

Care had to be taken that there was not so much overhang that the barge sections would scrape tunnel walls or jam themselves in tunnel curves. The experts figure they have a few inches to spare.

Transport between Victoria and Vancouver is by rented self-propelled barge. Rail transport will be slow and by day only. The journey will take a week.

Yarrow's parent firm, Burrard Shipyard in North Vancouver, will build one additional barge under sub-contract to Dominion Bridge who will supply six more under contract to Northern Navigation Ltd. a Crown corporation serving the Northwest Territories.

Art Joins Religion In Five-Day Festival

Poetry readings, plays, an exhibition of paintings and sculptures, jazz and classical music and thought-provoking films will be presented at a Festival of Religion and the Arts to be held here March 19 to 23.

It will be opened in First United Church Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. by Monsignor Michael O'Connell of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and Canon Grahame Baker, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Theme of the festival is creating Space for Ultimate Questions.

ONE-ACT PLAYS

Illtyd Perkins and Sean Virgo of the University of Victoria's English department will produce four one-act plays, including a Zen play adapted from the Japanese. The Author by Prof. Robin Skelton; The Island by Lawrence Russell; and Motel by Jean van Ittalie.

Prof. Skelton will read poetry and the art show will feature works by Victoria artists.

Dr. Hnery Elder of the UBC school of architecture will speak on Religious Architecture; Original Intention and The Way to the Future.

There will be workshops in children's creative drama for boys and girls of all ages from seven to 17 and a hootenanny by local folk musicians.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

"We are concerned with raising important questions through the medium of the arts," says Leonard Lythgoe, organizer of the festival.

"For centuries religion and the arts were wedded as expressions of man's joy and wonder at his creation, and as explorations of the deeper things of the soul.

"More recently religion and the arts have each tried to go their separate ways. The Festival of Religion and the Arts will attempt to reconcile the two."

$1,000 Damage In Office Fire

Damage is estimated at $1,000 in a fire at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday at Universal Tutoring College, 2020 Douglas Street.

A smouldering cigarette dropped through a cold air duct is believed to have ignited woodwork between the floor of the college offices and the ceiling of the business below.

Firemen cut a three to four-foot hole in the floor along the length of the joist to extinguish the blaze.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Puzzled Penny Consults Gladys

By PENNY SAVER

Incredible as it may sound, I, Penny Saver, advisor to shoppers, was stumped. I couldn't think of a single thing that Margaret-Kay could want for her birthday. "Gladys," I asked poking my head into her kitchen, "what did I suggest last time you asked me what to buy someone for his (or her) birthday?" "A magnetic train set," she replied after a second of thought, "for my nephew in Richmond. He loves it." I groaned and poured myself a cup of coffee. "Tell me, Gladys, what you would get a 25-year-old secretary who has her own apartment, is terribly particular about her clothes, doesn't like bric-a-brac and gets hurt if you don't give her a present?" "A monkey," my friend replied, and so I did.

Once I had seen the monkeys Gladys was talking about I couldn't resist buying one; I only hope Margaret-Kay is as entranced as I. These monkeys come at two prices, $1.59 and $3.50. The lower-priced model has arms that must measure 18 inches from fist to fist. The arms are made of sisal that has been plaited around a heavy wire core. This enables one to arrange the monkey's arms so that he will hang from a shelf by one or both hands, hold onto another monkey to make a chain, hold onto a light pole . . . to be brief, hold onto anything. His tail and legs are also made of plaited sisal, though they are much less important than the arms. The sisal comes in a variety of colors. The monkey's head is made of carved wood. In the $1.59 size this wood has been left unfinished. The features are indicated by bold shaping that concentrates only on the essentials. The body is covered in a red tunic.

Card-Carrying Monkey

The $3.50 monkey, which, incidentally, is the one I chose for Margaret-Kay, is a shade larger, but not much. The head is a bit larger and is finished with a dark polish. This more expensive monkey is better fed, that is, he is of huskier construction which makes him seem larger than he actually is in comparison to the other model. This monkey's arms can also be bent in every conceivable direction, but he comes with a supply of wise-crack cards which he will display on command: Just crook one of his arms in such a way as to form a slot then rest your favorite motto card in it. These monkeys wear green hop-sack tunics.

While the world is still waiting for a better mouse-trap, the Saver household has found a better bottle-cap. These caps are for soft-drink bottles and they come in packages of four for $1.25. Each package contains one each in red, black, blue and yellow. Made of plastic these caps are shaped like a beehive with a hole in the top. To seal the bottle securely just press on firmly, but gently. As the bottle seals a rubber button will rise up in the "hole" at the top of the "hive." The only way to unseal the bottle is to press on this button.

Please call 382-3131 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. if you would like to know where to find these items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

She Would Keep Dog, Ditch Doctor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You sure let me down. Why did you back up that allergy doctor when he advised the woman to get rid of the Chihuahua she had for eight years?

Know what I think? I think those allergy doctors all hate pets. I went to one once and he told me I was allergic to house dust and cat fur — and I didn't even own a cat! When those allergy doctors can't find anything else to blame, they always give you a dog or cat story. If I were that woman, I'd keep the Chihuahua and get rid of the doctor. Very truly yours,

HATES DOCTORS

DEAR HATES: Sorry, but dogs and cats frequently are the culprits in cases of allergies. There is a simple test, however, to determine the validity of the doctor's diagnosis. Get rid of the pet temporarily, and if the symptoms disappear, you'll know the pet was the cause.

DEAR ABBY: On St. Valentine day, the gentleman I've been dating gave me a bottle of perfume in my favorite fragrance. He also took me to dinner and presented me with a beautiful orchid corsage. But then he spoiled it all by handing me a $25 GIFT CERTIFICATE! It was like a slap in the face.

I tried not to show my shock and disappointment, but I still haven't been able to bring myself to cash it. Should I drop him?

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: Sorry, but I can't see any reason for being "shocked, disappointed, or insulted." But if you should decide to drop this gentleman, let me know where you drop him. I know about 30 women who would love to meet him.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOUISE: A girl who is old enough to accept an engagement ring is old enough to return it herself. And don't, for goodness sake, make up any "excuses." Your reasons for not wanting to marry a man who uses eye shadow and mascara are good enough.

WOMEN GIVEN BOTTOM RUNG JOBS

Equal Pay for Equal Work No Longer Valid, Report Claims

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Equal pay for equal work is no longer a valid principle, says a report by a socialist group which a women's conference will discuss this spring. Instead, they claim, the cry should be equal pay for work of equal value, which would greatly enlarge female earning power in Britain.

A paper prepared by Labor party researchers for presentation to the National Conference of Labor Women to be held March 25-27 in Paignton, Devon, will urge the government to accept the "equal value" principle, seen as essential if Britain is to make use of its huge untapped reservoir of womanpower.

Some 7,000,000 women would earn more and productivity would increase if the policy were adopted in British industry, the paper says, whereas fewer than half the 3,000,000 women now in manufacturing work draw any benefit from the narrow "equal jobs" classification.

The research group notes that the scheme would require a national organization for evaluating jobs.

"The fact that women are nearly always found in the worst jobs and at the bottom of the occupational ladder is by itself a clear indication that the present distribution of womanpower is both inept and wasteful," the report says.

Low pay and lack of training opportunities—often a result of male discrimination—not only make it difficult for women to get better jobs but also increase male resentment because cheap labor threatens their position, the report adds.

The authors suggest two further ways of tapping unused female skills—the government should provide a coordinated national care service for pre-school children to release mothers for work and set up a national women's employment bureau which could encourage more part-time work at home.

Only eight per cent of British women work at home. But the report suggests that in such professional fields as actuarial or architectural work, this could release skills now in particularly short supply.

Looking to the future, the report says the kind of unskilled jobs and semi-skilled jobs on which the bulk of British women now are mainly employed—such as routine office work and shorthand-typing—could gradually disappear as automation and equipment become more sophisticated.

At the same time, the research group suggests a rapid expansion in industry is likely in skilled and technical jobs.

"The result could be a useless surplus of unskilled female labor matched by a crippling shortage of skilled and qualified manpower."

The report ends with a plea for a "radical change" in the attitudes of both sexes towards women's employment, breaking away from the old concept of certain jobs as "women's work." It notes that in Britain only five per cent of doctors are women, compared with 75 per cent in the Soviet Union.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The letter before me is from a reader who disagrees with something I said in a recent column. My article was concerned with how to make friends and be popular. My reader took exception to the following:

Lowman

"Resolve to avoid highly controversial subjects, such as politics and religion, unless you are talking with such good friends that you are sure the irritation is only temporary and the heated words will have no lasting effect."

Here is part of her letter. I think much she says makes good sense.

GOOD SENSE

Dear Mrs. Lowman,

"I appreciated your column in the newspaper today but I can't say that I entirely agree with you. I think the general indifference toward politics and religion is the most outstanding reason for the predicament we are in today.

"How can this be a government for the people and by the people if we don't discuss it sometimes, and it's a poor religion if nobody knows you've got it."

A Reader.

I believe that an exchange of ideas, vigorous beliefs and the eagerness and willingness to defend them are good for the soul as well as for the country. They also pep up the personality. I did not mean to indicate otherwise.

In fact a person who always agrees with you, the one who presents no strong individual viewpoints is almost as irritating as the one who is always "sounding off" from a soapbox. Some of the most stimulating and interesting evenings I have ever spent have been in the company of friends, batting around controversial subjects from opposite viewpoints.

POOR TASTE

Nevertheless, I believe that it is poor taste, thoughtless of our hostess and of others we know only casually, to "go to bat" on any and all occasions. I guarantee that this will make ANYBODY about as popular as a blizzard at the north pole or central heating in the tropics!

I agree that we are often too lazy in expressing our beliefs in a meaningful and practical way. Vote! Write to legislators! We should work at the local and everyday level for the things we believe in! This does not mean that we should try to mow down startled, new acquaintances, with a no-give-in attitude at every social gathering.

This is one of the fastest passports to unpopularity I can imagine.

If you would like to have my leaflet with which to test your personality, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Eight Weeks to Popularity." Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

HOME GARDEN

Don't Be Fooled by Sun

By HILDA BEASTALL

For the gardener who feels he must sow seeds because the sunny days are tempting him to work outdoors my advice is to be moderate. Frost at ground level is common every night after these sunny days, so don't make a complete sowing now. Get the plot ready if the soil is workable, adding any kind of humus as soil conditioner.

Hilda

Lay out a plan on paper, so that onions will be furthest away from water applied to other plants at onion ripening time in August, yet in full sun.

Taller vegetables must not create continual shadow for sunloving ones. Lettuce will take afternoon shade, but carrots, beets, radishes need full sun.

Parsnips, round seeded early peas, broad beans, shallots, and garlic are the things to put in now. So half the amounts required at this time and the remaining half in two week's time.

Be sure to put date of sowing on the big labels we discussed last week. By the results, you can determine if the early sowings were worth it.

Indoors, sow seed of tomato, sweet pepper, eggplant and okra. A row of each in a seedbox should be enough for a family.

Prick out these seedlings into small peat pots — a flat 12 by 24 inches will hold 72 of the two-inch-square pots. This is not too difficult to handle during the month or so of growing, and then the tomatoes should go into larger pots to prevent setback by crowding, thus leaving more space for the smaller growing kinds.

In a flat put into a covered coldframe outdoors, sow early cauliflower, summer cabbage, Brussels sprouts and lettuce.

Use a dusting of line in soil mixtures for all the cabbage family and ventilate the frame each suitable day, but be sure the surface of the seedbox does not dry out.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Underground Railroad Used To Bring in Slaves From U.S.

By BOB BOWMAN

When Americans sing "John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave" Canadians can take some satisfaction in knowing that he looked on Canada as the land of freedom. He even held a convention at Chatham, Ont., in 1858, attended by 40 delegates who planned to form a free state in Virginia and Maryland.

Bowman

On March 13, 1859, Brown managed to smuggle 12 U.S. slaves across the border at Windsor, using what was known as the "underground railway." It was the route to freedom for 5,000 slaves who were smuggled into Canada in 1850-1851 and given homes in Ontario.

Josiah Henson, who inspired Harriet Beecher Stowe to write Uncle Tom's Cabin, was one of the leaders and settled at Dresden, Ont, where there is a memorial to him. Other brave underground leaders included Anthony Burns, Henry Bib and Harriet Tubman.

In all, about 40,000 U.S. slaves found homes in Canada. The second Canadian to win the Victoria Cross was William Hall, in 1857. He was the son of a slave from Virginia who was brought to Nova Scotia after the American Revolutionary War and lived at Hantsport.

The "underground railway" got its name because groups of slaves were passed from "station to station" and the people who received them were known as "station agents." The slaves were forwarded by "conductors" and were known as "freight." There was no actual railway. They often travelled in the dark on foot.

Slavery in Canada was abolished officially in 1833 but it had gone out of favor long before that. When Canada capitulated to the British in 1760, slaves were recorded in the register of births, marriages and deaths known as the record of "hatches, matches, and despatches."

Other events March 13:

1521—King of Portugal granted territory in Gulf of St. Lawrence to explorer Joam Alvarez Fagundez.

1644—Possible date when Maisonneuve left Montreal fort to attack Iroquois.

1812—David Thompson began last journey from Saleesh House to Fort William and Montreal.

1843—James Douglas arrived at site of present-day Victoria.

1885—British Columbia government refused to allow Chinese to land.

1900—J. W. Tyrrell was surveying 1729 miles from Great Slave Lake to Chesterfield Inlet.

1909—Lord Strathcona established fund for military training schools.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jay Kunz, age 7, of Provo, Utah, for his question:

Why Does a Silkworm Spin Silk?

A silkworm does not spin yards of silken material. This fabric is woven from countless fine, soft threads. Each silkworm spins one of these threads. The little fellow is a grubby caterpillar and not very bright. But he certainly does not spin his thread for us to steal and weave into silken yard goods.

The silkworm is actually a moth and moths go through four stages of life. The silk is needed to see him safely through one of these stages. He starts life as a tiny pale egg. Stage two begins when the egg hatches into a grubby caterpillar. Then he goes through a sleeping beauty stage while his grubby body changes into its adult form. He spends the fourth and last stage of his life as a glamourous, grown-up moth with velvety wings. He spins his silk to shelter himself through his third, sleeping beauty stage.

When the hungry caterpillar has gorged all he can hold, he grows dazed and lazy. He manages to crawl onto a twig and hold on. His special silk glands are ready to give out a fine thread of soft, supple silk. The caterpillar twists and turns his body to wind the thread around and around himself in figures of eight. He winds layers and layers of silk until his body is hidden inside a soft cocoon. Only one thread is used to make the silken blanket, and it may be as much as half a mile long.

Kept in Trays

If nobody distrubs the cocoon, the grown-up moth eats a hole through one end, cutting the thread into lots of loose ends. Then the winged insect struggles forth bit by bit. He pauses to let his wings dry and then flies off in the air. Naturally, the grown moth has no more need for his old cocoon blanket. But to struggle out of it, he had to chew the long silken thread into countless short pieces. These little pieces are no use for weaving yards of silken material. So something has to be done to stop the silkworm moth from emerging.

Silkworm growers keep thousand of silkworms in shallow trays. When the caterpillars spin their cocoons, most of them are baked to kill the grubs inside. Then the long threads are wound onto reels to make yarns of raw silk. The raw silk may be twisted into tight, thin threads before being woven into fine, silken yard goods. The caterpillars spun their silk to keep themselves safe and warm and they died when it was stolen. However, silkworm growers always keep enough silkworms for a new generation. Some cocoons are left to hatch into moths, and the moths lay countless eggs that hatch into countless new caterpillars.

The silkworm moth has been tended by man for thousands of years. He is so used to a pampered life that he could not live in the wild. He is very fussy about his food and living conditions. The tray in which he lives must be clean, his room must be either too hot nor too cold. Every day he insists on a serving of tender mulberry leaves, picked fresh from the tree. He shares his room with 40,000 other gorging caterpillars. As they grow they burst their skins and molt four times. Altogether, they devour about a ton of mulberry leaves during their caterpillar stage of life.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Gregg King, age 10, of Peterboro, Ontario, for his question:

Is It True That the Moon Is Getting Closer?

Careful measurement shows that the moon is getting farther from the earth. Scientists suspect that the moon will continue its retreat from the earth for several billion years into the future, until it is about 360,000 miles away. This is one and a half times its present distance. Then scientists predict, the process will reverse itself and the moon will start coming closer to the earth. It will come closer to the earth than it now is, but it will not crash. High in the sky, the moon will shatter into pieces. The fragments will circle around and around, high above the earth's equator.

These changes in the heavens are expected to move slowly, almost too slowly to be noticeable. They are linked to the future history of the sun, to gravity and to the tidal forces between the earth and the moon. But these dramatic events should not worry us at all. Our children's children and their children should not worry about it either. For these events cannot occur for many billions of years.

DATELINE: DANGER!

Viet Cong Girls Required to Work But Not to Love

SAIGON (AP) — A Viet Cong guerrilla girl is expected to share everything with her male counterpart except a bed.

If she does yield to temptation, and is caught, the penalty is harsh for both of them—anything from three to 10 years confinement in the bamboo cages that serve as jail cells in remote base areas.

This severe attitude to romance is being emphasized by the Viet Cong as more and more women and girls are brought into army ranks.

One captured top-level document said 4,000 female cadre are working with the Viet Cong. Many had "strikingly and fearlessly replaced the male sex in combat," the document added.

But one headquarters document complained: "The weak points of women are that they are credulous and cannot resist love."

DISCIPLINE TOUGH

The Communist party hierarchy that runs the Viet Cong is motivated less by puritanism than by discipline.

"When you join the party you in effect marry it, and she is a very jealous mistress," an American analyst of the Viet Cong commented.

The Communists have been preaching the "three postponements" to unmarried cadre. The first is to postpone falling in love. Those who cannot resist are asked to postpone getting married. If they go ahead and marry, anyway, they are asked to postpone having babies.

The party insists that it is helping women, not hindering them, by controlling their love life. Because of their romantic inclinations, "women are often not considered for various jobs and are slow in making progress," an instruction from headquarters declared.

'DEATH TO MONARCH' SHOUT WELSH

ABERYSTWYTH, Wales (AP) — Anarchists shouting "Death to the monarch" and Welsh nationalists staged demonstrations at the university here Wednesday in a foretaste of the reception they plan for Prince Charles next month.

The long-haired anarchists invaded a news conference and draped their red and black flag over a royal statue outside the University College of Wales.

One group of about 150 nationalist students demonstrated ouside the student hostel. English students climbed on the roof of the building and hurled buckets of water over them.

Stiff Sentences

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Two men were sentenced to long terms in prison Tuesday in magistrate's court on charges of robbery with violence and possession of an offensive weapon. Gerald Alfred Rathbone, 23, of Prince George, received an eight-year term and David Richard Burgess, 21, of Penticton, was handed a 10-year sentence.

A minute ago, she smiled, kissed you good bye, and said have a nice trip, dear.

Didn't you know that two could fly as cheaply as 1 and 3/4?

She was hoping you'd take her with you this time.

Sure, it's a business trip, but she wouldn't have been in the way, really. While you were being business-like all day, she would have been perfectly content to window-shop those nice stores, maybe get her hair done, go to a matinee, then meet you later for dinner and a little night life.

Deep down, don't you think it might be nicer than coming home to a pout? We do, so we'll let you take your wife with you next time for 75% of your fare: to any Air Canada destination in North America.

Take her with you to see your Travel Agent, or call us at 382-9242

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We are deeply grateful to our friends and neighbors for the beautiful flowers and messages of sympathy during our recent bereavement in the loss of our little "David." Special thanks to Mr. Sam Machness and Mr. Robin Stefanick, nursing staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Archie Gray and other doctors who assisted. Special thanks to Lil and John.—The Gough family.

I wish to express my deepest thanks to all the kind friends who visited me, sent so many beautiful flowers, letters and cards during my stay in Gorge Road Hospital; also for the great help and attention of the nursing staff.—Freda M. Castleton.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MORTON — In loving memory of a dear husband, William Morton, who passed away March 13th, 1967.

Remembrance is a golden chain
That links us till we meet again.

—Ever remembered by his wife and son, Jessie and John.

MORTON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, William Morton, who passed away March 13, 1967.

The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of the one who once sat there.

—Mary, Frank and Grandchildren.

Industry Under Trade Portfolio

MPs Show More Concern With Airing Pet Complaints

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's decision to put the industry department back under the wing of the trade and commerce department was approved by the Commons Wednesday after MPs from all parties used the occasion to air their pet beefs.

The industry department was formed from the old industrial division of the trade department in 1963. Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin was given the industry portfolio in anticipation of the move when Prime Minister Trudeau formed his cabinet last year.

MPs had little to say about the wisdom of the change as the Commons discussed that section of the government's re-organization bill in committee-of-the-whole.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) said federal funds are being used to establish a military elite in Canada.

Federal research and development programs contributed to a permanent industry based on warfare. The result will be an economy reliant upon such things as chemical-warfare plants, said Mr. Broadbent, a 32-year-old economics professor.

He said Canada should get out of defence production, buy its defence equipment abroad and concentrate funds on development of civilian industry.

PROTEST NATO TIES

While Mr. Broadbent was speaking placard-carrying members of the Communist Party of Canada paraded on Parliament Hill protesting Canada's involvement in defence alliances.

The 49 marchers, led by the party's national leader, William Kashtan, carried signs critical of Canadian membership in NATO. They delivered a brief to Prime Minister Trudeau's office.

In the Commons, Ray Perrault (Burnaby-Seymour), former B.C. Liberal leader, branded Mr. Broadbent's speech a socialist assault on the U.S.

"A just society can't be nurtured on vague feelings of brotherhood and humanity."

Mr. Perrault went on to stress the need for freer trade, especially in forest products.

He said British Columbia could have a thriving manufacturing industry if it could tap the California market. And he questioned the wisdom of the government trade mission to Latin America last November. Priority should be given to countries on the Pacific rim.

FAVORS A SHIFT

Commenting on the various MPs' speeches at the close of the debate, Mr. Pepin agreed it would be better to shift emphasis away from military programs.

He said Mr. Broadbent's argument raised the question of how deeply Canada should be involved in world affairs. He offered to debate the issues with Mr. Broadbent in another forum.

Replying to Mr. Perrault, the minister said the 1967 tariff cuts will mean that 60 per cent of Canada's sales to the U.S. will trade duty free.

He was sure "the tremendous B.C. aggressiveness and intelligence" will take advantage of trade with the U.S.

Henri Latulippe (Creditiste—Compton) called for more support for small industry. He said the problem in Canada was purchasing, not production.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste—Roberbal) complained of too many English-Canadians in the top offices of the industry department.

Theogene Ricard (PC—St. Hyacinthe) called for more protection for the Quebec textile industry.

PROBLEMS RUN DEEPER

Mr. Pepin said some of the problems of the textile industry run deeper than competition from imports. Even correcting problems of management and equipment might not help them survive.

"Should we provide millions of dollars so they can die elegantly?"

Explosives Plant May Reduce Output

The expanded use of explosives by B.C. industry could, paradoxically, lead to reduction of manufacturing at James Island within a few years.

The view was expressed Wednesday by Leonard Hynes, of Montreal, president of Canadian Industries Ltd., who was here to address Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce. CIL operates the old powder works on James Island, from which various kinds of industrial explosives have come for more than half a century.

But, said Hynes, changing processes and types of product have altered the role of the plant in the last 15 years to where it no longer supports its own community and employs only half the men it did a few years ago.

Hynes said the plant could phase out as a result of these changes, but there are no plans to abandon it yet.

In fact, he said, James Island had remained more productive than was anticipated a decade ago. The physical output for 1967 was about equal to that of 1957, despite the reduction in staff.

James Island could exist indefinitely performing a specialized role in the making of explosives based on nitroglycerine, but, again, it would depend on needs of the industrial market, he said.

The trend today is toward on-site manufacture of blasting material, such as the ammonium nitrate type whose harmless ingredients may be shipped independently at no risk and at cheaper rates to be mixed into volatile compounds where needed — such as a mine site.

On-site plants are little more than warehouses with a sort of cement mixer from which explosive slurry is pumped through pipes and hoses to bore holes underground or in open pits, there to be detonated.

Growth of the mining industry in B.C. is expected to use much more of this type of explosive.

James Island still makes conventional explosives as well, using desensitized bulk ingredients from a more modern CIL plant in Calgary, adding the nitro for packing in sticks.

Referring to Bapco Paint, a wholly-owned CIL subsidiary, Hynes said there is current study of how to handle its future, since it had now been expanded to its capacity.

He agreed it probably would be more economical to operate the factory on the mainland, where the market for Bapco products extends to the Lakehead. But he did not know what decision will be made.

In his speech to the chamber, Hynes stressed a need for Canada to express more business views on the international level. President of the Canadian council of the International Chamber of Commerce, he said he has discussed the subject with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Canada is of a size to which developing countries can relate and has demonstrated the free enterprise system is workable, he said.

The ICC also is working on the problems of trade and tariffs, following up the Kennedy Round of international negotiations. The area of non-tariff obstacles to breaking down trade barriers is the step under current review, Hynes said, liking the problem to a "tide going out and ugly rocks coming up" after tariffs were reduced or eliminated.

Also, it is important to retain the ground made through liberalization of trade since the Kennedy Round, and to oppose some American lobbyists who want to offset these gains, he said.

Snowmobile Fox Hunting Arouses Ire

EDEN VALLEY, Minn. (AP) — With the Minnesota branch of the National Humane Society baying at its heels, the Eden Valley Chamber of Commerce staged a foxhunt with snowmobiles a foxhunt with snowmobiles.

Ten foxes were released, one at a time, in the middle of a frozen lake. The contestants were to either net the fox or catch him by hand. They were to be disqualified if they hit the animal with their machines.

Conservation Commissioner Jarle Leirfallom said Saturday that chasing the fox with snowmobiles violated state law and arrests would be made at the hunt. None of the foxes were injured and no arrests were made.

But the head of the state humane society, Dave Davis, said:

"It is unduly cruel to put a defenceless animal on a lake and chase him with 25 large machines."

Rural Poverty Needs Much Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Efforts to solve rural poverty must take a community as well as an individual approach, the federal study group on agricultural policy said in a report released Wednesday.

Mobility programs may help the individual improve his standard of living, but the community he leaves behind suffers, the report states.

The report, prepared as a position paper for the March 24-27 national agricultural congress, divides the rural poor into two categories.

It says that about one-third of the 430,000 farmers in Canada earn less than $5,000 a year. They can be helped by long-term policies aimed at making their farms viable economic units or providing off-farm occupations either on a full-time or part-time basis.

Another third, however, are in dire poverty and need immediate income supplements.

The final third are considered solvent.

TOPICS FOR CONGRESS

The study of the low-income sector of Canadian agriculture is the sixth of nine papers being prepared for the congress by the federal agriculture "task force" headed by Dr. David MacFarlane of Macdonald College, Montreal.

Since farm income represents only five-per-cent of national income "the Canadian economy can tolerate some inefficiency" in the form of income supplements, welfare schemes, and a negative income tax to poor farmers, the authors suggest.

"What cannot be tolerated is the bringing up of succeeding generations who are grossly handicaiped for anything but a diminishing number of low-skill jobs."

Many of the people on welfare in cities were rural people unqualified for urban employment, the report says. It could not be assumed that young adults who leave farms in such numbers were being successfully absorbed in the cities. Their low standards of education allowed them only a precarious foothold in the city or they drifted back to the farms.

The report calls for comprehensive planning which provides organizational change and basic investments designed to raise the general level of community performance. There would be some out-migration, a reduction in marginal farms and a closing out of settlements with no potential.

ONLY $1 A DAY FOR THE BEST

Victoria Kiwanis Club members are collecting funds to buy up-to-date equipment that would cost heart patients elsewhere up to $170 a day.

But the expensive equipment, which Kiwanis is trying to buy for Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals, will only cost $1 a day here under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Plan.

A club member did some checking and learned the mobile telemetry units which allow patients to move around while remaining guarded by instruments cost heart patients $90 a day in Seattle.

That figure is low when compared with the charge for the acute coronary care in Palo Alto, Calif. — $170 a day.

AVAILABLE TO ALL

Another advantage of the equipment purchased by Kiwanis is its availability to every patient.

In some cities, the heart monitoring setup is provided by clinics or for restricted numbers of patients.

The Kiwanis Heart Equipment Fund has collected more than $12,000 to date towards its goal of $27,000 for mobile units to place in both city hospitals, in a campagn begun in January.

Some persons donating large sums of money will have it applied to specific pieces of equipment, with their names inscribed on them.

Donations may be made to the fund at 221 Linden Avenue or to the hospitals concerned.

Boom Seen For Tours

Tentative bookings by touring groups of vacationers indicate a boom year at Empress Hotel, manager L. J. Finamore said today.

In 1967, he said, 12,500 persons on organized tours were booked at the hotel. Last year, with the future of one wing in doubt, there were only 8,800.

But tentative bookings for 1969's summer season show almost 25,000 guests arriving, most of them from U.S. points.

Socreds Accused of Coveting Medicare Funds

The provincial government Wednesday was accused of inflating its medicare estimates by $40 million to salt away money "for playing politics" at the next election.

The accusation came from Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) who said the government's own partial figures showed it only needed to raise $10 million instead of the $50 million in the estimates.

Parkinson also said the indications were that the total cost of all medicare services for B.C. in the coming fiscal year will be "about $87.5 million."

He said at least $33 million will be paid by Ottawa in its transfer payments and almost all the rest will be paid in premiums by wage earners, self-employed and employers.

The province will only have to cover the subsidy for some 200,000 persons in the B.C. Medical Plan which had a per capita cost experience in 1968 of $56.28, he said.

"That's all you are committing yourself yet we are being asked to vote $50 million," stormed Parkinson.

Free Dental Care

"There is no escaping the fact there is some $40 million in this vote that is not going to be spent on the medical plan."

Parkinson said the government should at least extend benefits to provide free dental care for children and free prescription drugs for senior citizens instead of building up a political fund in the medicare estimates.

"Forty million dollars is an awful lot of politics," he said, blasting Provincial Secretary Wesley Black's insistence he did not have a projection of medicare costs although the government was not going to increase benefits or reduce premiums in the next 12 months.

"That's a straight lie," Premier Bennett shouted earlier when Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) charged the government planned to use the medicare fund as election bait this summer.

"I say you're pulling a political shroud over the estimate," Macdonald said.

Not Lie But Untrue

"You're planning an election and you're planning a cut of one-third in medicare premiums on July for your election campaign."

The premier was forced by chairman Herb Bruch to withdraw his "lie" outburst.

"I will withdraw," said Bennett, "but I say that it is untrue."

The two-hour wrangle over the medicare estimates—which was resumed today—began because the provincial secretary maintained there were no answers for opposition questions on a breakdown of projected costs to justify the increase from $18 million in last year's estimates.

He faced the house with a take-or-leave-it ultimatum on the $50 million in the 1969-70 budget.

Black said that the federal-provincial medicare sharing scheme which began July 1 still has not been in operation long enough to provide firm estimates of future costs and revenues.

"I say for the last time, I have told this house all I can in the light of the information I have," he said.

"The vote is before you. It is $50 million.

"Turn it down if you wish but personally, I am supporting it."

Soon As Possible

When MLAs objected to his "attitude," Black said the first audit under the national medicare sharing scheme will not be held until the end of this month and "we will give the answers just as soon as possible."

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said the house could not accept the government's unsupported estimate because last year's estimate of $18 million was "wildly out of line" with the $27 million expended.

He asked how much the federal government anticipated transferring to the province as its share for 1969-70 medicare spending in B.C.

"It hasn't been determined," said Black.

"I understand $55 million has been set aside (by Ottawa)," said McGeer.

"We've never been advised," replied Black.

"Have you been given any figure at all" asked McGeer.

"None," said Black.

'I Just Don't Know'

The provincial secretary repeatedly told the house it was "impossible" to even guess the projections of medicare costs, revenues from premiums paid by subscribers to the various licensed carriers or the federal grant.

"I'm not refusing to say, I just don't know," he said.

"I and the government are just as interested in the cost analysis of medicare as anyone else in this house because on that cost analysis depends the future of medicare."

After more questioning, he revealed that up to the end of last January there were a total of 1,962,505 British Columbians covered by the various licensed carriers under the government's "umbrella" scheme.

Included in this number were 743,808 persons covered directly by the government-operated carrier, B.C. Medical Plan.

Of the BCMP total, 179,707 persons were covered by premiums qualifying for a 90 per cent government subsidy and another 34,626 persons were covered by premiums qualifying for a 50 per cent subsidy.

Costs To Increase

He also revealed that during 1968 the estimated breakdown of costs experienced by BCMP on a per capita basis was: $46.64 paid out in doctor fees; 53 cents for dental and optical services; $1.68 for salaried physicians' services; $4.65 for additional benefits and $2.88 for administration.

This brought the total cost for each person covered by BCMP last year to $56.28.

Black said BCMP's estimated per capita cost for 1969 is tentatively set at $62.45 and the "guesstimate" for 1970 is $65.63. But he said he had no knowledge of the estimates for the private carrier per capita costs.

Dr. Parkinson said Black had given enough information "that anyone with a little algebra or just using simple arithmetic" could figure out medicare costs for the coming year.

He said in 1965 the legislature was informed that the private MSA group plan had a per capita cost of $32.80 while BCMP had $48.76 "or 50 per cent higher costs for the government plan which had to take the bad risks."

Using the same ratio, the total cost of medicare in the province could be obtained by multiplying the BCMP membership by the $56.28 per capita figure and by multiplying the remaining population by the adjusted per capita figure for those covered through private carriers.

The total, he said, would come to roughly $87.5 million.

Parkinson pointed out Black's own figures showed that the medicare costs for 1.74 million British Columbians are sustained by the premiums they and their employers pay at the $5, $10 and $12 monthly rates.

The cost increases and other deficiencies are more than made up by the federal government's $33 million contribution on top of premiums collected from British Columbians.

As a result, Parkinson contended, the provincial government is only responsible for the BCMP subsidy payments to the 213,333 persons mentioned by Black.

Multiplying them by BCMP's own $56.28 per capita average cost, the total provincial government commitment would require only an appropriation of $10 million, Parkinson said.

Man Convicted

VANCOUVER (CP)—A County Court jury Wednesday convicted David Alexander Corbett of Vancouver of possession of stolen money in the $10,000 armed robbery of a North Vancouver branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce last Aug. 5. He was remanded to March 21 for sentencing.

Maths Change Urged

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Eric D. MacPherson, head of mathematical education at the University of British Columbia's college of education said in a report on math research for the Educational Research Institute of B.C. that universities should drop the blanket requirement of secondary school mathematics for admission. He said in many disciplines the basic thing people had to know was which button to push.

UBC Students Quit National Association

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia Student Society Wednesday voted to pull out of the Canadian Union of Students, reducing the number of schools represented by the union to 21.

The vote for pulling out was carried 2,946 to 1,701.

Fraser Hodge, president-elect of the student society and CUS opponent, said work would begin soon on forming a national council of individual societies.

Porter's Warnings Came True

Report Endorsed by Another Civil Servant

New Duel Erupts At Suez

TEL AVIV (AP) — Artillery duels blazed between Israelis and Egyptians across the length of the 103-mile Suez Canal today.

Each side blamed the other for starting the new fighting.

An Israeli army spokesman said the battles erupted after a day of sporadic exchanges and machine-gun fire.

A Cairo radio broadcast said rockets, artillery, mortars and light weapons were brought into play.

The Cairo broadcast claimed the Israelis started shooting first at El Qantara, Firdan and Ismailia and then spread their fire southward to Port Suez.

Cairo's broadcast said the fighting began at 5:30 p.m. with light-arms fire and rapidly escalated. An Israeli spokesman said the firing all along the canal started at 6 p.m.

NEW CHIEF APPOINTED

The fighting erupted only a few hours after Cairo radio reported the appointment of Maj.-Gen. Ahmed Ismail Aly as the new Egyptian armed forces chief of staff. He replaces Lt.-Gen. Abdel Moneim Riad, who was killed in a canal battle Sunday.

In the last three canal battles, United Nations observers said the Egyptians started firing first every time.

This fourth clash of Egyptians and Israelis came after several hundred Arab youths marched into occupied Gaza, waving sticks and stones in demonstrations against the Israeli occupiers. They retreated before reinforced Israeli patrols.

Information Withheld?

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Accountant E. Alan Porter, who blew the Commonwealth Trust affair wide open in a letter to the Times last Friday, was uncannily prophetic when he made his alarming reports to the government in 1963.

After checking the audited books of the company at that time, he warned of a dangerous situation developing which "even a layman" could understand.

Just retired as an inspector of trust companies, Porter began telling his superiors in 1963 that Commonwealth:

1. Was in great danger from the "Crux-controlled complex" lurking in the background of its even-then tangled affairs;

2. Was inevitably headed for bankruptcy if its strange policies continued;

3. Had seriously misleading balance sheets;

4. Had almost half its $1 million portfolio of trust money investments in securities held by Canada Trust Company and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as collateral for a mystery-shrouded deal.

This was revealed Wednesday when Premier Bennett tabled in the Legislature the adverse reports Porter told the Times he had made in 1963.

"I was taken by surprise to hear the premier tabled them," Porter commented in an interview. "But I'm glad he did.

"Now we'll get down to brass tacks."

But Liberal Leader Pat McGeer failed to get Premier Bennett's permission to make his motion calling for an immediate legislative committee investigation of Porter's statements —now supported by a second civil servant.

And Opposition Leader Robert Strachan this morning said the premier may still be wothholding more vital documents from the MLAs because he has not revealed the "whitewash" report which frustrated Porter over the years.

Strachan said:

"The premier again is putting up a facade of being open and above board and making everything available.

"But in turning down the amendment I proposed Monday to have every document tabled, he retained for himself the right to be selective in the information made available.

"He is still being very selective and this is demonstrated in his refusal so far to table the so-called 'whitewash' report which was criticized so strongly by Mr. Porter.

"This also leads me to wonder how many other documents besides the 'whitewash' are being held discretely out of circulation."

Trust Charges Backed

Len Kusch, a provincial government accountant in Vancouver, Wednesday stated he agreed with E. Alan Porter's description of the six-man investigation launched after Porter turned in two adverse reports on the company earlier.

He said he was "shocked" when the report turned in by himself and Porter as part of the six-man group apparently was pigeon-holed at some higher level.

Premier Bennett Wednesday tabled the two early Porter reports in the legislature but not the report of the six-man inquiry which followed them.

(He previously told reporters he never saw any of the reports at the time. Robert Bonner, former attorney-general, has declined all comment.)

Deputy finance minister Gerald Bryson, who supplied the Porter reports to Bennett Wednesday, said in a covering letter that the six-man inquiry was ordered by deputy attorney-general Dr. Gilbert Kennedy.

Kennedy last Monday concluded in a memo to Bryson that various Commonwealth investigations in 1964 — including the RCMP — resulted in "nothing uncovered in these investigations to warrant futher action at that time."

'NOTHING HAPPENED'

Kusch, who was one of the six men assigned to investigate Porter's initial adverse reports on Commonwealth Trust in 1963 and 1964, said he was in agreement with Porter's position.

He was referring to Porter's claim the "whitewash" investigation was abortive because it was so poorly organized.

"I agree with him," said Kusch. "We put in a very unfavorable report and yet nothing happened.

"We found many of the irregularities already mentioned in (this week's tabled) reports in the legislature — moving of funds through other companies in the group, excessive mortgages, transfer of securities, all sorts of matters."

He said he endorsed the report he made with Porter and it was passed on to Charles A. Perry, then provincial secretary of trust companies.

WHERE DID IT GO?

"How far up the line it got from there I don't know.

"It could have gone all the way to the minister of finance (Premier Bennett) or it could have stopped at any other level below him.

"I don't know what happened to it," said Kusch.

Two other two-man sections were involved in the investigation but there was no co-ordination.

"It was frustrating from start to finish," Kusch said.

"I didn't know to whom I should report initially. There was no liaison at all with the others.

Porter and I thought someone should be in charge to co-relate the whole thing but it just never happened."

Kusch said there was little he or Porter could do about

Ex-Inspector In Winnipeg

Porter's reports, dated July 5, 1963, and Feb. 3, 1964, were sent to C. A. Perry, then chief trust company inspector who left in 1965 for a post with the Manitoba government.

The second report—16 pages of longhand script elaborating on the points raised in the first and subsequent events—stated that Perry and Porter had discussed the ominous implications of allowing the only provincially-controlled trust company to be locked into a closely-meshed financial group.

Quoting a reply to his queries in which Commonwealth Trust said it allowed its securities to be kept with those of Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. in Canada Trust Company's possession "as these companies were dealing very closely with each other," Porter wrote in his report to Perry:

"This is considered to be a damaging admission on the part of the (Commonwealth) Trust Company, particularly in view of your earlier discussions with the writer (Porter) when we were considering the potential hazards which may be lurking in the background if we allowed a newly-incorporated Trust Company to operate in close proximity and with such interlocking and overlapping interests as would appear to characterize the Crux-controlled complex of companies."

Peterson Named Crux

(Attorney-General Leslie Peterson last month identified A. G. Duncan Crux as the king-pin behind the 50-company Commonwealth group which is under investigation by the RCMP and will be examined also by a royal commission as a result of a series of inter-company transactions and court actions.)

After comparing Commonwealth Trust's balance sheets for May 31 and September 30, 1963, when the company's operations resulted in investments increasing only $34,100, while liabilities were increased $1,191,209, Porter warned Perry:

"It seems to be a reasonably obvious inference that while this condition exists, the company will continue to sustain substantial operating losses, as it is certainly not feasible to expect that the limited earning potential of the present investment portfolio can afford to pay guaranteed interest rates to depositors and certificate holders, and bear the brunt of heavy administrative costs, and provide an adequate net return in the bargain."

While trying to trace the investments Commonwealth Trust made with its depositors' money, Porter discovered that the portfolio included about $300,000 in securities held by Canada Trust Company and $180,000 worth held by Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

No Adequate Explanation

He said he could not get any adequate explanation why these trust monies were held by the other firms, except that they were coliateral for an unrevealed purpose and the arrangement had been ordered by Commonwealth Savings Plan, which sold them to Commonwealth Trust.

Porter suggested to Perry that he might consider pressing charges against officials of both Canada Trust and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce for giving him "equivocal" answers to his questions about the arrangement.

(Charles O'Hara, manager of the main Vancouver branch Canada Trust-Huron and Erie, in which the securities were held for Commonwealth Savings Plan, said today: "All I can say is that any report Mr. Porter made to the trust inspector was never given to us. I have no knowledge of any written criticism of Canada Trust actions in handling the account for Commonwealth Savings Plan. We were a depository trustee only and there was no criticism of our conduct of affairs. There was no involvement whatsoever with Commonwealth Trust. If anyone can produce any letter—from any time—containing criticism of our actions, I'd like to see it.")

Porter also traced a sum of $80,839 still owed Commonwealth Savings for the locked-up securities as listed in Commonwealth Trust's balance sheet under the heading of Estates, Trusts and Agencies.

His report "takes strong exception to the presentation accorded the above-mentioned item of $80,839 in the audited balance

WIRE BRIEFS

Blue Chips Plummet

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones' index of blue chip industrial stocks was down a sharp 10.38 points to 907.14 today and the Toronto Stock Exchange recorded a smaller drop in afternoon trading. (Details on page 12.)

Crash Kills Pilots

GIMLI, Man. (CP) — Two armed forces pilots were killed today when their T-33 jet trainer crashed soon after takeoff, 25 miles northeast of the armed forces base here. Killed were Lt. Brian H. Woods of Gooderich, Ont., and Lt. Richard W. Blake of Windsor, both 22.

Soviet Trawler Sinks

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) —The U.S. Coast Guard said today that a Soviet-bloc fishing trawler was sunk early this morning and all hands lost after an apparent collision with a Panamanian-registered tanker, 31 miles offshore from Oregon Inlet, N.C. The trawler was believed to have had a crew of 20.

Iran Area Flooded

TEHRAN (Reuters)—Floods inundated 150 villages today in northwest Iran, making thousands homeless. Troops, police and units of the Red Cross were sent to Azarbaijan province after torrential rains caused three rivers to overflow.

Wilson Plans Peace Bid In Nigeria

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson is considering visiting Nigeria soon to help promote moves to end the 18-month-old civil war, informed political sources said today.

Wilson's decision will depend on the results of the talks between federal leader Yakubu Gowon, and the head of the British diplomatic service, Sir Denis Greenhill, who returned to London from Lagos Wednesday night.

In his talks with Gowon, Greenhill is believed to have expressed mounting British concern over reports of heavy civilian casualties in federal air raids on towns and villages in secessionist Biafra.

Successful Splashdown Ends Apollo 9 Saga

By VERN HAUGLAND

ABOARD U.S.S. GUADALCANAL (AP)—Climaxing a 10-day space flight that qualified all Apollo hardware for voyages to the moon, the Apollo 9 astronauts blazed back to earth today and parachuted to a pinpoint landing in the Atlantic Ocean within sight of the recovery ship Guadalcanal.

James A. McDivitt, David R. Scott and Russell L. Schweickart rode their 6½-ton spaceship to a splashdown in gentle seas just three miles from this helicopter carrier stationed 300 miles north of Puerto Rico.

They touched down at 12:01 p.m. EST, ending a significant mission that advanced the United States a major step toward an historic landing two men on the moon in July.

The pinpoint landing was a fitting climax for a flight that had been perfect all the way.

Television pictures, relayed through a communications satellite, enabled millions on earth to share the successful return to earth of the American astronauts.

ORANGE, WHITE CHUTES

Viewers had a ringside seat as cameras focused in on the Apollo 9 floating down from space, dangling under three 83-foot orange and white parachutes.

Hundreds of sailors, wearing dress blue, lined the deck of the Guadalcanal to watch the sight. A loud cheer erupted here and in Mission Control Centre in Houston as the ship hit the water.

Helicopters had spotted the astronauts several minutes before they landed and were hovering overhead when Apollo 9 dropped into the sea.

Within minutes, navy frogmen leaped from a recovery helicopter. The swimmers attached flotation collars to the bobbing spaceship and plugged in a telephone to talk with the astronauts.

The helicopter reported the spacecraft was slightly scarred but "rather good."

Moon Trip Decision In 2 Weeks

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Despite Apollo 9's spectacular success, the head of the U.S. moonflight program said today he still felt strongly American astronauts will need to orbit the moon once more in May before they try to land in July.

Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips said it will be two weeks until the question of whether to fly the moon orbit mission, or whether to go directly from Apollo 9 to a landing attempt, is decided by top officials of the space agency.

Consumer Price Index Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index remained unchanged in February at 122.6 on its new base of 1961 prices equalling 100, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Lower food prices were offset by higher prices in all other sections of the all-items index.

On its old 1949 base, the index remained at January's figure, 158.4.

The index for February last year, on the new base, was 118.2. On the old base, it was 152.7. In percentage terms, the increase for the year is 3.7 per cent, on either the new or the old base.

The bureau said the change in food prices between January and February was mixed, but sufficiently on the down side to cut the food index to 123.9 from 125.1.

All other sections of the general index moved higher. The housing index went up to 122.3 from 121.9 in January, because of higher new house prices, higher insurance premiums, and higher maintenance charges. Rents edged upwards across the country.

The bureau started putting out the consumer price index on the new 1961 base last month, saying the conversion was done arithmetically, with no change in the way the index is compiled as an indicator of family living costs. It is gradually converting most of its other indexes to a 1961 base.

The bureau surveys the retail prices of more than 300 goods and services every month in compiling the index. The 300 items are representative of the purchases of a family of two to six persons, living in cities of over 30,000, and having an annual income which in 1957 ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

PEARSON TELLS FACTS BEHIND RIVARD, GERDA

PEARSON
. . . to clear record

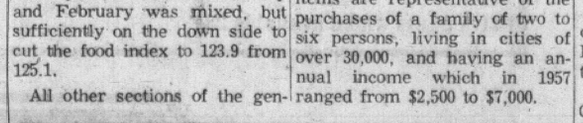
The secret papers of Lester Pearson explaining his handling of the Rivard, Spencer and Munsinger affairs will be published in The Times in a four-part series by Anthony Westell starting Saturday.

The former prime minister is releasing the papers to clarify the record of his administration.

In particular he is answering the charge that he sacrificed two justice ministers—Guy Favreau and Lucien Cardin—to protect his own reputation.

The Pearson papers deal with:

- Montreal hoodlum Lucien Rivard, who brought about the downfall of Justice Minister Favreau when his friends tried to use bribery in high government levels in an attempt to get him out of jail;
- Vancouver postal worker George Victor Spencer, whose handling by the government after he was caught spying for the Soviet Union produced a storm in Parliament which prompted Justice Minister Cardin to expose the case of;
- German call girl Gerda Munsinger who created potential security problems for the former Conservative government.



Russia an' China seem t' think another li'l brink won't do us any harm.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1969 —PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

At our place, and possibly at yours, items aren't always sent out for mending the instant they go haywire. As a matter of fact, we didn't get around to consulting a repairman about our elderly record-player-plus-radio until eight years after it finally packed up on us.

The expert poked around in it, shook his head over it, then took its innards to his shop. On Monday, I came home to spot the tell-tale light in its base glowing brightly.

"Hey," I said to my dear one, "the little light's on."

"It's playing, too," she pointed out.

And so it was, for the first time since the Sunday when it quit on us in the middle of a stack of records—remember those good old 78s?—with a clatter and a long, declining growl.

"What's it playing?" I asked as we settled down to listen.

Then, clearly, though somewhat scratchily, the tune registered.

... Yumty, yumty, YUMTY, yum.

And the lyric: "Hopping down the bunny trail ..."

That record was one of a bunch we bought along with the machine in Toronto. It triggered memories of Easter baskets long emptied. We indulged these while the little light at the foot of the cabinet glowed, and the hard-used melody ground along its grooves.

★

Called 'em radio-phonographs back then, didn't they? Our son was three and our daughter wasn't, and we'd landed in the chips after a lengthy run of tough luck.

Then, bang-bang like that, I sold two short stories. So we went downtown on a bright day when the eastern spring was still only a hint and a promise, and bought that rig in the corner.

From time to time we added records to our collection. These ranged from the rowdy clear through to a sparing choice of the classical. Collection, did I say? It was the kind of scramble a family acquires from music stores, school fairs, and friends who, perhaps deliberately, forget to reclaim their discs after a party . . .

The busy arm, functional once more, set another record in position.

This one was about an Easter bunny who did his trail-hopping where Texas bluebells chime. It occurred to me that we were running kind of heavy to rabbits.

Win agreed. "I think we'll get away from them next time," she told me.

At this point, our daughter spurred her sitzbuggy into the drive. She came in, glanced at the mended music box, and spoke in pleased tones.

"The little light's on again."

"It's got a mono-stereo cartridge, too," Win said, "and new needles, and they mended the record changer."

★

The Texas rabbit record clicked down, and another took over. This one was about a little white duck. Plainly, we weren't yet through with the fur and feather section.

"I know," Win said, "but these are all I can find." Then, to Sue, "Do you think some of our records could be at your place?"

"Maybe one or two," Sue replied. "I'll have a look."

We listened while the duck swallowed a frog.

Before the record had twirled its course, Ron stepped in.

He said, "I see the little light's working."

Patiently, Win explained. Then I asked Ron whether he'd borrowed any of our records.

"Don't remember," he said, "but I might have a couple."

Between them, they have managed to round up quite a nice little pile. It is topped off, maybe by mistake, with several of their own records.

Last night we played "South Pacific" from cover to cover, and made a good start on "My Fair Lady."

But what I'm really looking forward to is "Grand Canyon Suite." Tonight I mean to turn up the volume, and while the little light burns bright, listen to all those horses' hooves going clippity-clop-cloppity!

KIDS CAN GET YOUR GOAT when you try to gather an armload for a picture because on a sunny spring day they bounce like ping pong balls and bleat like teeny-boppers. The big kids are Ingred, five, and Robbie, four, children of Mr. and Mrs. Poul Salling, 4380 Torquay Drive. The little kids are two days to one week old. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett)

No Problem Seen In Moving Plant From Waterfront

Mayor Hugh Stephen insisted this morning that he anticipates no major problems when the time comes for Ocean Cement to move from the Inner Harbor.

The mayor was commenting on an earlier news story which stated that no formal negotiations for the cement plant property were under way between the city and the owning company.

The plant site is the key to the development of a $25 million project which will bring two highrise apartments and a waterfront hotel to Victoria.

RE-LOCATE PLANT

"It is some years now since the question of re-locating the plant first came up," the mayor said. "It has always been agreed, and amicably, between the company and the city that the plant would eventually be re-located away from the Inner Harbor.

"Our relationship with the company has always been excellent and I don't foresee any major difficulties when we finally get down to cases."

Mayor Stephen said he did not anticipate an overnight decision when negotiations commence.

"There will undoubtedly be some hard bargaining," he said. "But no more than there would be in any other line of endeavor. Ocean Cement does have re-location problems, but nothing we can't solve."

The mayor said no date had been set to open negotiations with the cement company.

"The next step in the urban renewal program should come in about two weeks time when our planners bring to council the physical plans and suggestions they have for the entire area, including the Ocean Cement plant site," he said.

"We hope that will form the basis of our application to Ottawa for funds for the program. It will be at about that time that we can start what I fully expect to be lengthy negotiations with Ocean Cement."

Wheel-Stealing Thief Leaves Car On Blocks

City police are looking for a daring thief with a particular yearning for automobile tires and wheels.

Daniel J. Normandeau, 200 Niagara, reported Wednesday someone had entered his garage overnight, jacked up his car and stole all four wheels, tires and hubcaps.

The car was left on blocks.

The tires, which he had purchased a few days earlier, were valued at $150, the wheels at $60 and the caps at $36.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there any place in Victoria where one can donate old eye-glasses to be given to the needy here or in developing countries? What are the addresses of Senator Eugene McCarthy and Dr. Benjamin Spock?—K.G.

A. For many years the local Lions Clubs collected eyeglasses for shipment to Pakistan and India. They were forced to give up the project because of shipment difficulties. It is suggested that the glasses be carefully wrapped and deposited in Goodwill boxes so that they may be distributed locally.

Senator McCarthy can be reached through the Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., while Dr. Spock's address is: 541 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10022.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Army At Sea As The Navy Dons Boots

Before everyone's in the same green uniform and it becomes difficult to tell the good guys from the bad buys, they are going to pit the army against the navy Saturday at Rocky Point.

The simulated battle will be fought between sea and land forces of the "Ready Reserves."

Fifty reserve sailors will defend Rocky Point against 115 reserve soldiers. (Old sailors claim that makes it an even fight.)

The sailors, acting as guerrillas, will hide in the area overnight arriving overland. The soldiers, in a similar turnabout, will attack from the sea, stealing ashore from three harbor craft in whalers and inflatable assault boats.

In the tradition of the services and with the bravado of soldiers facing sailors, the attackers have announced in advance they will invade at dawn.

The exercise, tagged Operation Seaboot, will extend over the two-day weekend with other attack methods and night patrol activities due for testing.

Units involved are HMCS Malahat and A Company, Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

NO WARNING SIGNS POSTED

City Forcing Hotels To Police Parking Ban

By JIM HUME, Times City Hall Reporter

Downtown hotel owners are bearing the brunt of public abuse for a duty arbitrarily placed on them by Victoria city council.

On Jan. 15 council passed a law making it an offence to park on downtown streets overnight. For several weeks police issued warning tickets advising motorists of the offence and then, two weeks ago, started issuing the real thing at a cost of $2.50 a ticket.

Apart from the warning ticket period and a request to hotel operators to inform their customers about the ban, the city has made no move to post signs warning the casual visitor to the city that overnight parking is illegal.

It's the latter city-imposed education program the hotels complain about.

John Sucloy, manager of the Dominion Hotel, Yates Street, says the city's method of imposing the overnight parking ban is "absolutely ridiculous."

"I have worked in many cities across Canada and I've never come across a traffic regulation imposed this way," he said. "When we have a guest check in he doesn't always tell us where he has parked his car, and we don't always have time to tell him that he can't park on the street.

'Unhappy Customers The Next Morning'

"If the desk clerk forgets to ask we have a very unhappy customer the next morning."

One unhappy customer checked into the Times office Wednesday with a receipt for $2.50 fine incurred when he checked into the Yates Hotel late Tuesday night and failed to receive the "no parking" advice from the desk clerk.

Bela Domjan, 234 East 15th Avenue, Vancouver, visits Victoria five or six times a year on business. In the past he has always left his car on Yates overnight.

Since his last visit the city imposed its overnight ban to make it easier for street sweepers to carry out their overnight duties.

"The $2.50 doesn't bother me too much," Domjan said. "But the fact that there are no warning signs, nothing to tell me that parking is illegal, does. How can the city fine a man just because a desk clerk had a lapse of memory?"

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady admits there is a moral problem but suggests that posting signs throughout the city would be the worst of two evils.

"I can see posting signs if the regulations affected the entire populace," he said.

"But they don't. They affect only a small number of people who check into hotels late at night or those who participate in the night life of the city.

"Is it worth putting another sign on our lamp standards for that?"

Traffic engineer Dave Campbell doesn't think so.

He bluntly stated that it was up to the hotel operators to inform the public, but when asked who should be liable for the fine if the desk clerk failed to pass the information on to guests answered "I don't know."

Inn Picks Up Tab For Ticket Or Tow Charge

At the Century Inn manager Bruce Auchinvole says they have partially solved the problem by picking up the cost of parking tickets or tow-away fees when a guest inadvertently breaks the law.

"It's costly, but in the interests of public relations we feel it necessary. But that doesn't solve the problem entirely. I'm sure many of our guests check out, find the ticket on their car and just drive away not telling us about it, but very unhappy."

Ken King, manager of the Douglas Hotel, says he has a sign in the lobby warning guests of the new regulations.

But he feels more is needed.

"I think sign posting has to be done to place the onus where it should be placed, on the car operator," he says.

"I think it is a little hard to expect a desk clerk to check where every guest has parked his car."

O'Grady noted that the old maxim "ignorance of a law is no defence" still held good.

But another lawyer suggested that in extreme circumstances a hotel guest could sue the hotel for failing to inform about the new law.

"It's an interesting point," he said. "The city has told the hotel owners that it is their duty to inform their guests about the overnight ban. If the desk clerk fails to do so and the guest's car is impounded, causing him to miss a business deal, could he hold the hotel liable?

"On the surface it would appear that he could."

In the meantime the tickets continue to be issued until the city finds a better way of informing the casual visitor of the law or an easier way to keep city streets clean.

PRIORY GROUP TO PRESSURE FOR HOSPITAL

Colwood, Langford and Metchosin residents banded together Wednesday to form a hospital society.

It will be dedicated to winning approval of the regional hospital district to construction of a new extended-care hospital in that area.

A capacity crowd at Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School herd Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital and chairman of the board of St. Mary's Priory recommend organization.

He said a hospital society should be formed to pressure the regional hospital district and the government.

"If you don't put pressure on the government, you won't get it (a hospital)."

Another Priory board member, Pat Blewett, assistant director at St. Joseph's, said "without a soceity there is not going to be a hospital in this area."

MORE FOR EXTENDED CARE

Greater Victoria and Gulf Island Regional Hospital District last year was authorized by referendum to raise $11,480,000 for hospitals, most of it for extended-care facilities.

(These are hospitals for care of chronically ill patients who are confined to bed and are unable to feed or care for themselves.)

The hospital district has approved a $2 million, 150-bed addition to Gorge Road Hospital. Mount St. Mary's has applied to build a 200-bed extended care unit. And Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has proposed a site north of Elk Lake, not pinpointed, for a third new unit

The regional hospital district is studying creation of a new hospital to replace Rest Haven at Sidney, which may combine a number of acute-care beds with a number of extended-care beds.

SISTERS WILL REMAIN

Held in abeyance so far by the board, is the recommendation of the Agnew-Peckham hospital study, that additional extended-care beds also should be provided at the Priory, near Langford.

This is the aim of the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin residents who attended the meeting.

Rev. Mother Mary Ferdinand of the Priory gave the assurance that "the sisters are not running away tomorrow. We will continue to work at the Priory as long as there is need."

The new-formed society will have as its nucleus the existing Priory board. Added to their numbers were 14 nominees from the floor.

They include Ron Ridley, Cyrus Price, James Buchanan, Lt.-Cmdr. E. Jones, Gilbert Nelson, Jack Edwards, A. Olsen, Joyce Wallace, Stewart Campbell, Rev. W. J. O'Brien, John Strika and Mrs. Gerald Smith.

FATHER VICTIM

Court Hears Unusual Cry For Help

A 19-year-old pleaded gulity today to two charges of breaking into and stealing from his father's service station.

William J. Tennant, 1098 Iris Avenue, was remanded to March 21 for sentence.

"Its a very curious case . . . a most unusual cry for help," said Magistrate William Ostler after hearing the evidence.

Const. Hugh Barry McCombe said the youth first broke into his father's station, at 1802 Island Highway, March 6 and stole $17.50.

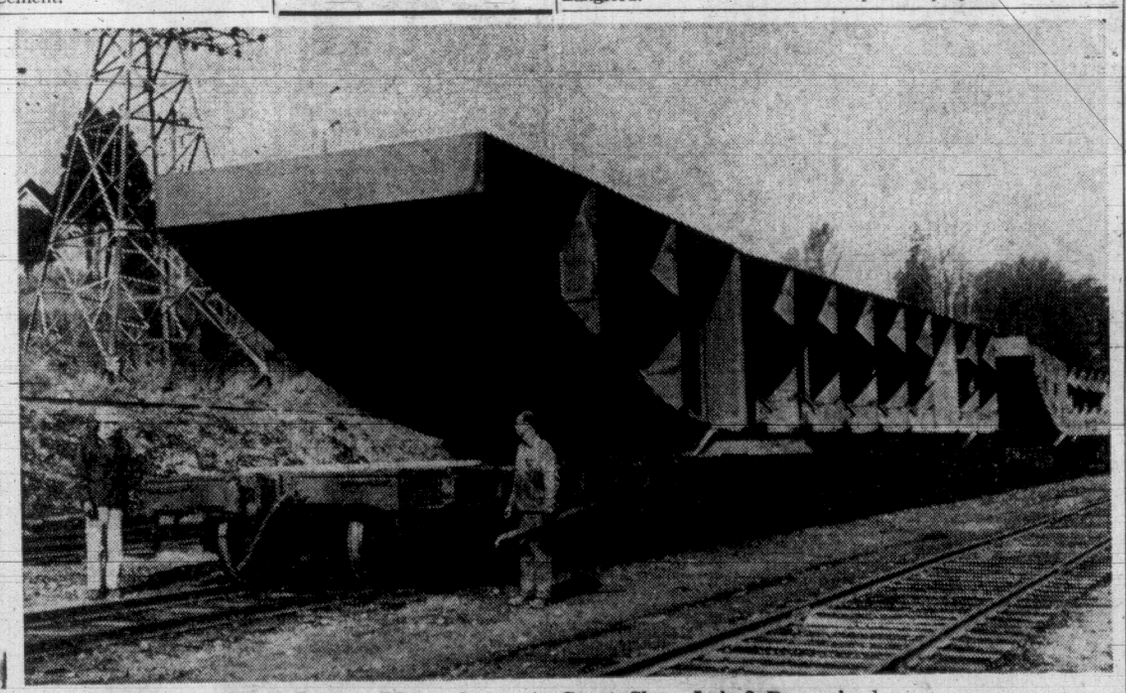
Early today the youth came to the RCMP office at Colwood and said he had again broken into the station overnight and turned over $57.30 he had taken.

He told the officers he needed some kind of help, psychiatric or otherwise.

Both times he got into the station by breaking a rear window. The money was removed from the till.

"He's chosen a very unusual way to bring it to the attention of those who can help him," said Magistrate Ostler.

He asked that a psychiatric report be prepared.



How do you take a barge to Great Slave Lake? Darn slowly.

Barge Sections Borrow Piston-Like Action For Tedious Week-Long Trip on Train

It's one thing to build cargo barges here for Great Slave Lake — it's another to deliver them.

The barges being built by Yarrows Ltd. are so large they must be shipped in five sections. Each section covers two railway flat cars.

The Victoria contract calls for five barges (a $1.2 million contract). That's 40 sections and 80 flat cars — and a headache for the Canadian National Railway.

The CNR shipped out the first two sections Wednesday and the balance will follow between now and May, says company freight sales manager John Chalmers. His major problem was how to bend the barges when the two flat cars refuse to travel around curves in a straight line.

And what happens when the barge sections go through narrow curving tunnels of which there are a dozen between here and Jasper?

Solution worked out by engineers was to peg one end of a barge section on a pin which travels back and forth in a slot. The other end rests on a swivel bunk. The barge section may then move like a car's piston, remaining straight while the flat cars twist beneath them.

Care had to be taken that there was not so much overhang that the barge sections would scrape tunnel walls or jam themselves in tunnel curves. The experts figure they have a few inches to spare.

Transport between Victoria and Vancouver is by rented self-propelled barge. Rail transport will be slow and by day only. The journey will take a week.

Yarrow's parent firm, Burrard Shipyard North Vancouver, will build one additional barge under sub-contract to Dominion Bridge who will supply six more under contract to Northern Navigation Ltd. a Crown corporation serving the Northwest Territories.

Art Joins Religion In Five-Day Festival

Poetry readings, plays, an exhibition of paintings and sculptures, jazz and classical music and thought-provoking films will be presented at a Festival of Religion and the Arts to be held here March 19 to 23.

It will be opened in First United Church Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. by Monsignor Michael O'Connell of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and Canon Grahame Baker, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Theme of the festival is creating Space for Ultimate Questions.

ONE-ACT PLAYS

Illtyd Perkins and Sean Virgo of the University of Victoria's English department will produce four one-act plays, including a Zen play adapted from the Japanese. The Author by Prof. Robin Skelton; The Island by Lawrence Russell; and Motel by Jean van Ittalie.

Prof. Skelton will read poetry and the art show will feature works by Victoria artists.

Dr. Hnery Elder of the UBC school of architecture will speak on Religious Architecture; Original Intention and The Way to the Future.

There will be workshops in children's creative drama for boys and girls of all ages from seven to 17 and a hootenanny by local folk musicians.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

"We are concerned with raising important questions through the medium of the arts," says Leonard Lythgoe, organizer of the festival.

"For centuries religion and the arts were wedded as expressions of man's joy and wonder at his creation, and as explorations of the deeper things of the soul.

"More recently religion and the arts have each tried to go their separate ways. The Festival of Religion and the Arts will attempt to reconcile the two."

$1,000 Damage In Office Fire

Damage is estimated at $1,000 in a fire at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday at Universal Tutoring College, 2020 Douglas Street.

A smouldering cigarette dropped through a cold air duct is believed to have ignited woodwork between the floor of the college offices and the ceiling of the business below.

Firemen cut a three to four-foot hole in the floor along the length of the joist to extinguish the blaze.
